WOMAN FLYING OCEAN ALONE

TRACE $10,000 IN BUS FEES TO MAYOR WALKER

Overdraws Credit for Trip to Europe.

New York, May 20.—[Special.]—Twelve days after the Equitable Coach company was granted a bus franchise by the city, on the motion of Mayor James J. Walker, a letter of credit for $10,000 was made out to the order of the mayor and delivered to the office of J. Allen Smith, a representative of one of the Ohio backers of the concern, it was testified this afternoon before the Hofstadter committee.

JAMES J. WALKER. [Du Bois Photo.]

Mayor Walker cashed the letter of credit, it was shown, and exhausted it in five drafts, all drawn while he was abroad in September, 1927.

The witness through whom this evidence was presented by Samuel Seabury, counsel to the committee, was Richard R. Hunter, now a vice president of the Chase National bank, but who in 1927 was with the Equitable Trust company.

The $10,000 letter of credit to the mayor's order was negotiated by Smith, who put up the cash, Mr. Hunter said. The letter was duly executed, payable to the mayor, and delivered to Smith at his office at 120 Broadway—the office of the Equitable Coach company.

Walker Signed Letter of Credit.

The letter of credit was issued on Aug. 9, 1927. The Equitable franchise was granted by the board of estimate on July 28, 1927. Evidence previously introduced by Mr. Seabury has been to the effect that the mayor overrode all opposition to the granting of the franchise in the board of estimate and forced the vote through.

Mr. Smith was the representative of Frank R. Fageol, Ohio bus manufacturer, who was one of the leading backers of the Equitable. Smith also had charge of a "trust fund" for $282,000, Fageol has testified, to be used in the interest of the Equitable's efforts to get a franchise.

Ernest L. Hoffman, in charge of the travelers' letter of credit division of the Equitable Trust company, testified that Mayor Walker signed the letter of credit in his presence at city hall on the day after Smith had put up the cash.

Visit Mayor at City Hall.

Mr. Hoffman said he visited Smith at the latter's office in the Equitable Coach company and received from him $10,000 in $500 bills. He gave Smith his "personal receipt" for the money, he said. The receipt was offered in evidence by Mr. Seabury. On the back of the receipt was Hoffman's penciled notation that it was a personal receipt and that a formal one would be given Smith later.

The day after the delivery of the money Hoffman said he again met Smith in the latter's office. Senator John A. Hastings, so called "political contact man" on the coach company's pay roll, was there.

"Well, let's go up to city hall," Hoffman quoted Hastings as saying.

They all rode to city hall together in a taxicab, Hoffman testified, and in their presence the mayor signed the letter of credit.

Overdraws by $3,000.

Mr. Seabury introduced canceled drafts showing that not only had Mayor Walker cashed the $10,000 letter of credit but that he had overdrawn it by $3,000.

The mayor drew the drafts while abroad in September, 1927. The letter of credit was good until Dec. 31.

The overdraft of $3,000 was paid by Smith on Jan. 12, 1928, according to documentary evidence introduced. The drafts were drawn as follows:

Sept. 1, $3[illegible].

Sept. 7, $1,500.

Sept. 12, $1,050.

Sept. 16 and 20, $4,000 and $3,150.

The first three drafts were drawn by the mayor while he was in Italy, the latter two while in Paris.

On Sept. 21, while in Paris, the mayor drew a draft for $3,000, overdrawing his credit in that amount. It was paid by the Paris office of the Equitable Trust company.

The letter of credit itself, introduced in evidence, bore the notation, "exhausted," in a corner, written in pencil, was the telephone number "Cortland 7000," which is the number of the city hall.

DO-X Takes Off on Azores Flight.

BULLETIN.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., May 21 (Saturday.)—(AP)—The German airliner DO-X took off from Holyrood for a trans-Atlantic flight to the Azores at 3 a. m., Chicago daylight time, today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., May 20.—Amelia Earhart Putnam, wife of a New York publisher, tonight was far over the gray wastes of the Atlantic ocean, attempting to repeat her feat of four years ago—a flight to Europe.

Tonight, however, the daring aviatrix is alone. Four years ago she was accompanied by two men—the late Wilmer Stultz, pilot, and Lou Gordon, mechanic. They flew from Trepassey, N. F., in the Fokker seaplane Friendship, to Burry Port, Wales, where they landed out of gasoline. That flight took 20 hours 49 minutes. She now hopes to be the first woman to fly the ocean.

Faces Night Flight Over Sea.

Mrs. Putnam, who is a former Chicagoan, took off from here at 4:51 p. m., Chicago daylight saving time, five hours after she roared in from St. John, New Brunswick, where she landed yesterday from Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. The 700 mile hop from St. John required 4 hours and 10 minutes.

She was accompanied on the flight from Hasbrouck Heights by Bernt Balchen, famous pilot and explorer, and Eddie Gorski, mechanic. Immediately on landing here the plane was tuned up and refueled.

Destination Is Paris.

Just before taking off over the ocean alone, Mrs. Putnam cleared up one point which she had hitherto kept secret. That was that her destination is Paris. By an odd coincidence, it was just five years ago today that Col. Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt field, N. Y., on his flight to Paris.

Mrs. Putnam appeared happy and cheerful as she climbed into her heavily laden plane.

"To all my friends, far and near, you will hear from me in 12 or 15 hours," she said. "I have sufficient fuel for 20 hours and I will go further than Paris if my gas holds out and I am not too fatigued."

Balchen and Gorski held a final conference with the daring aviatrix regarding weather reports and other data. Then, sweeping down the runway, she made a perfect takeoff.

Weather Conditions Perfect.

Weather conditions here were ideal at the takeoff. A light southwest wind was blowing and it was expected that with good weather all the way across she would land in Paris in 12 to 15 hours. Lindbergh, flying a slower ship, took 33 hours and 29 minutes from New York to Paris and about 23 hours from Newfoundland to Paris.

Mrs. Putnam is flying a Lockheed Vega monoplane powered with an air cooled Wasp engine. It is similar in almost every respect to the Winnie Mae, in which Wiley Post and Harold Gatty established their eight day record around the world last year.

Mrs. Putnam's plane, which has no name but carries the number NR-7952 on the lower side of the wings and on the scarlet tail fin, has a top speed of 180 miles an hour and cruises most economically at between 150 and 160 miles an hour. She carried a fuel supply of 420 gallons of gasoline and 20 gallons of oil. Lindbergh carried about 400 gallons of gasoline. Mrs. Putnam's ship has no radio. She took only a quart of chicken soup as food.

DO-X to Hop at Dawn.

Meanwhile, the giant German air liner DO-X was tuned up tonight ready to take off at dawn tomorrow for the Azores on its return flight to its home port on Lake Constance, Switzerland. The DO-X is now resting lazily on the waters at Holyrood, about 25 miles from Harbor Grace, where it landed this morning after a short hop from Dildo, Trinity bay. The huge ship landed at Dildo yesterday when it ran short of fuel while flying from New York.

FORMER CHICAGO GIRL.

Mrs. Putnam is well known in Chicago. She graduated from the Hyde Park High school here in 1915 and for some time was engaged in social work at Hull house. Mrs. Putnam has paid several visits to Chicago in recent years. One of the most memorable was in 1928 after her flight

POLICE CHASE WOMAN DRIVER; TIE UP TRAFFIC

Traffic in Broadway was tied up for several minutes yesterday because of the efforts of Policemen John Carlson and John O'Donnell of the accident prevention detail to arrest Mrs. Mabel Neely, 40 years old, of 1357 Byron street. She is the wife of Arthur Neely, secretary of the Western Undertaking company.

Carlson and O'Donnell saw her drive through a stop light at Greenview avenue and Irving Park boulevard. When they tried to give her a ticket she drove away. At Clark street and Irving Park boulevard Carlson jumped on the running board of her car. She continued driving, turning into Broadway. Meanwhile witnesses called for additional police and several squads raced to the scene.

Mrs. Neely was taken to the Town Hall station and booked for driving through a stop light. Police said they would prefer additional charges.

Salesman Putting Car in Garage Shot by Bandit

Walter Wysocki, 32 years old, a salesman, was shot in the abdomen last night when he resisted a bandit. He was taken to the Belmont hospital in a critical condition. Wysocki lives at 3452 North Avers avenue. He was putting his car into the garage in the rear of 3420 North Hamlin avenue when the robber, a tall man, ordered him to raise his hands. Instead Wysocki lunged at him and the bandit fired.

$54,094,353 Budget Voted by Aldermen

A budget of approximately $54,090,353 for the city's corporate fund was, in effect, approved late last night by action of the finance committee of the city council. If the budget is kept at that figure the 1932 appropriations will be $8,961,726 lower than those of last year, and within the estimate of revenues.

The committee's action came in approval of a motion to retain in the budget the 73 days' pay cut for employés as provided in the continuation ordinance. By this move the aldermen rejected the original proposal of County Assessor Jacobs, who, as city efficiency engineer, prepared a tentative budget, for the elimination of 1,600 employés.

Accept Reclassification Plan.

Several other recommendations of Mr. Jacobs were accepted. They include a reclassification of positions as they become vacant, which will not disturb present employés, the consolidation of building repair bureaus into one division, and the transfer of the city physician and fire ambulance services to the health department.

The only serious argument developed over the ordinance which would authorize Commissioner of Police Allman to appoint five police inspectors. Irritated by constant interruptions Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] clipped Ald. John Toman [23d] beneath the eye with what he thought was a cigar butt. The missile turned out to be a spectacle case.

"I never threw anything," shouted Toman, "and I'm twenty years in the council."

Defer Action on Consolidation.

The police inspectors' ordinance and other Jacobs' recommendations for consolidations of departments were deferred until today's session. Meanwhile the committee's staff was directed to determine what it would cost the city if employés receiving $1,000 or less a year were eliminated from the 73 days' pay cut.

At the opening of the session Mr. Jacobs explained his recommendations and urged the aldermen to cut expenditures drastically. Present were Mayor Cermak, Commissioner of Public Works Sprague and City Controller Szymczak, who, at an earlier conference, had gone over the Jacobs proposals.

She claims to have had a vision revealing twenty spots where ancient treasure lies hidden in Germany. A divining rod will be used to aid the search.

PHYSICIAN IS HELD UP AND SHOT ON GOLF COURSE

A bandit held up and shot a player last evening on a fairway of the Bunker Hill Country club, on Milwaukee avenue, in Niles.

The victim was Dr. Daniel E. Murphy, 50 years old, of 500 Barry avenue. He was taken to the Alexian Brothers' hospital, of which he is a staff member, suffering from a double wound in the thighs.

Shortly after 6 p. m. Dr. Murphy went on the course, accompanied only by a caddie, Joe Swadlenka. He was poised for a drive on the 18th hole, bordering the forest preserve, when the robber appeared.

"Drop your club!" the man commanded. The physician waved him away and again started to drive. The man, who up to this time had displayed no gun, then fired suddenly, the bullet entering Dr. Murphy's left thigh and passing through to the right. As Dr. Murphy lay on the ground the gunman forced him to hand over a dollar bill and some change. He then fled into the forest.

'BAD LUCK' COMES FAST ON HEELS OF PREDICTIONS

Two gypsy women in colorful dresses and bandana headdresses and with large brass rings in their ears, entered the 43d street station of the Kenwood elevated line yesterday afternoon and approached Charles A. De Vaux, operator of the newsstand.

"Tell your fortune, mister?" said one.

"No," replied De Vaux, "I don't need any."

"Bad luck is coming for you," declared the first woman.

Then she and her companion seized De Vaux, threw him to the floor, took $27 from his pockets and fled.

Brethren Give Their Views of Huey P. Long

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—Chastisement—verbal, but effective—was twice administered in the senate today to Senator Huey P. Long [Dem., La.].

Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] was the first to assail the senator from Louisiana, charging him with an inability to understand the meaning of courtesy.

Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.] came second—along late in the evening when tempers were frayed—and his reprimand, shouted with fury across the dozen feet separating him from Senator Long, concluded:

"The senator from Louisiana is utterly lacking in the sensibility that usually characterizes intercourse between men in this body. He is without—I was about to say—decency. I condemn the sort of conduct he has shown. I am entirely indifferent to buffoonery and clownishness wherever it appears. But the senator from Louisiana can't presume to lecture me."

Attacked Senator George's Vote.

The senator from Louisiana had lectured Senator George. To Senator George's denunciation of the tariffs, he had replied, in his expansive way, with citations from Senator George's record on the Smoot-Hawley bill, which showed he had voted for tariffs on many commodities competing with Georgia farm products.

Hoarse with the surge of his reply, Senator George answered that he had voted for agricultural tariffs in keeping with President Hoover's charge to write a limited bill affecting such commodities. He continued:

"I question the patriotism of the senator from Louisana when he holds his hands at the throat of the nation itself and demands special privileges for his state instead of providing adequate revenue through the tax bill."

Senator Long jumped out of his seat no longer so self-satisfied.

"What have I said?" he inquired. "Except to read the senator's record——"

"If he does not know then that proves all I have said," remarked Senator George.

Tydings, Annoyed, Hits Back.

Senator Tyding's chance came earlier in the day when he asked to have an editorial read by the clerk. Senator Long objected. Then he sought to withdraw his objection, but the Marylander would have none of it.

Elegantly stern, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] rose to his feet.

"I move," he said, "that the clerk read the editorial in accordance with the rules of courtesy usually prevailing between senators."

Looking unusually warm and uncomfortable, the "Kingfish" sat there while the senate voiced a unanimous "aye." His was the single "no." The editorial was read. But Senator Tydings had not finished.

An Unusual Army.

The Marylander likened the party splitting muddle over the tariff to the disorder that reigned in the house over the sales tax. He recalled how Representative La Guardia, New York, radical Republican, had led the house revolt. In the senate, he said, it was Senator Long from the Democratic side.

"And then the distinguished chairman of the finance commitee, Senator Smoot, is first sergeant and right guide for Gen. Long. It is an unusual army. Privates Smoot and Watson, the Republican leader, and the rest of them marching under Long's banner."

Senator Long arose, but Senator Tydings cut him down.

SENATE FIDDLES AS U. S. 'BURNS,' GLENN WARNS

Lashes Congress for Do Nothing Policy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—Into the senate debate on the tariff items in the tax bill, with the tax bill and economies virtually sidetracked and perhaps indefinitely stalled, with logrolling the order of the day, Senator Otis F. Glenn of Illinois, stepped today to administer such a reproof to his dilatory colleagues as they have seldom had to listen to.

Mr. Glenn was speaking during the tariff consideration. During today's and tonight's sessions the senate tariff coalition gained the first half of its objective, retaining the oil and coal import taxes in the revenue bill.

Over filibuster threats and protests of an aroused opposition, it was heading for victory on the other two tariff duties—copper and lumber—at adjournment.

Calls Nero an Amateur.

Compared to congress, said the Illinois senator, Nero was an amateur.

"Talk about Nero sitting by idly and fiddling while Rome burned!" he cried, flinging out an accusatory arm at the listening senators. "We have in the American congress not a fiddler but a symphony orchestra performing while America is burning."

He taunted his colleagues with their inconsistency in having turned down beer only to adopt a tax on prohibition era products that can produce nothing but intoxicating beverages.

He denounced the "pitiful and puny" economies congress had achieved and predicted that next December, after the people had had their say, there would be another story.

Illinois had the world's greatest bituminous coal mines; it held distressed miners; it contained oil wells. Nevertheless, Senator Glenn declared:

"Every man in this body should be big enough and brave enough to rise above sectional and state lines and think for once only of his nation and the people, wherever they be, in every section of our land."

Senator Glenn broke suddenly into praise for former Gov. Smith.

"Parties mean nothing in this crisis," Senator Glenn declared. "I am glad that there is in America a man as courageous as former Gov. Smith. He has reared himself to a place in the esteem of sound, thinking Americans which is second to that of almost no man in the republic within or without public office. He showed himself to be a man big enough, strong enough, unselfish enough to say to the American people the things he believes are for the interests of America.

Country Is Tottering?

"With the whole country tottering on the brink of a great precipice," the need, said the Illinois senator, was for the immediate passage of the tax bill in order to balance the budget and sustain the nation's fiancial credit.

And what made the situation more serious still, Senator Glenn asserted, was the failure of congress to perform its "first imperative duty," to cut the expenditures of the federal government.

"But we," he went on, "sit here idly refusing this item and that item of economy. After the whole program has been argued day after day, week after week, we will submit to the taxpayers of the country a most pitiful and puny accomplishment.

Should Abolish Bureaus.

"We talk about mergers and consolidations of the departments, when we should be talking about abolishing them, about destroying the interference of federal and state officials in private business enterprise.

"This great and growing army of federal and state employés, all functioning at the expense of the overburdened, the almost destroyed, taxpayers, must be stopped.

"The time is going to come when we return to our states, meet the taxpayers, our constituents, face to face, and learn of their disasters. And we will come back here, those of us that are allowed to return to Washington chastened in spirit.

Must Cut Off Expenses.

"Then, and only then, I predict will the American congress do that which is plainly its pressing duty—to cut off these expenses, abolish these commissions and bureaus, and go back to the primary functions of the federal government.

"There will then be some hope in America for industry and for business and the individual."

Congress would not perform that duty at this session, Senator Glenn predicted, because every proposal of economy was met with the "locust swarm" of people arguing for the retention of this and the preservation of that.

Meanwhile, he declared, with the country facing a 3 billion dollar deficit, with no reduction of expenses, and ever shrinking revenues, the tax bill to provide additional revenues must be passed.

It was at that point that he compared congress to the fiddling Nero. He hurled back at his colleagues their recent vote against legalizing beer.

Assails Beer Tax Foes.

"We saw the proposal to restore beer voted down almost 3 to 1 at a time when America is needing money as she never did before, and within a few moments we saw a heavy tax placed on wort, out of which nothing can be made except intoxicating beer," Senator Glenn said. "There is no consistency in that situation."

Senator Glenn said he hoped that the senate eventually might agree to what he believed a sound bill—one containing reasonable income, inheritance, and gift taxes, reasonable surtaxes, coupled with a moderate and equitable sales tax.

To write tariffs into the tax bill, and to apply those tariffs to only four favored commodities, he declared, lacked "honesty and integrity of purpose."

"What argument can I advance to my people to justify a vote to revise the tariff on oil and lumber and coal and copper, but deny them the opportunity to be heard in their interest?" he demanded.

Worry About Conventions.

"We are worrying about getting away for the conventions," Senator Glenn concluded. "It would be a ludicrous thing for either party, for their members here in congress to adjourn with ten million people in want, with industry and finance and all our interests paralyzed, to desert the people without at least trying to solve these problems and go to Chicago and write lengthy and glowing and gloriously laudatory planks in the platforms telling of our efforts to save the common people of America.

"Let us stay here until this revenue bill is enacted, until the appropriation bills are enacted, until emergency relief measures are provided, and then—Republicans and Democrats alike—we can proceed home and meet our people fairly and squarely with the consciousness of having at least attempted to serve our people and do our duty."

Kansan Appeals to Hoover.

Topeka, Kas., May 20.—(AP)—Word that a major buyer of crude oil in the midcontinent area had decided to curtail its purchases brought from the Kansas public service commission today a plea to President Hoover that he "openly fight" for the petroleum excise tax now before congress.

Thurman Hill, member of the commission, announced that body had been informed by the Stanolind Crude Oil Purchasing company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, that "effective immediately" it would "reduce materially" its purchases in Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas.

Commissioner Hill said the contract under which the Standard for more than a year has been buying 2,000 barrels daily of the Kansas "stripper" well output expires May 22.

The public service commission, in its telegram to President Hoover, blamed an oversupply of oil created by imports as the cause of curtailment of domestic purchases.

VOTE OIL, COAL TARIFF

The senate dumped the billion dollar revenue bill to one side tonight, went ahead with their tariff fight, and adopted amendments writing into the bill tariffs on oil and coal. The reaction was instantaneous.

Carrying out their previous threats senators opposed to the inclusion of tariffs in the revenue measure shot to the desk more than 500 amendments to the tariff schedules, offering them as amendments to the tax bill.

As another amendment the export debenture plan of farm relief was offered. Motions were entered to reconsider the vote, two days ago, by which the Tydings beer amendment was defeated and the tax on brewers' wort adopted, thereby reopening the whole prohibition controversy.

Most serious threat of all was the warning sounded by Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.]—speaking certainly for a growing group—that if the tariffs remain in the bill he would cast his vote for the Couzens amendment reinstating the 1918 individual income and surtax rates when the earlier vote of rejection comes up for reconsideration.

The close of the night session found the revenue bill bogged down for an indefinite length of time.

17 Democrats Vote for Tariff.

The oil tariff was adopted with the aid of 17 Democratic protectionists and the coal tariff saw 13 of them jumping the fence to the high tariff side.

Both votes were close, 43 to 37, in the case of oil; 39 to 34 in the case of coal. As originally cast they were even closer, 42 to 38, and 38 to 35—for in the first Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.], and in the second Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], each anti-tariff, changed their votes from "no" to "aye" to be able to move for reconsideration.

The Republican ranks also split wide with 16 voting against the tariff on oil and 11 against a tariff on coal.

Import Tax on Crude Oil.

The oil tariff provides an import tax of ½ cent per gallon on crude petroleum, fuel oil and all liquid derivatives of crude petroleum except gasoline and lubricating oil; 2½ cents per gallon on gasoline and other motor fuels; 4 cents per gallon on lubricating oil; 1 cent per pound on paraffin and other petroleum wax products; and 10 cents per 100 pounds on asphalt.

The coal tariff provides a tax of $2 per short ton on coal imports, with the provision so framed that imports from Canada are excepted.

ARMY HERO OF YELLOW FEVER EXPERIMENTS GOES TO U. S. HOSPITAL

Washington, D. C., May 20.—(AP)—After more than 30 years, army medical science is paying some of the debt it owes John H. Andrus.

He was admitted to an army hospital in Washington last week, suffering from partial paralysis. Back in 1901, Andrus was one of the 12 soldiers who aided Dr. Walter Reed, famous army physician, in establishing that the deadly pestilence, yellow fever, was spread by the bite of a mosquito. They volunteered to let themselves be bitten by mosquitoes which had fed on persons ill with the plague.

Andrus was voted the congressional medal of honor for bravery, but this is the first opportunity the army has had to aid him since his discharge shortly after he recovered from the fever. He came from his home in Camden, N. J., to Walter Reed hospital, the institution named for the army scientist.

DRAFT 2 BILLION RELIEF PROGRAM OF DEMOCRATS

Senators Combine Hoover Plan in Measure.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—A 2 billion 300 million dollar plan for depression relief was completed late today by the committee of Democratic senators appointed by Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate, to formulate a measure combining his own and President Hoover's proposals. The committee's bill proposes:

1. That the Reconstruction Finance corporation shall be directed to make loans up to 300 millions of dollars to states for the relief of destitution, upon certification by governors of such need, the advances to be deducted from future federal aid highway construction grants to the states.

2. That the borrowing power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation be increased to 3 billion dollars to enable the corporation to make loans up to 1 billion 500 millions on self-liquidating undertakings by public and private agencies.

3. That 500 millions of 25 year bonds be issued to finance the construction of federal public works already authorized by congress, the bonds to be issued as needed to pay for the work as it progresses.

Introduce Bill in Few Days.

The committee announced that the bill will be introduced in the senate in the next few days.

The first two provisions of the bill essentially are in accord with the President's views as set forth following Senator Robinson's original proposals of depression relief legislation. The public works bond issue suggestion, which was contributed by Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], departs from Mr. Hoover's plan.

The President actively is furthering the proposed depression relief legislation and also is contemplating action to advance the efforts of the New York committee of bankers and industrialists appointed yesterday to start the increasing reserves of bank credits flowing into industrial channels. In order to expand this undertaking to the whole country the President plans to call the financial and industrial leaders of all regions to Washington.

Gratified at Action of Leaders.

"I am much gratified," said Mr. Hoover, "at the action taken in New York by which a joint committee has been appointed representing financial and industrial leaders of that city for the purpose, amongst other things, of securing that the expansion of credit facilities made available through the federal reserve banks and the Reconstruction Finance corporation shall be translated into industry, employment, and agriculture. I am in hopes that similar action may be taken in other federal reserve districts. It would seem desirable that the governors of the different reserve banks should proceed in a similar manner and as soon as the chairmen of such committees are known I shall be glad to invite them to Washington in order that the whole program may be set up on a national basis."

The President, it was learned, has rejected as unwarranted various suggestions that a committee of national defense against the depression be formed to advise the executive, like the committees of national defense during the war.

Garner Works on His Program.

While the senate Democrats were outlining their depression relief bill Speaker John N. Garner [Dem., Tex.] was setting the legislative drafting service at work on the formulation of his 2 billion, 100 million bill he proposed yesterday. It is to go to the ways and means committee for action in the next fortnight. The speaker said his bill is designed to aid the "great middle class of producers." The Reconstruction Finance corporation, he said, is helping the railroads and other corporations, on the one hand, and tenant farmers, on the other, but not the middle class.

The committee of senate Democrats described its bill as "designed to aid in preventing suffering from hunger; in providing employment; in starting again the stalled industrial machinery of the country; of reviving actual orders for commodities; in reviving confidence by checking price deflation and security liquidation, and by promoting the revival of trade and the increase of demand for commodities and credit. The methods selected may be regarded as extraordinary, but they are justified by the emergency.

"The entire program is arranged with a view to tapping various sources of recuperative energy and bringing into operation the employment producing and trade reviving capacities of public and private industries and agencies."

Self-Liquidating Undertakings.

The self-liquidating undertakings on which the Reconstruction Finance corporation is to loan up to 1 billion 500 millions are thus classified by the committee:

[a] Construction of revenue producing projects initiated by states, municipalities and public corporations.

[b] Housing and slum clearance projects undertaken by limited dividend corporations.

[c] Construction by private corporations of self-liquidating bridges, tunnels, docks, viaducts, water works and similar projects devoted to the public use. Under this proposal no loans shall be made to any financial institution, corporation, railroad or other association or organization of a class to which loans may be made under the Reconstruction Finance corporation act.

All Must Meet Test.

"In financing these projects the Reconstruction Finance corporation will be amply secured," said the committee. "Every undertaking must meet the test that it will be self-liquidating and its earnings sufficient to amortize the cost of construction."

The committee bill provides that the public works to be financed by a 500 million dollar bond issue must have been authorized by law, the plans in preparation, and their necessity "for proper conduct of the government business" established.

"Most of the works can be commenced at once," said the committee. "All of the works can be put under way within a few months. All have been carefully chosen with a view to giving maximum employment."

The banking committee reported to the house today the federal home loan bank bill which the President urged as a means of thawing frozen credit for home building.

BRITTEN BILL WOULD COMBINE THREE U. S. CIVIL SERVICE BUREAUS

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—Asserting it would save millions to the taxpayers Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] introduced a bill in the house today proposing consolidation of the civil service commission and all other agencies of the government having to do with personnel into a civil service administration.

"There are at present 919 employés in the four departments affected who are engaged in classifying civilian personnel," said Congressman Britten. "There are three sets of commissioners or boards, with three sets of secretaries, legal advisers, examiners and assistant examiners, all doing the same character of work in four different buildings in different parts of Washington.

"Appropriations for these four civil activities this year will approximate $7,000,000, a large portion of which can undoubtedly be saved by a combination of the activities under one administration. These boards and commissions have been created from time to time by legislative action and can only be consolidated by act of congress. I shall press for immediate action by the house.

"My bill will make for immediate economy, greater efficiency and a consolidation under one roof of the four agencies now scattered about the city."

CALLS GAMBLING PRINCIPAL CRIME IN THIS COUNTRY

The principal mercenary crime practiced in the United States is gambling, according to Ernest D. MacDougall, president of the National Institute of Mercenary Crime, who addressed the Woman's City club at luncheon yesterday. Playing the stock market was listed as one form of gambling by MacDougall, who described it as "the most vicious game in the world."

"The most delicately tuned instrument of modern life, the stock market, was tampered with and made into a plaything," he said. "The depression wouldn't have happened if it hadn't been for big financiers and brokers making suckers of us all."

He attacked what he called the popular philosophy of this age, "that anything's all right so long as you get away with it, and that if you can get something for nothing you're smart." He said it was a repudiation of the doctrine that what a man gets he should earn honestly.

Most of the crime is not commited by gangsters, but by so-called respectable men, MacDougall said.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—Placed "on the spot" by the clamor against congressional nepotism which has echoed of late on Capitol hill, members of the house today, without a dissenting vote, agreed to throw the congressional pay roll open to public inspection.

They passed the Warren resolution, authorizing the clerk of the house to permit any and all who desire to investigate the pay accounts in the disbursing offices of the house. And, by so doing, they agreed to disclose to their constituencies, for the first time in recent history, exact information as to how many of their wives, daughters, sons, and other relatives are drawing part of the $5,000 clerk hire allowed each member.

Many Relatives on Pay Rolls.

A first survey of the newly available rolls disclosed that 99 members of the house, from 33 states, have employés in their offices who bear the same name. As is generally known, Speaker Garner and Majority Leader Rainey both employ their wives as secretaries. Speaker Garner has removed his son, Tully, from the pay rolls of the house. The removal became effective May 15. He had been receiving $91.66 a month.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton of Texas, who waged so bitter a fight against the solicitor of the veterans' administration because, he said, that gentleman was drawing too much of the taxpayers' money, has an employe in his office at $250 a month named Anne L. Blanton.

Identical Names Draw U. S. Pay.

Representatives from the central states had the following employés of identical name in their offices, according to the pay roll:

ILLINOIS.
Allen [Rep.], John C. Allen Jr.	$175.00
Chindblom [Rep.], Ruth C. Chindblom	135.00
Chiperfield [Rep.], Robert B. Chiperfield	325.00
Holaday [Rep.], Helen E. Holaday	233.33
Rainey [Dem.], Ella M. Rainey	208.33

Greenwood [Rep.], Neitle B. Greenwood	100.00
Larrabee [Dem.], Audrey M. Larrabee	133.33
MICHIGAN.
Bohn [Rep.], Martena Bohn	150.00
Hooper [Rep.], Gertrude C. Hooper	191.66

It is understood that numerous brothers-in-law, nieces, nephews, etc., not of the same name as the congressmen, are also on the pay rolls. These instances of nepotism are not so easy to identify.

GERMANY WILL SEND BACK LEVY, GLENCOE ROBBER

Ernest Levy, who fled shortly after he was convicted of participation in a $100,000 jewel theft in the Glencoe home of Lawrence Stern, broker, will be extradicted at once from Germany where he was arrested, according to word received at the state's attorney's office.

Assistant State's Attorney A. C. De Witt, who has charge of the bond department, expects a bonding company to pay the expenses of a messenger.

Levy, according to dispatches, spent several weeks in Cologne, Germany, before shortage of funds caused him to move to cheaper quarters in a nearby suburb. He was using the alias of Heinen.

Levy and his brother, Max, were found guilty of larceny last February and David Blumenfeld was convicted of receiving the stolen property. Wilma Harjes, a maid, aided the robbers. She said she met Ernest Levy at a cabaret.

3 Furriers, Taken in Chase by Game Warden, Fined

Three Chicagoans were fined and their automobile was confiscated yesterday when they were arraigned in Marinette, Wis., for illegal possession and transportation of 52 beaver hides. They were arrested in Stephenson, Wis., on Thursday night after a 10 mile chase by a game warden. Aaron Kanter, 2806 Mango avenue, was sentenced to 120 days in the county jail in lieu of a fine of $100. The other two, Alfred Birrer, 1245 South Scoville avenue, Berwyn, and James Graf of Chicago, were fined $100 each. All are furriers.

MORGAN AGENT MAY TESTIFY ON STOCK TRADING

Indorsed $10,750,000 Check in Postum Deal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—A member of the internationally known banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co. may be called as a witness before the senate banking and finance committee inquiry into short selling. This was disclosed at the conclusion of another session during which new pictures of high finance on the New York Stock exchange were portrayed for senatorial committee members.

In announcing that Harry B. Warner of Warner Bros. had been subpoenaed to testify tomorrow regarding profits he is alleged to have made in buying and selling his own stocks, Chairman Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.] stated that a man he was satisfied was an intermediary of the Morgan firm had advised him the Morgan company would like to appear in rebuttal to testimony presented today which had spread the Morgan name on the committee records.

Firm Loses $11,850,000.

Chairman Norbeck had reference to the testimony of Walter E. Sachs of Goldman Sachs & Co., brokers, and president of the Goldman Sachs Trading corporation. Sachs had told how the trading corporation had cooperated with the Postum company to purchase the General Foods company, an organization whose only assets were $1,750,000 in cash and patent covering a new process for freezing foods known as the Birds-Eye process. Sachs said $23,500,000 was paid for the patent and the assets in the belief a fortune could be made by developing the process. His firm's eventual loss, he said was more than $11,850,000.

Sachs admitted also that the trading company, floated with $100,000,000 capitalization by the Goldman Sachs company, 90 per cent subscribed by the public now had assets of around $40,000,000.

Find Morgan Name on Check.

The Morgan interest arose when a $10,750,000 check which figures in the involved Goldman Sachs financial transactions was found to have the indorsement of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Today's session brought forth two other developments. One of these was the disclosure that Raleigh Curtis, at that time financial writer for the New York Daily News, had indirectly accepted from a stock market trader checks totaling in excess of $19,000 while conducting a financial column under the title of "Trader."

The checks came from a brokerage account maintained for Curtis by John J. Levinson, a trader, while the latter was engaged with three associates in cleaning up a total of $1,136,000 on the New York Stock exchange. William A. Gray, counsel for the committee, charged that Levinson had in effect given the money to Curtis in exchange for stock boosting articles in the writer's column.

Curtis' connection with the News was severed last May when the owners were informed about the checks.

Bare Motorcycle Deal.

Another series of market operations involving the sale of stock of the Indian Motorcycle company furnished the second development. In this deal Edward Hansell, now an independent trader but formerly with Hansell & Co., told how he had sold 80,000 shares of Indian Motorcycle stock at prices ranging from $4 to $12 after Norman T. Bolles, president of the company, had advised him the firm was in a "desperate financial condition."

Mr. Hansell admitted also in connection with the stock transaction that he had been sued by Newton Plummer, one of his aids in his stock selling operations, for not having paid over an agreed sum for advertising and newspaper publicity designed to build up a fictitious value in the motorcycle stock until it could be unloaded on the public. This suit was finally settled when Plummer was paid $26,000.

Hits Financial Writers.

Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] first called the attention of the committee to the Hansell motorcycle operations several weeks ago when he introduced into the records evidence purporting to show that financial writers for the New York Times, the New York Herald-Tribune, the New York Evening Post, and other newspapers had received checks from Plummer for inserting stock boosting articles in their columns. None of the writers mentioned is now on the newspapers which then employed them.

Although the testimony outlining the Sachs operations introduced the largest figures, much of the committee's time was spent in examing two witnesses who told of the Curtis checks.

The witnesses were Levinson and Harry Cornell, formerly an investigator employed by the New York state attorney general's office. Levinson freely admitted maintaining the account for Curtis through which the financial writer drew out a large number of checks, totaling altogether $19,063.

Denies Buying Publicity.

He stated that Curtis did nothing but cash the checks. He, Levinson, bought and sold stock through this account for Curtis, and Curtis took the profits, but paid no losses. Levinson denied he did this to influence Curtis to write boosting articles. According to Levinson he opened the account for Curtis because he was a neighbor and he liked him.

Cornell listed a long array of checks cashed by Curtis and indorsed by Levinson. He had found these checks, Cornell said, while engaged during the spring of 1931 in checking up on stock tipping organizations. He said his inquiry disclosed that Levinson had engaged in several stock selling operations during 1928 and 1930.

Tells of Celotex Trade.

On each occasion when he took up a particular stock the selling period was accompanied by articles in Curtis' column, Cornell said, advising his followers to purchase these stocks. He pointed out that while Levinson and his associates were boosting Celotex in April and May, 1929, several articles urging his customers to buy appeared in the Curtis column headed by the title "Trader."

"On May 1," said Cornell, "Levinson transferred 300 shares of Celotex to Curtis' account. He sold it for Curtis the same day and Curtis cashed a check for $795.50.

"Then take Consolidated Aircraft. Levinson dealt in that stock through the following April, May, June, July, August, and September. We find that during that period Curtis urged his readers to purchase this stock. We find also that on May 1 a block of 500 shares were sold by Levinson to the Curtis account at a figure below the market price. The same date Levinson sold the block for Curtis at the market, making a profit of $3,706.14 for Curtis."

Describe Postum Deal.

"Actually, Levinson was giving Curtis the money, was he not?" said Gray.

"That's right," added Cornell. Cornell said that Curtis had left the New York Daily News after his investigation was concluded.

The going was rough for both newspaper men and senators during the presentation of the series of involved Goldman & Sachs transactions by Attorney Gray and Mr. Sachs. The story of the bewildering maze of transactions, all the details of which have not been cleared up as yet, was as follows:

The original General Foods company had assets of $1,750,000 and a patent for freezing foods. It developed that the Postum company had an arrangement whereby it could purchase the General Foods company assets and patent for $23,500,000.

Postum Sells Own Stock.

To get money to go into this deal the Postum company sold 150,000 shares of its stock to the Goldman Sachs Trading corporation for $10,750,000. Then the trading corporation and the Postum company formed Frosted Foods, a new company, purchased the General Foods assets and patents, and turned them over to the new corporation.

For some unexplained reason the Postum company paid $10,750,000 and took 51 per cent of the Frosted Foods stock. The trading corporation paid $12,750,000 for the remaining 49 per cent.

Later the Goldman Sachs Trading corporation traded its 49 per cent for 30,000 shares in the General Foods corporation which had succeeded the Postum company. The 30,000 shares had a market value of $900,000 which represented the balance left of the trading corporation's $12,750,000 investment. It lost $250,000 on the original Postum stock purchased.

TWO SCIENTISTS AND LOST PILOT SAFE ON GLACIER

Plane Reads Message Printed on Mountain.

Two scientists, members of the University of Chicago's expedition sent to measure cosmic rays on top of Mount McKinley, the continent's highest peak, are safe on Muldrow glacier, 250 miles from Fairbanks, Alaska, S. E. Robbins, a pilot, who attempted to rescue them, is marooned with them on the glacier. Another rescue plane took off from Fairbanks for the glacier last midnight.

This news was received last night by the Chicago office of American Airways from its Alaskan division in Fairbanks. It was obtained by Jerry Jones, Alaskan Airways pilot, who read it in letters three feet high, drawn with lampblack on the glaring whiteness of the glacier.

Two Members of Party Dead.

The two members of the ill fated expedition are Percy T. Olton Jr. and Nicholas Spadevecckia, both of New York. A third member of the party, E. P. Beckwith, is in a hospital at Fairbanks suffering from fever and exposure. Two other members of the party, Allen Carpe and Theodore Koven, died when they fell into a crevasse on the glacier about May 8, while descending from Mount McKinley.

Carpe and Koven reached the height of 11,000 feet on Mount McKinley, which is 20,300 feet high, about May 4, when food was dropped to them from a plane. The same day the other three members of the expedition, Beckwith, Olton and Spadevecckia, were landed by plane on the glacier at a height of 6,000 feet.

Carpe and Koven were not seen alive again. It was presumed that they obtained the cosmic ray measurements they sought and were coming down the glacier when they fell into a crevasse about May 8. Their camp was found by the Leik-Lindley party, which was engaged in a mountain climbing expedition, on May 11. Entries in their diaries indicated they had started down to meet the other three members of the expedition on May 8.

Carpe's Body Missing.

Two miles below the camp the Leik-Lindley party found the body of Koven, who had fallen into a crevasse but climbed out before he died. Carpe's body was not found, but there were indications that he also had fallen into a crevasse. The Leik-Lindley party proceeded toward Fairbanks after meeting Olton and Beckwith, who was ill with fever, in their camp on the glacier. Spadevecckia had left his two companions to seek aid before the Leik-Lindley party reached their camp.

The Leik-Lindley party got word to Fairbanks last Monday and Pilot Jones flew to the glacier in a plane equipped with skis and returned on Tuesday with Beckwith. Because of a blizzard he dared carry only one passenger in the Wasp powered Fairchild. Terrific blizzards on Wednesday frustrated attempts by Jones, Robbins, and Joe Crosson, a third rescue pilot, to reach the camp where Olton remained while Spadevecckia was away in an effort to summon aid.

Ski Broken in Landing.

On Thursday Robbins took off in a rescue plane and Crosson followed. Crosson was forced to land and returned to Fairbanks yesterday. Jones then took off again and located the glacier camp, where he saw Robbins' plane, with a broken ski.

Jones dropped a can of lampblack vecckia had returned to camp, that vecckia had returned to campfi, that Olton was safe, and he was uninjured. Jones' plane was not equipped with skis and he was unable to land.

Jones returned to Fairbanks at 8:45 p. m. (Chicago time) and he and Crosson prepared to take off again at midnight (Chicago time) in a large Hornet powered Pilgrim plane equipped with skis. They planned to cary an extra ski to install on Robbins' plane and expected to bring Olton and Spadevecckia back with them.

EXPECTS STORK

JUNE COLLYER.

Hollywood, Cal., May 20.—[Special.]—June Collyer, film actress, and Stuart Erwin, movie comedian, today announced the expected birth of a child in September. Miss Collyer is a daughter of Clayton Heermance, New York attorney, and granddaughter of Dan Collyer, well known stage figure of a prior generation. She and Erwin were married at Yuma last July.

WAR EXPERIENCE CAUSED DIVORCE, FATHER CHARGES

Sues to Set Aside Decree Given Son-in-Law.

The experiences of a young mother trapped with her 7 year old son in Tientsin, China, during the revolution of 1927, led to her divorce four years later, it was charged yesterday when her father began an action before Superior Judge Harry B. Miller to set aside the decree.

The father is Martin Nordegg, retired banker of Ottawa, Canada, and Berlin, Germany. His daughter is Mrs. Marcelle N. May. The son, Walton, is now 12 years old. Her former husband is Arthur G. May, 1129 Washington boulevard, an official of the Standard Oil company.

Wife Is in Sanitarium.

None of the principals in the drama appeared yesterday. Mrs. May is now in a Berlin sanitarium. Her husband and son are in New York City and Nordegg is in Ottawa. Attorney Arthur Hall, Nordegg's attorney, filed the bill which seeks to make his client guardian of Mrs. May. At the same time he asked permission to file suit to set aside her husband's divorce decree, granted three months ago on grounds of desertion.

"At the time the divorce bill was heard Mrs. May was in a sanitarium in Germany with a mental disorder brought onu by her experiences in China," the lawyer said.

"She and her son were held in Tientsin for several months before they could be taken to safety. At that time May was stationed in Tientsin.

"Two years later Mrs. May's father visited her and discovered her condition. He sent her to Berlin and placed her in the care of alienists. At the time of the divorce she was unable to defend her rights."

Married in 1918.

Attorney Walter P. Murphy, counsel for May, told Judge Miller that the couple had married in New York City in December, 1918. In 1930, Attorney Murphy said, Mrs. May instituted divorce proceedings in Reno, Nev. These were dropped because her husband was in China and she was unable to obtain service on him. She then returned to Germany. When May filed his suit last year, the lawyer said, he was unable to communicate with his wife.

U. of C. Senior Named Best Commerce School Scholar

Tony Alic, 2243 South St. Louis avenue, a senior in the school of commerce, University of Chicago, has been named the best scholar in the commerce school. With the title he was awarded the scholarship key of the Delta Sigma Pi fraternity. Winton Hanson of Duluth was awarded the Alpha Kappa Psi key for personality and interest in school activities and scholarship.

ROBS GIRL IN BAKERY.

A bandit entered the Scotch bakery, 544 North Michigan avenue, yesterday, made an inquiry about some wine cakes, and then drew a revolver and robbed Miss Cora Dorhan, the manager, of $48.

VIENNA FINANCE DICTATOR OUT; TAXES TOO HIGH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, May 20.—Hugo Breitner, finance dictator of Vienna, resigned his office today. Breitner's experiments with finances of the Austrian capital aroused world wide attention in the last few years. By high direct taxation he built up 60,000 new apartments for workers where the tenants pay $2 a month rent, pleasing the Socialists, but incurring the wrath of the Conservatives.

Breitner resigned because his own Socialist party turned against him. Moving picture houses threatened to close down on June 15, if taxes were not lowered. The larger movie palaces of Vienna are owned by the city of Vienna.

Breitner lats has agreed to stay in office until December, when he reaches the age of 60.

BOUND OVER AS ROBBERS.

SERRITELLA SENT TO COUNTY JAIL FOR YEAR'S TERM

Hochstein Also Is Given Cell Sentence.

Daniel Serritella, state senator and former city sealer under a previous régime, who is generally referred to in political circles as Al Capone's representative in public office, and Harry Hochstein, his former first assistant, were given the maximum sentences of 1 year each in the county jail and a fine of $2,000 yesterday afternoon by Judge James J. Kelly in Criminal court.

JUDGE JAMES J. KELLY. [Wallinger Photo.]

The sentences imposed by the judge were the maximum allowed under the verdict returned by the jury, which several weeks ago found the defendants guilty of a gigantic conspiracy to allow merchants to mulct the public of millions of dollars by short weighting. The judge overruled the new trial motions advanced by the political leaders' attorneys prior to imposing the sentences.

Judge Imposes Legal Limit.

The jury at the outset had in its power to inflict a maximum sentence of five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $2,000 each. However, only a general verdict of guilty was found by the jury and under this verdict the judge was limited in the sentence he could impose. He gave the limit.

"If the defendants are guilty of the crime as they were found by the jury the maximum punishment of 1 year each in the county jail and fines of $2,000 each are not, in my opinion, unusual, cruel, harsh or inhuman," said the judge. "The judgment of the court will therefore be that the sentences of each defendant will be one year each in the county jail and a fine of $2,000 each."

The political leaders, who started to lose their jaunty attitude at the time Judge Kelly answered the arguments of their high priced attorneys, which indicated he was going to impose a sentence, seemed completely crushed by the severe penalty imposed.

Serritella Hurries Out.

Hochstein, always the more jovial of the two, leaned over and said something in a whisper to the surly state senator. Serritella grunted in reply got to his feet and gave his belt a hitch, grabbed for his hat and started from the courtroom. Some of his swarthy henchmen, who were seated nearby, formed a circle around him and escorted him from the building. The performance was said by some police officers to have been a duplicate of the way Capone was escorted from the courtroom when he was tried before Judge Wilkerson for income tax dodging.

Serritella, who was dressed in a dark suit, could not be reached by reporters to ask for a statement. Hochstein, a political lieutenant in the bloody 20th ward of Morris Eller, who was also a cabinet officer in the same city régime as Serritella, refused to make any statement. He wore a light gray suit, and his flashy green tie sported as flashy a diamond.

Subject to Impeachment.

Serritella, according to Assistant State's Attorneys Harold Keele and Henry Seyfarth, who prosecuted the case, is now subject to impeachment proceedings in the state senate if his associates in that body desire to institute efforts to oust him.

Judge Kelly allowed the motion of Defense Attorney Michael Ahern for a 90 day stay of mittimus and appeal. The defendants were allowed to remain at liberty pending the appeal on the same bonds of $2,500 each. The prosecution made no motion to increase the bond.

Attorney Ahern, who also represented Capone in his vain fight to escape the federal penitentiary, advanced a dozen different technical reasons for a new trial for his client. Among the reasons was that Serritella was prejudiced before the jury by the bringing of Capone's name into the trial. He contended that it was reversible error for the jury to have been told that some of the foodstuffs obtained by Serritella was sent to Capone's soup kitchen on South State street.

Capone's Name Enters.

Judge Kelly, however, said that the defense attorneys had opened the door for the state to bring in both Capone's name and that of Phil D'Andrea, who was his bodyguard and was sentenced to the county jail for carrying firearms at the Capone trial. He said that the defense could not complain of its own actions.

Prosecutor Keele answered the defense arguments one by one and ended up with the statement that "most of the reasons advanced are spurious ones." Following this Judge Kelly started to analyze each point made by the defense. It was evident from the start that he was going to impose a sentence.

"I do not think any error was committed by the court," he said. The judge spoke in a soft tone of voice, which is not characteristic of him. Usually his voice can be heard without any difficulty all over the large courtrooms, but it was necessary for the defendants to lean forward to catch the soft spoken judicial words.

Declares Trial Is Fair.

"The defense contends that there was poison injected into this case," he continued. "I can't conceive of how any poison would come into this case. The defense tried out everything before this jury from the newspapers to the Secret Six. I do not believe that even the defendants, down in their hearts, do not believe that they obtained a fair trial."

As to whether the state proved a conspiracy was a question of fact for the jury to find, the judge said. The defense was given the benefit of every possible instruction. Following this resumé of the defense the judge started to discuss the possible punishments and Attorney Ahern broke in to suggest a possible fine without imprisonment. The judge ignored his suggestion and pointed out that the jury could have in the first instance given a five year penalty, but instead had referred the question to him with a limitation of one year in jail as the maximum.

"Death Blow to Gangs."

"This is about the death blow to the Capone gang," said Prosecutor Keele. "The evidence proved beyond a question of doubt the connection between Capone and Serritella. Between the government officials and our office we have certainly put considerable of a crimp in the Capone gang in the last year."

Judge Kelly, who imposed the sentence, was one of the judges who presided in the sanitary district graft conspiracy case wherein he expressed the principle that any politician caught grafting public moneys should be given the maximum punishment. In that case Timothy J. Crowe, Democratic leader, was given the maximum sentence of five years in the penitentiary.

Charges Against Serritella.

The evidence in the Serritella trial showed that the political leader used his office to fix short weight tickets in return for contributions, he said they were campaign contributions, but the prosecution contended they were for his own enrichment. He also took foodstuffs from the merchants, whose scales he was to supervise, to feed his constituents and ward heelers.

During the year 1930, after Serritella and Hochstein had perfected their organization and had obtained contributions, no short weight arrests were made. The prosecution, however, found more than 200 short weight instances in a couple of weeks when the investigation started. Many of them were in chain stores.

GERMANY ADDS NEW TAX TO PAY FOR JOBLESS DOLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 20.—The government tonight was putting the finishing touches to the reorganization of unemployment finance which will be enforced in an emergency decree next week. It is estimated 5,900,000 persons will be unemployed in the financial year of 1932-'33, involving expenditures of 720 million dollars.

Contribution to the unemployment insurance fund by employers and employed persons is expected to produce 260 million dollars. The government will contribute 210 million dollars for "crisis support" to be paid by local councils to the jobless after the dole expires, while local councils must raise 162 million dollars for the dole.

The "crisis tax" will be prolonged to produce 11 million dollars. A new "occupation tax" will yield 77 million dollars. The "occupation tax" must be paid by persons earning over $70 monthly and will be calculated on 1½ per cent of the income. The full dole payments will be cut from 20 weeks to 13 weeks and the poll tax will be prolonged.

2 Killed; Protest Dole Cut.

WALTERSHAUSEN, Germany, May 20.—(AP)—Two demonstrators were killed and seven policemen and twelve others wounded, when the unemployed attempted to rush the town hall today after a 10 per cent cut in the dole was announced. The police had to shoot into the throng.

WHITE, SHOWMAN, TO MEET UNION LEADERS HERE

Following the circulation of handbills branding him unfair to organized labor, George White, theatrical producer, last night announced that he would explain his position at a meeting with union executives in Mayor Cermak's office. Friction arose over the employment of cashiers for his "Scandals," to be shown at the Civic Opera house.

A stench bomb was exploded in the theater early Wednesday morning. According to a spokesman for White, this followed a visit from a man who identified himself as Peter Stroth and said he was business agent for the Theater Cashiers, Ushers and Doormen's union. He demanded that members of his organization be employed as cashiers. He was told that White had cashiers in his own organization. At union headquarters it was said that Peter Stroth was unknown. James Petrillo of the musicians' union and George Brown of the stage hands' union have been invited to the meeting today.

"I have offered to pay the union treasurers while my own box office men handle the receipts," he declared. "This arrangement has been refused by the Chicago treasurers, who insist upon working in my office. I will not be dictated to by a lot of Chicago hoodlums."

CLEARED

Mrs. Mary G. Ford, New York public school teacher, who satisfied officials when questioned about her conversation with Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, that she had no connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

CONDON TALKS; PASTOR WON'T; CURTIS CHECKED

Grand Jury Hears Jafsie's $50,000 Story.

New York, May 20.—[Special.]—Dr. John F. Condon told the Bronx county grand jury for two hours today of the negotiations which resulted in his paying $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money to a Scandinavian named "John" in a Bronx cemetery for the return of the stolen baby which later was found murdered.

The Rev. H. Dobson Peacock, rector of Christ Episcopal church in Norfolk, Va., declined once more to go to New Jersey to tell of his association with John H. Curtis, bogus negotiator.

And in the garage of Col. Lindbergh's estate near Hopewell, N. J., officials directing the hunt for the kidnapers and murderers of the aviator's baby son sought more data on Curtis' whole connection with the case.

Continue Check on Curtis.

In his afternoon bulletin Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey state police, disclosed that detectives were still checking up on Curtis' movements on the night of April 2, when the ransom money was paid. On Thursday he had announced that "a clean bill of health" had been given Curtis in connection both with the actual kidnaping and the ransom.

In the afternoon Schwarzkopf said the investigation of Curtis' movements on April 2 would not be completed for several days. Tonight he reported that Curtis was at his hotel in New York on that night and said that Curtis' actions were accounted for.

"There is nothing that would indicate that Mr. Curtis was connected either with the kidnaping or the collection of the ransom," Schwarzkopf declared.

Rumor Threat Against Curtis.

Col. Schwarzkopf had explained earlier in the day that Curtis' entire story—his elaborate and circumstantial fiction of rendezvous at sea with gangsters who had Col. Lindbergh's baby on board in the care of a nurse—was being investigated. This investigation includes the questioning of friends and associates of Curtis in Norfolk, Philadelphia, and other cities before the kidnaping as well as since.

There have been reports that Curtis' fantastic hoax originated in the machinations of rum runners with whom Curtis had dealings through his boat building business at Norfolk.

One report was that Curtis had incurred the enmity of a group of rum runners against whom he had testified at Norfolk long before the kidnaping; that they had threatened Curtis and his family with death, and that Curtis had seized upon the Lindbergh kidnaping in the belief that the gangsters would not dare harm him while he was ostensibly engaged in the search.

Curtis Still in Jail.

Curtis remained in the Hunterdon county jail at Flemington, N. J., awaiting the action of the grand jury on charges that he gave false information for the purpose of hindering the search for the kidnapers.

It was reported in Norfolk that friends were arranging to hire an attorney for him. His wife, who has suffered from the shock of his exposure, is under a physician's care.

The New Jersey police again evinced eagerness to have Mr. Peacock journey to New Jersey to confront Curtis, and Schwarzkopf announced that the clergyman's expenses would be paid.

Peacock Refuses to Help.

To this Mr. Peacock replied in Norfolk that he still did not intend to go and said his legal advisers have told him that he should not go.

A paid public notice published in the New York Times attracted attention as possibly connected with the Lindbergh case.

"Citizen—Guarantee absolute confidence, Jimmy."

The notice was said to have been inserted on order of Police Commissioner Mulrooney.

MEANS' $100,000 HOARD SOUGHT IN CHICAGOLAND

Trail Mrs. McLean's Ransom Fund.

Federal agents for several days have been following the old trails of Gaston B. Means through Chicagoland, seeking the hiding place of the $100,000 which the ex-convict and one time department of justice operative is alleged to have obtained from Mrs. Edward B. McLean on representations that he could ransom the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

Mrs. McLean, Washington society matron, had Means arrested on a charge of embezzling the money which she turned over to him in currency. On his arraignment in the District of Columbia Supreme court he pleaded not guilty and was released on bonds of $50,000.

Chicago Trip Starts Hunt.

The federal investigators have learned that Means, between the time of receipt of the $100,000 early in March and his arrest on May 5, made a trip to Chicago. He had numerous contacts here between 1915 and 1919, when he was involved in the tangled threads of tragedy in connection with the death of Mrs. Maude Robinson King, widow of the millionaire, James C. King.

It is believed Means may have placed the McLean ransom money with some former friend or associate here. One of the places visited by the investigators was the Northern Trust company, which was executor of the James C. King will and which successfully fought an attempt of Means to have declared legal another purported will that would have given him a million dollars.

Hunt Means' Secretary.

William S. Miller, vice president and general counsel for the trust company, said yesterday he had furnished the names of several persons who were connected with the will case, but added that he had not heard of Means being here since about a year ago.

The federal agents are believed to be seeking, particularly, Elmer W. Jarnecke, a former Chicagoan who was once secretary to the versatile Means. Jarnecke testified against his employer in the bribery case which resulted in a two year term in Atlanta penitentiary for Means.

Jarnecke once resided at 506 Clifton avenue, Park Ridge, but his distant cousin of the same name, a farmer living near Bensenville, asserted that he had not heard from the ex-secretary since 1921.

Cousins Often Confused.

Farmer Elmer Jarnecke complained that he had been subjected to numerous embarrassments through being mistaken for the cousin.

Means' dealings with the King family gave North Carolina one of its most sensational murder trials and Chicago one of its most stirring will cases. The principal characters in the whole affair were Mr. King, pioneer lumber merchant, his much younger widow, and Means.

BOY, 11, MUST WORRY ALONG ON $36,000 A YEAR!

New York, May 20.—(AP)—A surrogate ruled today that $36,000 a year would be just enough for 11 year old Marcus Daly III., grandson of the Montana copper king, to worry along on for the present.

The income from a trust fund left by his grandfather will be about $96,500 this year. His mother, Mrs. Lele H. Daly, asked permission to spend $43,781 of it. She explained that $30,521 would go for the boy's share of maintenance of their Park avenue home and $13,260 would go for his personal expenses.

Here's what she said the little fellow needed:

Clothing, $3,000; dentistry, $1,000; pocket money, $280; trip to Europe, trip to his grandmother's home in Montana, and rental of a summer home, amounts unstated.

The boy's legal guardian said he thought $30,000 would be plenty.

"He ought to learn that money must be saved," Louis C. Haggerty said, opposing the figures. "His financial as well as moral interest should be guarded. It is not to his interest that he enjoy every possible luxury now."

So Surrogate Foley split the difference.

MERRIAM MAKES UNION OF LOCAL UNITS SEEM EASY

Name Same Heads for All, He Tells Lawmakers.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago said yesterday to a legislative subcommittee on taxation and expenditures that the way is open now for the consolidation of some of the manifold functions of various local governments without constitutional or statutory amendment.

He surprised the legislators, Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg and Senators Martin R. Carlson and Adelbert H. Roberts, who were joined by State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett, also a member of the general commission, by saying that effective consolidation of the park boards of Chicago with the city government and the county forest preserve could be accomplished merely by the appointment of the same set of individuals in each instance.

Applies Plan to Police.

Then he staggered them further by showing that the same method applied to the police forces within the city and the county would produce not only economy of administration, but also improved service in the prevention and detection of crime.

"It is entirely feasible," said Dr. Merriam, "to bring about the consolidation of the park boards with the city by appointment of a board composed of members of the city government, either from the administration or from the city council.

"If the governor and the judges of the Circuit court were agreed on the choice of five persons as members of the several park boards, these five, let us say, A, B, C, D, and E being members of the mayor's cabinet; or, let us say, F, G, H, I, and J being members of the city council, and constituting a central park board, the consolidation would be an accomplished fact. And the same persons might without any legal difficulty be named as the forest preserve commissioners.

Sheriff and Chief Would Be One.

"The same thing, in principle, might be done with the various police forces. The commissioner of police of Chicago might be made chief of police for a variety of districts, beginning with the various park police systems and running through a number of adjacent towns and cities.

"It would be possible further to designate the commissioner as sheriff of Cook county or vice versa, with a still further consolidation of authority. Under such an arrangement the police forces of the community would be placed under a unified command, with the operating advantages arising from a central command, and economies resulting from elimination of duplicate services.

"Engineering, legal and other services and the purchase of materials and supplies could be treated on the same basis if there were the will to do so, and if other considerations were not more weighty than the saving of money and the increase of efficiency in service; and all this without any change in the statutes."

Could Control Budgets.

Dr. Merriam also told the committee it would be possible without legislative enactment to set up an advisory board of estimate and apportionment which would control the size of local budgets.

"A committee," he said, "might be chosen by the various local governments to pass on all proposed budgets, bond or tax warrant issues, applications for financial aid from any of the constituent governments.

"Such a group might take the initiative in organizing systems of accounting and reporting, undertaking long time financial programs, long time programs of public works and improvements on a coöperative basis, and in using its friendly offices for the promotion of all sorts of coöperation and better understanding between otherwise noncoöperative groups of governments."

RECTOR ADMITS BRINGING GIRL INTO HIS HOME

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 20.—Admitted by his own counsel to be a "troublesome busybody" and an unconventional uplift worker, the Rev. Harold F. Davidson, rector of Stiffkey, today took the stand in his own defense in the consistory court, where he is being tried on charges of immorality. The 62 year old rector bluntly denied that he had ever seduced any of the considerable number of destitute girls whom he professed to rescue.

THE REV. H. F. DAVIDSON.
[Assoc. Press Photo.]

The rector is fighting to retain his parish against the accusations of the bishop of Norwich, who is seeking to unfrock him on official allegations "of protracted immorality and molestation of young women."

Recites His Career.

After the accused preacher had entered positive denials of charges of adultery, he launched into a long narrative of his career. At the beginning, the Rev. Mr. Davidson testified, it was divided between Oxford, where he was studying holy orders, and the stage, where he worked to earn money to defray his university expenses. While on the stage, he said, he always sought out the vicar of the parish in the town he was playing and managed to get in a few hours of charitable visiting among the poor, sick, and blind.

After he went to Stiffkey, he obtained a permit from the church authorities to continue his work in London where he was allowed to maintain a residence. It was during his rescue work among girls threatened with lives of prostitution that he said he became acquainted with Rose Ellis, whom he is accused of keeping as his mistress for ten years.

The Rev. Mr. Davidson said he became Miss Ellis' legal guardian and installed her in the rectory, where at one time she remained for three months, with the full consent of his wife.

"She was diseased when I met her and I saw to her treatment," the rector testified, adding that she was underdeveloped mentally and an "extremely hard case to control."

Took Girls to Paris.

He also testified that he had taken Miss Ellis and other girls to Paris, but only to get them jobs.

The opening speech of the defense counsel, R. F. Levy, occupied eight and a half hours. It was chiefly devoted today to a scathing attack on Barbara Harris, a pretty, self-confessed street girl, who is the bishop's chief witness against the rector.

Mr. Levy brought up the issue of whether the Rev. Mr. Davidson wears pajamas or the old fashioned nightshirt in an effort to impeach the testimony of Miss Harris. The counsel said she had, in the course of her evidence, referred to a pair of pajamas in the rector's room.

"The rector never wore pajamas and I will so prove," Mr. Levy cried. "She was lying out of malice and biting the hand that fed her."

THE CONSISTORY COURT.

The consistory court, in which the rector of Stiffkey is being tried, is one wherein a bishop of the Church of England brings charges against the pastors, and sometimes the laymen, of his diocese.

The court has no status in law, yet it has great powers in the clerical life of the country. It is before this body that rectors and vicars of the bishopric must answer when summoned on charges of unorthodoxy, maladministration of their parishes, or of immorality.

The consistory courts are founded on ancient religious custom and still possess in their jurisdiction a remnant of an olden power over laymen, whom bishops could at one time bring to account for heresy or immorality. They can still try laymen for brawling in a church or churchyard.

The extreme penalty these courts can impose upon clergymen is deposition from holy orders, commonly called unfrocking. This is the greatest penalty which can be enforced against the rector of Stiffkey. Bishops are ex-officio judges of their courts, but in practice they never sit. Their judicial power is transferred to the chancellor of the diocese, who is also the bishop's vicar general. Qualification for this office requires a minimum of seven years' practice in the courts as a barrister.

The chancellor is assisted by five assessors when the charges are of a criminal character. They are judges of fact only.

The bishop and the accused are represented before the consistory court by counsel and evidence is given under oath. Appeal from consistory court decisions in the province of Canterbury are taken before the Court of Arches, and in the province of York before the Provincial Court of York. Unsuccessful appeals in these courts may be taken to the judicial committee of the king's privy council.

WEDS AND GETS $1,000,000

MR. AND MRS. BEN MANIERRE JR.

Cousin Was Guardian

Benjamin Manierre Jr., grandson of George Manierre, who was born in Chicago in 1845 and accumulated a fortune in the real estate business before he died in 1924, reached his 21st birthday and was married last Sunday. Yesterday he appeared with his bride, Ella Mary Manierre, before Joseph J. Lisack, assistant to Probate Judge Horner, and received an inheritance of more than $1,000,000 from the estates of his father and grandfather.

Young Manierre said that he was through school and living in New York, but wasn't certain where he and his bride, a Massachusetts girl, will make their home. "We may go to Hawaii, or Europe, or Alaska, or Florida," she said.

The youth's guardian was his first cousin, Francis E. Manierre, a member of the real estate company of Dibblee and Manierre, of which their grandfather was a founder. The estate consisted of $74,000 in Liberty bonds, $4,000 in other securities, $35,216 in cash, and a share with other heirs in a dozen pieces of loop real estate. Young Manierre's share of the rentals was approximately $100,000 a year up to 1930, his cousin reported to the court.

WOMEN APPLAUD RESULT OF WET CAMPAIGN DRIVE

It took the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform two years to sign up 63,000 members in Illinois—yet it took only five days of this week's intensive campaigning to add 70,000 more, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, co-chairmen for the states, announced yesterday from headquarters at 700 North Michigan. So tremendous has been the response to the membership drive that plans are now under way, they added, to extend the drive indefinitely. The state membership is now 133,000.

"We wish to emphasize," a statement from the co-chairmen said yesterday, "that this drive will be continued until repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Definite plans are now under way to open booths and to cover new territories which we have not been able to reach this week, despite the willingness of our workers and their efforts."

CUBA'S 'REVOLT' FIZZLES AS RAIN DRENCHES ISLAND

Machado Defies Foes to Oust Him.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, May 20.—Returning unexpectedly from his country home during a rainstorm, President Gerardo Machado remained secluded in the palace this afternoon and presided over an impromptu ceremony in which Jose Izuierdo, chief of police of the central district of Havana, delivered to Machada a scroll bearing a resolution making him an "adopted son of Havana."

The general public and newspaper men were forbidden admittance to the reception rooms and even were prevented from entering the palace for unknown reasons.

Defies His Enemies.

"I will not resign in spite of present or future conspiracies," President Machado said after the ceremony. "My opponents must kill me or I will remain president for my full constitutional 10 year term, ending one minute to 12 o'clock noon, May 20, 1935.

"My motto for the next three years is 'I will either glorify myself through a drastic political and economic policy for the utmost protection of Cuban interests or I will get killed.' Revolutions in Cuba are past and there will never be another if I can help it.

"I am fully aware of the existence of revolutionists and communists, some acting in good faith and some in bad. I have forgiven those who have made attempts on my life on various occasions, but I will never forgive those who are now working against the stability and honor of my country. I respect the rights of opponents, even those of my personal enemies, but I will surely punish those responsible for the republic's economic and political ruin."

Independence Day Quiet.

Contrasted with the traditional May 20 Independence day celebrations, the day was conspicuous by their absence. People remained at home, the streets were deserted. There were no fireworks. There were no parades. Flags waved only from government buildings.

Police continued making arrests and searching buildings, offices and homes. The streets were patrolled and army forces were quartered to meet disturbances, but the revolutionary and communist uprisings scheduled for today failed to materialize.

Fear 50 Entombed Men Dead; No Signs of Life

TEMUCO, Chile, May 20.—(AP)—There were no signs of life today from Las Raices tunnel, in which fifty men have been trapped by a landslide for more than seventy hours, and it was feared that every one of them had died. Rescue workers were dynamiting the wall of rocks clogging the mouth of the tube, but gases caused many cases of partial asphyxiation and the men had to work in short reliefs. The weather was bitter cold.

DR. GECHT TELLS HOW KIDNAPERS TRAPPED COUPLE

Victim Testifies Against Ex-Prosecutor.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Jim Bradovich, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Henry Key, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory; George Chuck, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; John Gavrila, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Miles Demitt, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the county jail by Judge Walter Stanton.

James Anderton, incest, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Edward Pust and Herbert Green, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge George Fred Rush.

The strange story of the kidnaping of Dr. Max Gecht, 749 Diversey parkway, and his wife, Georgia, on Dec. 10, 1931, was told in full detail for the first time yesterday. Dr. Gecht, a stocky, bespectacled man, told the story vividly from the witness stand in Judge Philip Sullivan's Criminal court.

DR. MAX GECHT.

Two defendants, charged with kidnaping for ransom, stared at the physician as he testified. They were Attorney Ward Swalwell, former friend of Dr. Gecht, and Edward Finnen. Two other defendants on Thursday pleaded guilty with the hope of getting sentences of life imprisonment and avoiding the death penalty.

Trapped by Flirtation.

The doctor pictured the kidnapers acting at one time with bungling timidity and again with bravado. One of the kidnapers, Gus Sanger, succumbed to the charms of the comely and blond Mrs. Gecht during her detention in a Palos Park bungalow. His attempt to make a date with her after the Gechts had been released and had paid $2,000 ransom resulted in the entrapment of the entire gang.

Sanger has turned state's evidence and will be the chief prosecution witness.

Dr. Gecht showed no nervousness as he talked. He is one of the first victims to face his abductors in an American court since the criminal element of the country began to realize the profits of the kidnaping racket.

He was questioned by Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks, who, with Assistant Prosecutor Ross Lee Laird, is presenting the case against Swalwell and Finnen.

"Do you know the defendant, Swalwell?" Dr. Gecht was asked, after he had answered preliminary questions concerning his business.

"I knew him about five years," said the witness. Swalwell, a short, dappei man with a small, black mustache, regarded the physician steadily. He showed no traces of the nervousness which characterized his last appearance in court. At that time he was trembling and garrulous.

Tells About Phone Calls.

"On the evening of Dec. 10 last, the night I was kidnaped, Ward Swalwell called me on the telephone about 6 o'clock," Dr. Gecht testified. "He asked me where I was going to be that night. I said I didn't know, that I would know later.

"He called me again at 6:30 p. m. and I told him then that I was going to my south side office at 435 West 119th street. He then asked me where Georgia, my wife, would be. I said she would be with me.

"I asked him why he wanted to know and he said he wanted to see me. That was not unusual. He often drove around with me."

Q.—Did you go to the south side office? A.—Yes. About 8 o'clock, my wife and I got into my coupe and drove out. When we got to the office, my wife called my attention to the fact that two cars were parked there and the occupants were whistling to each other.

Car Forced to Curb.

Q.—How long did you stay at the office? A.—Until about 11 o'clock. As we drove away up State street the two cars followed and one of them forced us to the curb near 98th place.

The physician then said that a man he now knows as Bill Thomas, one of the defendants who pleaded guilty, came over to the Gecht car, opened the door, prodded Dr. Gecht in the ribs with a pistol and ordered him to get out of the car.

"I asked, 'Who are you?'" the physician testified. "Thomas said they were from the state's attorney's office. I asked to see his badge. He fumbled with his coat for a moment, then said: 'Never mind about the badge. Get out.'"

The physician told the jury that he refused to get out of the car and that Thomas, apparently baffled, went back to his automobile and talked with its occupants. He returned, again requested the physician and his wife to get out of the car, and was again refused.

Kidnaper Fires Shots.

"I then offered to follow them to the state's attorney's office if they were really state's attorney's men," the doctor testified. "We all drove off, the two cars hemming me in. I tried to put on speed and get away, but Thomas fired two shots at the car and I stopped. This time they forced us to get out of the car.

"They put us in the rear of one of the automobiles with Thomas sitting between us. I said to them: 'If it's money you want, my wife has $142.' She handed them the money and Thomas said: 'That's not the kind of money we want. We want big money.'"

Make Couple Lie on Floor.

The physician and his wife were then made to lie on the floor. The driver of the car, identified as Neil Montague, another defendant, who escaped from jail after arrest, talked about taking them to St. Louis. After a half hour ride the car stopped and Dr. and Mrs. Gecht were allowed to get up. They found themselves in a garage.

"They called me Maxie all the time," the physician testified. "The only person who ever called me that was Swalwell. I asked them why they were picking on me and one of them said: 'We're going to take a lot of doctors one by one'."

Dr. Gecht will resume his testimony today.

Attorney Irving Breakstone, Dr. Gecht's lawyer, testified at the morning session concerning the negotiations for ransom after Dr. Gecht and his wife were released. Swalwell acted as pay off man to the gang after he had made Dr. Gecht promise he would not notify the authorities, the witness testified.

Gangster Volpe Declares He's an Honest Florist

Anthony (Mops) Volpe, 1500 North Menard avenue, one of the original public enemies, was arrested by a police squad yesterday at 15th street and Wabash avenue. Although Volpe asserted that he was earning a living legitimately as a florist, the police held him for a detective bureau showup.

DICTAPHONE EVIDENCE ADMITTED IN PARKER TRIAL AFTER WRANGLE

Peoria, Ill., May 20. — [Special.] — Evidence illustrating the contribution of science to crime detection, linking for the first time the name of James W. Betson, ex-detective, politician, and Ku Klux Klan regalia salesman, to the kidnaping and holding of Dr. James W. Parker for $50,000 ransom, was ruled competent late today by Judge Henry J. Ingram.

JAMES W. BETSON.

The jury was excluded during the day while witnesses told of tapping telephone wires, placing a dictaphone in a man's private office, and snatching secret telephone numbers from the wires with an electric "ticker."

A storm of legal wrangling broke during the morning when Roy Steffens of the Chicago detective bureau testified he heard Joseph Pursifull, lawyer, ex-school teacher, and author of text books on married love, talking in his office in the Jefferson building at 10:45 a. m. March 30 by means of a dictaphone planted there.

The judge, the prosecutor, and the seven defense lawyers furiously searched the law books. They called Attorney General Carlstrom's office and also Assistant State's Attorney Granville, evidence expert in State's Atorney Swanson's office, but they could find no law on the dictaphone.

So Judge Ingram decided to hear the questionable evidence and then decided it was admissible.

City Demands Share of Phone Royalties for Subsidiaries

That the American Telephone and Telegraph company obtains funds from its subsidiary companies for radio research, yet makes no return to the companies when royalties are received, was brought out yesterday before Federal Judge Wilkerson in the cross-examination of Charles A. Heiss, controller of the American company, testifying in the telephone rate suit.

B. F. GOLDSTEIN.

Because of this withholding of royalties and other acts of high finance, the Chicago phone rates are kept at a high level, according to Attorney Benjamin F. Goldstein, special counsel for the city, who conducted the cross-examination. The suit, which has been in the courts for nine years, involves the possible refund of $21,000,000 to telephone subscribers who had certain classes of coin box services since 1923.

The facts as to the royalties, Goldstein brought out, were as follows:

From 1923 to 1931 the American Telephone and Telegraph company charged the entire cost of radio research and development — more than $9,000,000—to the subsidiary companies, including the Illinois Bell Telephone company. Royalties from this work aggregated $5,229,141 for the same years.

No refund from the royalties has been given the companies, Goldstein developed, nor will any be made during the life of the patents, which has several years to run.

Another point made during the cross-examination was that the A. T. & T. company charges the Illinois Bell company 8 per cent on all money given it, while for money loaned other subsidiaries the interest rate has been 5.88 per cent or less. This practice, Goldstein contended, has entered into the Chicago subscriber's rates to the extent of $1,750,000 annually since 1923.

Mr. Heiss admitted that the A. T. & T. company purchased more than one billion dollars worth of stock in the Bell system and that in the case of the Illinois Bell and most of the other companies, it receives 3 per cent dividends. Goldstein's questioning brought out that the A. T. & T. company was borrowing money from 1923 to 1931 at rates of interest which varied from 6.25 to 6.73 per cent.

The hearing, ordered by the United States Supreme court, may continue for a month longer. The Illinois Bell is seeking to make permanent a temporary injunction restraining the Illinois commerce commission from enforcing lower rates which it ordered in 1923. The city, represented by Mr. Goldstein and George I. Haight, carried the case to the Supreme court, which ordered the additional testimony now being taken.

DAIRY PROMISES 9c MILK AFTER PLANT IS BOMBED

Sales Manager Tells of Company's Plans.

Officials of the Meadowmoor Dairy company, 1334 South Peoria street, yesterday announced plans to sell milk at 9 cents a quart, 2 cents under the price charged by other dealers in the Chicago area. The officials said they would be able to make a profit of $1,000 a day at the reduced price.

The announcement followed by a few hours an attempt to bomb the dairy which is being equipped so that retail deliveries can start May 25. The bombing occurred early in the morning. Max Rosen, 1350 South Peoria street, a watchman, was making his rounds when a bomb was hurled through a window. He pitched it into the street an instant before it exploded. No damage was done other than the breaking of several windows.

Guards Sent to Plant.

Capt. Philip Parodi of the Maxwell station sent guards to the plant to prevent further vandalism. Meanwhile Sergt. Edward Balata called in J. L. Sleph, 1235 Lunt avenue, sales manager of the concern, and obtained the following information:

C. C. Davis, who has been in the milk business twenty years, in the state of Washington and more recently near Eau Claire, Wis., is the organizer of the new firm and its financial backer. The company is capitalized at $50,000. It has rented a building that had been vacant four years and is spending $300,000 on equipment. The plant will have a capacity of 100,000 bottles of milk a day.

Contracts have been made for milk from six sources in Wisconsin, Sleph said. Tank cars will bring the milk to Chicago and tank trucks will haul it from the railroad yards to the plant, he explained.

Asks for 1,000 Drivers.

"We went to the milk wagon drivers' union and said we needed 1,000 men," Sleph told Capt. Parodi. "Robert G. Fitchie, president of the union, said, 'You'll not get one union driver. Whatever business you might get would be taken away from some other dealer and we won't stand for that.'"

"So," Sleph continued, "we went to the Employers' association and applied for membership. The Employers' association told us it would furnish us the 1,000 men or any number we needed. We went to the secret six and the Association of Commerce and were promised help from them.

"We made a contract with the William Fullerton Motor Truck service, 1821-1863 West 23d place, to handle all our deliveries. Previously, we had gone to the Pure Milk association to ask about buying milk. We told Don Geyer, the association representative, we could use 200,000 pounds of milk a day and we were entitled to the same wholesale price as the larger dealers. They wouldn't give it to us. But we are ready and are going ahead."

Mr. Geyer declared yesterday that he had on several occasions offered to sell milk from the northern Indiana section to the Meadowmoor Dairy company, but that the company had declined. The milk was to be sold at the regular price, and was to be from farms which formerly supplied the Chicago district, according to Mr. Geyer.

At the offices of the Secret Six it was said no one representing the Meadowmoor company had asked for help or advice.

Questioned about his contract with the Meadowmoor company, Fullerton said he had not agreed to make deliveries to homes. He had only contracted to haul milk from trains and from the plant to stores and restaurants. He doesn't anticipate any trouble with the unions, he said, because he employs union drivers.

The Milk Wagon Drivers union is a branch of the Teamsters' union. His drivers are in another branch, Fullerton said. No union official had discussed his contract with him, he declared. His men are in the union controlled by George "Red" Barker, ex-convict and racketeer, affiliated with the Capone gang.

After being told of Fullerton's statement, Sleph said his company would take care of home deliveries with men furnished by the Employers' association.

Will Deliver to Grocers.

It was reported the Meadowmoor has arranged to deliver milk to the Independent Grocers' Alliance. At the city hall it was said that the company will get its milk from the vicinity of Sun Prairie, Wis. It will be one day old milk when it reaches here. No permit has yet been issued, but the company spokesman said he did not expect opposition.

President Fitchie of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union denied the company had refused 1,000 men.

"They came to me and asked if any milk business in Chicago was for sale," said Fitchie. "I told them I didn't know of any. They did not ask about us furnishing drivers. We'd be glad to do so if they would pay the scale and comply with union conditions."

Woman Follows Lindbergh's Ocean Trail

Map indicates route being followed by Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, American avistrix, who took off from Harbor Grace, N. F., at 4:51 p. m. yesterday, Chicago daylight saving time, for Paris. Mrs. Putnam's flight began at Harbrouck Heights, N. J., at 2:16 p. m. Thursday (Chicago time). She landed at St. John, N. B., at 5:46 p. m. the same day. Taking off from St. John at 7:02 a. m. Friday, she landed at Harbor Grace at 11:31 a. m. and took off for Paris five hours and 20 minutes later. She is due in Paris some time between 5 and 9 o'clock this morning (Chicago time), depending on weather conditions she encounters.

over the Atlantic with the late Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon. At that time Mrs. Putnam [then Miss Earhart] was fêted by the city as its own heroine. She was the guest of honor at a long round of banquets and other functions.

Mrs. Putnam was born in Atchison, Kas., 33 years ago. Her parents moved to Chicago and she received practically her entire earlier education here. After graduating from Hyde Park she attended the Ogontz School for Girls at Philadelphia. She served as a nurse's aid in the Canadian Red Cross throughout 1917 and 1918.

Studied Medicine and Science.

After the war she took a medical and scientific course at Columbia university. A year later she went to California and took up aviation as a sport. At that time she was also engaged as a social worker on the staff of Denison house, Boston, of whose board of directors she was a member.

Following her trans-Atlantic flight she became aviation editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine, and soon after its formation joined Transcontinental Air Transport as an assistant traffic manager.

In between business engagements, she found time to make several flights. Her solo flight across the United States in the fall of 1928 was the first to be made by a woman.

In 1930 she established a world's speed record for women over a closed course at Detroit, averaging 181.16 miles an hour. This record was broken the following year by Ruth Nichols, who moved it up to 210.65 miles an hour over the same course.

On Feb. 7, 1931, Miss Earhart was married to George Palmer Putnam, the publisher, at the home of his mother at Noank, Conn. Mr. Putnam has aided her in her plans to make the present trans-Atlantic flight.

Reichers Back in New York.

New York, May 20.—(AP)—Lou Reichers, who was forced down in the ocean 47 miles off the Irish coast while attempting to fly the Atlantic, returned to New York today aboard Capt. George Fried's ship the President Roosevelt, which rescued him.

First Officer Manning, describing how he picked up Reichers in the darkness, said he had to ram the monoplane to get his lifeboat close enough to take Reichers, who appeared to be dazed, aboard. Capt. Fried said that when the plane struck the water at a speed of 70 miles an hour, the sound was like that of a gun explosion.

Reichers blamed the fog for his failure to reach Ireland and said he would try it again if he had another chance.

Four Shotgun Bandits Get Confectioner's $400

AVIATION NOTES

Air mail schedules between New York, Florida, and South and Central American cities will be speeded up, effective June 1, the postoffice department has announced. Mail will travel from New York to Miami in little more than twelve hours, and to Havana in about seventeen and one-half hours. Transit time from New York to Barranquilla, Colombia, will be one and one-half days; to Bogota, 3 days; to the Canal Zone, 2 days; to Lima, Peru, 4 days; to Buenos Aires, 7 days, and to Rio de Janeiro, 7 days. Mail to other cities will be carried in proportionately less time.

Albert Milham of Watervliet, Mich., yesterday left Chicago on the fastest business trip to Los Angeles, San Francisco, and return on record. He traveled on United Air Lines. Mr. Milham departed at 4:30 p. m. He will be in Los Angeles at noon today, transact his business, and leave at 5:30 p. m. for San Francisco, arriving at 8 p. m. He will leave San Francisco at 11:45 p. m. After doing business there, he will be back in Chicago tomorrow at 11:15 p. m. He will cover 5,513 miles, and will save 5 business days over surface transportation. In fact, he will be back in Chicago before he could reach Los Angeles on a train.

Flying Forecasts

Special flying route forecasts for the period from 9 p. m. May 20 to noon May 21 [Central Standard Time]:

Pleads Cause of Hungry Children in Porto Rico

John W. Mace, representing the governor of Porto Rico, arrived here yesterday to plead the cause of 200,000 children who are near starvation on the island. He was met at the Illinois Central station by members of the Chicago committee of the Porto Rico Child Feeding association, a national group which has just launched a drive for an emergency fund. Clyde F. Armitage is regional director of the committee. Mr. Mace will broadcast over the radio during his stay here, telling of conditions in the island. Tomorrow he will speak at the First Congregational church in Austin, and later in the week will make other talks.

TELL OF RAVAGES CAUSED BY 'CURE' IN CANCER TRIAL

State to Ask 5 Year Term for "Old Doc" Tilton.

The effects of the so-called cancer cure of "Old Doc" Lester Tilton on the hundreds of patients on whom it was used was the subject of opening statements yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge Rudolph F. Desort. Tilton, with Dr. Joseph Duffy and Harry de Joannis, a promoter, is on trial on a charge of conspiracy to violate the public health laws.

Prosecutor Charles A. Bellows said the state would show that Tilton and his associates never cured a cancer, despite their boast that 30,000 persons had been saved by the Tilton treatment. He said evidence would show many of the Tilton patients are dead or dying from the effects of corrosive substances used as medicine.

Asks 5 Year Prison Term.

The state will ask the maximum penalty of five years in prison and a fine of $2,000, Prosecutor Bellows said. He outlined the operations of Tilton at the Felician Sisters convent, 3800 Peterson road, and the Great Northern hotel, where he maintained clinics at different times.

Defense Attorney Irwin Walker said he would produce witnesses to testify to the healing powers of the cure. Tilton, he said, discovered the compound in healing a cancer of his own.

He described De Joannis as a missionary for the cure, said that Duffy was a legitimate diagnostician, and scoffed at the idea that there had been a conspiracy between the three defendants.

Nurse Tells of Cancer Tests.

Miss Ann Krawczyk, a nurse once employed by Tilton in his clinic at the Great Northern hotel, was called as the first witness for the state. She described the Tilton methods in applying his medicines and his means of diagnosing cancer cases. A salve was applied to external sores, she said, and if the tissue was burned in a given time it indicated a cancerous condition according to Tilton. He tested for internal cancers with a compound which the patient drank. If vomiting resulted the "old Doc" was assured that the complaint was cancer and that his treatment was necessary, the nurse said. She failed to remember a case where vomiting was not the result of drinking the Tilton test dose.

The case was started after a long chamber session in which attorneys argued the extent of evidence to be admitted during the trial. A long drawn out hearing was indicated by the statement of Defense Attorney Walker that he would call numerous witnesses to testify that they had been cured.

"Medicine" $8 to $12 Bottle.

Miss Krawczyk testified that $10 was charged for a treatment and $12 and $8 for two bottles of medicine which Tilton termed necessary. In cross-examination the defense attempted to show, without success, that she never had taken orders directly from Tilton.

Mrs. Amelia Clifton, 5651 North Parkside avenue, was called by the state and testified that Tilton treated her for cancer of the breast. The salve he used left a large scar, she said, and she was treated later by a physician. The prosecution was prevented by defense objections from showing what the physician had said concerning the Tilton diagnosis and treatment. Following testimony of Mrs. Clifton, court was adjourned until Monday.

FRANCE HOLDS LEAD IN OREGON OVER HOOVER

Portland, Ore., May 20.—(AP)—Joseph Irwin France of Maryland ran ahead of President Hoover in first returns in the Oregon primary election today.

On the basis of 19 of the 1,783 precincts tonight France had 500 votes and Hoover 327.

On the Democratic side Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt virtually had a clear field. The 19 precincts gave him 101 votes, Gov. William H. Murray 24, and there were three written in for Alfred E. Smith.

The Republican who wins the reference primary will have 13 pledged votes in the national convention and the Democrat ten.

KEEP UP MILK'S QUALITY DESPITE REDUCED PRICE

The reduction in the retail price of milk on May 10, from 12 to 11 cents a quart, has made no difference in the quality of the product delivered to Chicago households, President Bundesen of the board of health said yesterday. Chicago dairies still are delivering milk well above the minimum butterfat requirements set by a city ordinance, he said.

The ordinance fixes 3 per cent as the minimum amount of butterfat required in whole milk. The average of samples tested by the board of health in April was 3.7 per cent. The detailed report of May tests had not been made up yesterday, but samples on hand in the board's laboratory, taken since the price cut was effective ranged between 3.6 and 3.8 per cent.

The ordinance provides that milk may contain no more than 50,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter in winter, or 100,000 per cubic centimeter between May and October. The samples taken in April showed that 95 per cent of the milk in the city contained fewer than 10,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter.

LAUNCH A NEW G. O. P. GROUP LED BY JUDGE LYLE

Under the leadership of Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, the initial meeting of the Cook county Republican party was held last night at the Morrison hotel.

With the slogan of "honest elections," the new organization which is to operate within the Republican party, got off to a flying start with a speech from its leader, who was a candidate for mayor and more recently for state's attorney. The speech emphasized the need for "good public service, economic administration of public affairs, low taxes, relief for unemployment, social service, and the elimination of gangster criminal influence in politics."

More than 1,000 attended the meeting in the Cameo room. Adolph Marks, former state senator from the 1st district, was elected as permanent chairman. The vice chairmen chosen were George H. Meyer, Le Roy Davidson, and Mrs. Jewell B. Organ.

2 REAL ESTATE MEN FORM BOARD OF TAX APPEALS

Appointees Found to Live in Same Hotel.

Two real estate brokers living in the same hotel—the Edgewater Beach—now constitute the Cook county board of tax appeals, the body which under the Kelly bill supplants the old board of review.

The coincidence of occupation and residence was discovered yesterday when Gov. L. L. Emmerson announced that his selection on the board was George F. Nixon, who until recently was identified with the activities of Samuel Insull in real estate.

The governor named one of the "appealers" and the other had been named twenty-four hours earlier by President Emmett Whealan of the county board. Whealan's choice was Fred W. Brummel, head of a real estate firm bearing his name.

Jacobs Fixes Levies.

Comment, particularly of the jesting variety, was to the general effect that real estate at last is to get a square deal and that personal property will have to toe the line, but some recalled that the levies on both classes of property are fixed by County Assessor J. L. Jacobs, who was appointed by President Whealan and Gov. Emmerson, and that there must be agreement between the two members of the board of appeals before an order can be issued for him to alter his figures.

Governor Explains Choice.

"It is my conviction," he said, "that real estate taxpayers, who now are required to pay 80 per cent of all local and state taxes, should have adequate representation on this board.

"I have therefore selected as my appointee George F. Nixon, president of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, director of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and former president of the Chicago Real Estate board.

"Mr. Nixon was a member of the executive committee of the governor's conference on taxation and has been prominently identified with all citizen efforts for tax readjustment during the last ten years. Consequently he is thoroughly conversant with present tax problems. I am convinced that his board interests and his knowledge of business conditions give assurance of his fairness toward all classes of taxpayers."

Accepting the appointment, Mr. Nixon said that he believes it affords "an opportunity to be of great service to the community."

Plow Site of Agriculture Building at World's Fair

Ground was broken yesterday for the World's Fair Agricultural building with a ceremony which dramatized the advance of agriculture during the past century. The one story building will be 628 feet long and 108 feet wide and is located on the northerly island. Dr. A. W. Bitting, in charge of agricultural exhibits, drove a team of oxen attached to the original wooden plow used by P. D. Armour, founder of Armour & Co.

DESPONDENT; KILLS HIMSELF.

Despondent because he had been unable to find work after a two year search, Sverre Farseth, 39 years old, killed himself yesterday by taking poison at his home, 11153 Eggleston avenue.

U. S. SUFFERING FOR LEADERSHIP, SAYS DR. FRANK

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, declared yesterday in a speech before the Executives' club at the Hotel Sherman that the United States is suffering at present from "a famine of adequate leadership."

There is a cynical distrust of planned programs, he added, on the part of followers, with hungry men looking on while surplus food bursts the walls of warehouses.

"Prohibition has gone far beyond the tricky slogans of both wets and drys," he declared. "It is not a question of liquor or no liquor, but of the moral security of American life. Prohibition will continue to make American politics a carnival of disgusting hypocrisy. The people must find a leader to take them out of prohibition corruption as they found Abraham Lincoln to lead them out of the immorality of slavery."

Dies in Dentist's Office After Teeth Are Pulled

George De Foe, 59 years old, 1518 East 63d place, a carpenter, died suddenly last night in a dentist's office after he had had twelve teeth extracted. The extractions were performed under a gas anaesthetic by Dr. George H. Mitchell, 1523 East 63d street. De Foe, after awakening from the anaesthetic, left the dentist chair, and collapsed in another chair. He died a few minutes later, supposedly of a heart attack.

PRESS FIGHTS TO STAY FREE, SAYS COL. M'CORMICK

Cites Present Efforts at Restriction.

Iowa City, Ia., May 20.—[Special.]—After 150 years of freedom of the press, attempts are being made to restrict its power, Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, asserted here tonight.

Col. McCormick, speaking under the auspices of the Don R. Mellett memorial lectureship, pointed out that from the beginning the American press has had an advantage over its European predecessors, inasmuch as it has always been a part of the social system. "The press here," he maintained, "has not risen from below and is not a part of something which went before, as it was in England and France."

He asserted the printing press went along with the first church and school when the territory west of the Alleghenies was settled.

"At that time," he continued, "the government was one of few officials, and there was no ruling class. It is hard to say whether the new governing class is not finding the same impatience with the newspaper that the feudal monarchs found." He questioned also whether the movement during the last decade to restrict the power of the press is not an attempt to "officialize" government.

Cites Efforts to Gag Press.

To substantiate his contention that definite attempts are being made to shackle the American newspapers, Col. McCormick cited the case in which an ineffectual effort was made to maintain a suit against THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for criticism of public officials. He cited what he termed a second case in which a Cleveland judge imprisoned a newspaper man for criticizing him. In both cases, he pointed out, the courts overruled the attempts.

A third instance recalled by Col. McCormick was in Minnesota, where an injunction was granted to stop the publication of a newspaper. Here the state Supreme court upheld the action, but the United States Supreme court overruled it by a vote of five to four.

In comparing the newspaper of the United States to that of England and France, Col. McCormick declared that the newspaper here is not the mouthpiece of any clique. "The widely known but seldom read London Times" was cited as an example of a paper "which has always been published by and for a class."

Give Strength to Opposition.

Despite contrasts, however, the TRIBUNE editor saw one common bond between the free newspaper of American and earliest censored papers of Europe. "Newspapers from the beginning," he maintained, "gave strength to insurrectionary forces against the existing régime. It is not the man in power who wants to cry out," he continued, "but the man who is on the opposite side. Hence one of the greatest powers of the press is in opposition."

He maintained that schools of journalism in the United States had led to establishing journalism as a profession with a code of ethics. The newspaper man's ideal is to become the best man in his field, "and by our standards that ideal is reached only by giving the news accurately," he declared.

Col. McCormick's lecture here was in commemoration of Don R. Mellett, Ohio newspaper editor, who a few years ago was shot in the back by gangsters for criticism of public officials. Nearly 500 persons heard his address at the University of Iowa Memorial union.

N. Y. POLICE SEEK PRETTY GIRLS IN SECRET SERVICE

New York, May 20.—[Special.]—Unwary criminals will be beguiled into the hands of justice by a corps of young, good looking, and well dressed police women under the terms of a local bill discussed by the board of estimate today, which changes the age limit of police women from 40 to 29 years.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney informed the board sadly that there were many criminal investigations in which the use of middle aged police women was injudicious. He said criminal investigation was a large part of the work of the police department and explained that it was often difficult to get "the proper type" of women to make contacts with criminals.

The commissioner pointed out that younger women readily could obtain information from criminals where older ones would fail.

LEAGUE SETS UP NEW SCHEME TO GOVERN LIBERIA

Would Put Manager in Charge.

GENEVA, May 20.—(AP)—A scheme for reorganizing the Liberian government, which would provide for an international manager to whom full authority would be delegated, was adopted today by the council of the league of nations.

The proposal has the full support of the United States, which has been represented at Geneva during discussion of the plan by Samuel Reber Jr. Liberia was first set up as a refuge for American slaves.

The American Finance corporation and the Firestone Plantation company, which have extensive interests in Liberia, have promised to support the reorganization providing Liberia accepts it. The Liberian representative told the council he would present the proposal to his government.

Action Follows Burnings.

The plan was adopted a few days after a report was submitted to the league declaring that many men, women, and children had been burned alive by the Liberian frontier military force.

The council's proposal, which includes reorganization of the administrative system and the departments of health and finance, was based on the findings of an international inquiry conducted at the request of Liberia.

This investigation produced a report exposing labor conditions approximating slavery and acts of violence by government soldiers against the natives, especially the Kroo tribesmen.

Financial Status "Tragic."

"Liberia's financial situation is tragic," the report said. "She has no budget, no accounts, and no money. Economically and financially Liberia is in imminent danger."

The council approved a recommendation that a representative be sent immediately to assist in pacifying the Kroo country, but trouble developed over the question of paying his expenses.

Indict Five as Robbers in Norwood Park Holdup

The indictment of five men for the robbery of the Norwood Park Trust and Savings bank, 6101 Northwest highway, was revealed yesterday when charges of automobile theft against them were stricken in the Felony court. Police said that the men had been identified as the gang which took $3,000 from the bank on May 7.

Those under indictment are Thomas Boulahanas, Christy Dattalo, Michael Grecco, Marco Spizziri, and James Kokinis. They are in the county jail through inability to make the bond of $25,000 each set by the grand jury.

ROCKFORD BOY SLAYER OF MOTORMAN ASKS A CHANGE OF VENUE

Rockford, Ill., May 20.—[Special.]—Attorneys for Russell McWilliams, 17 year old slayer of a street car motorman during a holdup and who was saved from death in the electric chair by the state Supreme court, filed two motions with the Circuit court here today—one asking for a change of venue from Judge Arthur E. Fisher and the other a plea that the defendant be permitted to change his plea to the murder charge from guilty to not guilty. Judge Fisher will hear arguments on both motions tomorrow morning.

If a change of venue is granted, either Judge Edward D. Shurtleff, Marengo, or Judge Ralph J. Dady, Waukegan, will come to Rockford to hear the case.

URGES GARAGES TO CUT NIGHT PARKING RATE

In connection with the drive on all night parking, in which police will start serving summonses on Tuesday night, Mayor Cermak yesterday urged Chicago garage owners to reduce night storage rates. In his statement he mentioned the complaints that the anti-parking drive will inflict a hardship on citizens who are without private garages and whose funds are low.

"A solution, it seems to me," Mayor Cermak stated, "would be for the garage men to get together and agree upon a special low monthly rate for night storage. I make this suggestion to them and hope they will act upon it. Everything else has come down."

Mayor Cermak's suggestion was received coldly by the Chicago Public Garage Operators' association.

"Enforcement of the ban on all-night parking would give the public garages an increase of not more than 5 per cent," said Harry Salbat, treasurer of the association. "We would get a few transients, but the owners who have been keeping their machines on the streets would avail themselves of vacant lots. On this basis it is impossible even to consider any reduction in rates."

Half of Steel on New P. O. Is Reported Completed

Half of the steel work on the new $12,000,000 Chicago postoffice is completed, it was announced yesterday. Located at Canal and Van Buren streets, the building will be nine stories when finished.

JUNGLE GRAVE OF CHICAGOAN MAY BE LOST FOREVER

Partner of Dead Youth Doubts He Can Find Spot.

BY C. N. GRIFFIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, May 20.—Mail advices received in Lima today from Harold Foard, who accompanied Thomas J. Walsh Jr. of Chicago on an expedition into the Peruvian jungle country between the upper Maranon and Huallaga rivers which ended in Walsh's death, indicate that recovery of his remains is practically impossible.

Walsh was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Walsh of 5340 Kenmore avenue. The elder Mr. Walsh is an auditor for the Commonwealth Edison company. Thomas Jr., 26 years old, died of tropical fever on Jan. 29. He and Foard, a West Virginian, were exploring virgin territory for valuable ore deposits.

Wandered in Circles.

Foard is still at Monzon, on the river of the same name, a branch of the Huallaga, which is one of the great Amazonian tributaries. Monzon is about 62 miles north of Huanuco, which in turn is six hours by motor car from the famous Cerro de Pasco mines.

Apparently Walsh and Foard, not used to jungle travel, became confused in the exceedingly difficult upper Maranon and Huallaga territory and wandered in circles for days. They did not approach within 400 miles of the Ecuador frontier. It is doubtful if the site where Walsh is buried could now be located.

Two former Chicagoans, W. M. Cromer and William L. Page, were lost with a Peruvian associate in the same region in 1913 and no authentic trace of them was ever found. The same year Mirko Selja and Patrick O'Higgins, a Serbian and an Irishman, led an expedition into the territory and never were heard of again. The region has long been reputed as a gold section, but the precipitous, jungle covered mountains make penetration hazardous.

BURIED BODY IN JUNGLE.

In a letter to Walsh's parents Foard has stated that he buried their son's body in the thickets where he died and struggled on alone until he was found by a friendly Indian. Walsh was a graduate of Loyola High school and the University of Illinois, '29. For two years he was stationed in Oroya, Peru, as a chemist for Cerro de Pasco Copper corporation.

GIBBS CHEMISTRY MEDAL AWARDED TO DR. FRANKLIN

Founds a New School in the Ammonia Field.

Dr. Edward Curtis Franklin, professor emeritus of organic chemistry of Leland Stanford university and founder of a new school of chemists, was presented with the Willard Gibbs medal of the Chicago section of the American Chemical society, at the Midland club last night. He is the twenty-first chemist to receive the award for "eminent work in and contribution to pure or applied chemistry."

Dr. Franklin, who is 70 years old, explained his new school, the result of 35 years of research in ammonia chemistry. He has developed a system of acids, bases and salts in which nitrogen occupies a position similar to that occupied in the system of Antoine Lavoisier, guillotined during the French revolution. The system presupposes absence of water and its compounds.

"Ammonia Cocktails."

A world based on ammonia was pictured by Dr. Franklin. In this world he pictured gasoline as a fire extinguisher, cocktails of ammonia solutions, oceans of dilute liquid ammonia solutions, an atmosphere of nitrogen, and plant and animal life.

"Liquid ammonia vapor in an atmosphere of nitrogen is transported over the land areas of the earth and precipitated from ammonia clouds as liquid ammonia rain in tropic and temperate zones," he said. "Ammonia snow falls in arctic regions.

"Continuing on the assumption that water and its compounds have been obliterated and ammonia compounds take their place, organic chemists of the ammonia world can prepare compounds known as alcohol and esters and the bio-chemist ammono-sugars, starches, and fats. The ammonia physiologist finds all animals derive their nourishment from plants. Infractors of the prohibition law who insist on cocktails drink liquid ammonia solutions of ethylamine or diethylamine."

Even a "Hell."

Dr. Franklin portrayed a speculative afterworld of the ammonia world with "hell as a region where hydrogen sulphide takes the place of water in the water world, pictured by the Greek philosopher, Thales of Miletus." Hydrogen sulphide is a gas with an odor of rotten eggs, he explained.

The discoveries of Dr. Franklin have been hailed for their importance in industrial operations in which chemical reactions in water are found to be unsuitable. The doctor is to present a scientific paper on the ammonia system of compounds at the Kent Chemical laboratory before the University of Chicago and Chicago sections of the American Chemical society.

Suspect in California Fraud Faces New Charge

Nathan E. Weinstein, 4828 North Drake avenue, held on an extradition warrant charging him with defrauding Mrs. Donella Cross of San Jose, Cal., of $1,200 in a bond deal, sought freedom yesterday through habeas corpus proceedings before Judge John Prystalski. While he was in court George Vautrin of Batavia identified him as the man who defrauded him of $5,000 in another bond deal. Weinstein will appear again today before Judge Prystalski.

TRADE LEADERS DEMAND CUT IN GOVERNING COST

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., May 20.—[Special.]—Resolutions condemning excessive taxation and insisting that all governments—federal, state, and local—must retrench drastically, were adopted today at the closing session of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

H. I. HARRIMAN. [Acme Photo.]

The chamber also went on record against the policy of the federal government engaging in business in ruinous competition with private interests. It called for a balancing of all governmental budgets.

On the question of prohibition, the chamber passed no resolutions, but approved the action of the board of directors of the chamber in appointing a committee to study the prohibition question.

Take Wet Referendum.

This committee, headed by J. Walter Drake of Detroit, will make a report to the chamber before Dec. 1 and coincident with the issuance of the report, a referendum of the membership will be taken.

Under the action of the board of directors, after the almost unanimous passage of a resolution before the national council of the chamber, the members will vote on whether the prohibition laws and the 18th amendment shall be continued, repealed or modified. From the enthusiasm with which the councillors received the resolution, it was considered a foregone conclusion that the business men will vote overwhelmingly wet.

Harriman Named President.

The new president of the national chamber, elected today, is Henry I. Harriman of Boston, chairman of the New England Power association. Mr. Harriman is an anti-prohibitionist, and he stated his views during an address to the convention. Real beer, taxed at $5 a barrel, should be legalized at once, Mr. Herriman held, and the half billion dollars of revenue so received by the government should be devoted toward relieving unemployment.

The resolution passed by the chamber on the taxation question, calling for immediate reductions in governmental expenditures, stated, in part:

"Governments are increasing their expenditures for old functions and assuming new ones, many of which have little or no economic or social value. Many could be performed by private business more efficiently and at less cost. This results in an excessive annual capital cost on business in the form of increased taxes, which promotes neither business nor public welfare."

Cut All Government Costs.

In reiterating its position against the governments engaging in business in competition with private interests, the chamber declared:

"Large sums are now spent by the federal government upon business and commercial ventures of its own. In addition to direct losses, these are at once detriments to private citizens engaged in lawful pursuits and important losses to the government by reason of its deprivation of revenues which would be derived from these enterprises if conducted by citizens and taxpayers."

In demanding that the governments balance their budgets, the chamber said this should be done "by the elimination of all unnecessary expenditures and the increasing of such equitably levied taxes as may be necessary as an emergency measure."

Federal aid to the states for highway, school and other projects has greatly increased taxes, the chamber declared in a further pronouncement, and a survey was recommended to expose those types of aid which may be discontinued.

Dodge Anti-Trust Stand.

The chamber straddled the question of amending the anti-trust laws to permit trade combinations, simply recommending that congress provide for a thorough investigation of what changes should be made.

American agriculture must be made more dependably prosperous, the chamber declared, and the first step advocated is the repeal of the provisions of the agricultural marketing act under which the federal farm board has bought and sold commodities in so-called stabilization activities. The cotton holdings of the farm board must be withheld, the chamber declared, in order that the coming crop may have a fair market, but the large stocks of wheat held by the board "should be dispersed through existing channels of trade in such a manner as will remove the present market menace of concentrated holdings, before the new crop moves into the channels of commerce." Federal credit agencies, the chamber held, which are already serving agriculture, should "for the purpose of the emergency be strengthened in their operations."

Urge Railroad Consolidation.

"Railroads should be authorized," stated another Pronouncement, "to provide all these services of transportation which are most advantageous to the areas which they serve. In order that railroad transportation may be placed on the most efficient and economical basis, the consolidation of railroads should be advanced with all possible speed."

The chamber resolved that unregulated forms of transportation, such as motor truck and waterway forms, are in unfair competition with regulated forms, such as the railroads. It was recommended that the board of directors of the chamber make provisions for an immediate study of the problem, and to present proposals for relief.

Although there had been hopes expressed by some leaders of the chamber that a more definite program for relief of the depression might be adopted, especially one that might be submitted to the political conventions next month, no such action was taken.

GIANT CARILLON FOR MIDWAY

$10,000 IN BUS FEES TRACED TO MAYOR WALKER

Overdraws Credit for Trip to Europe.

friend of the mayor, was to have made arrangements to pay the $3,000 overdraft, documentary evidence indicated.

In January, 1928, an officer of the Equitable Trust company wrote to Allen Smith, the Equitable Coach company:

"Dear Allen: That $3,000 matter never has been taken care of."

A few days later the bank received a check from Smith for $3,047.50, drawn on the First Trust and Deposit company of Syracuse. The sum above $3,000 represented 5 per cent interest on the principal.

After the testimony of Hunter and Hoffman Senator Hastings resumed the stand—he had spent a hectic hour or so under grill earlier in the day—and undertook "to explain" the $10,000 letter of credit. Hastings was in a belligerent mood, even more pugnacious than during the turbulent forenoon session.

"I'll tell you the whole story," he announced in a loud voice.

"All right, senator, just sit back there now and tell us all about it," urged Mr. Seabury.

Hastings said he dined frequently with Allen Smith at the Recess club. One time, while dining, he said, Smith reminded him that the mayor was going to Europe soon.

Pullman Fare Still Unpaid.

He told Hastings that he was a friend of Mr. Loesch[illegible] vice president of the Equita[illegible] company, and that the bank[illegible] to get more letter of cr[illegible] suggested that if [illegible] would help do this, it w[illegible] a big favor to Mr. Loes[illegible] personally.

Whereupon Senator Hastings [illegible] himself off to see state Senator Bernard Downing, now dead, Democratic minority leader, he said. Hastings said Senator Downing gave him $10,000, which he, Hastings, in turn gave to Smith. This was the money he used to buy the letter of credit, said Hastings.

From Senator Hastings the committee learned also, among other things, of a "gold manufacturing" demonstration attended by Mayor Walker; of interesting details concerning the mayor's trip to California in behalf of Tom Mooney and of the fact that the Pullman fare for that trip has not yet been paid, although the Pullman company has tried repeatedly to collect from Hastings.

GOVERNOR SIGNS LAST OF SPECIAL SESSION BILLS

Springfield, Ill., May 20.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson today disposed of the last group of bills passed at the special session of the general assembly when he gave his approval to three measures, exempting treasurers of sanitary districts, park boards, and town collectors from liability for money lost in closed banks.

The bills were offered by Representatives Frank Holton and R. H. Huschle, East St. Louis. They carry emergency clauses and become effective at once.

The bills are similar to a group of others passed at the special session, exempting treasurers from liability. When depositories are designated by the various boards of taxing bodies treasurers are not liable for money lost.

Arrest Woman Operator of Home for Children

Mrs. Caroline Marin, 46 years old, was arrested by Oak Park police last night on a charge of operating a children's home without a license in her home at 1171 South Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park. The arrest was made on a warrant obtained by Miss May Maryroy, a child welfare official. Mrs. Marin was released later on $1,000 bond. Four children, from 2 to 4 years old, were found in Mrs. Marin's home.

WOMAN AND SON HURT IN CRASH.

Council Bluffs, Ia., May 20.—[Special.]—Mrs. F. H. Hawkins and son, Donald, 7, were critically injured today when a Burlington passenger train struck their automobile at a street crossing near Bustead. Howard, driver of the car, was only slightly injured.

TOWN CELEBRATES FIRST INDEPENDENCE DECLARATION IN 1775

Charlotte, N. C., May 20.—(AP)—Charlotte's school bells failed to toll today, and the wheels of industry stopped turning, in memory of a band of pioneers which 157 years ago gathered on what is now Independence square and defied the authority of King George III.

It is Mecklenburg county's Fourth of July. May 20 is the reason why Charlotte is the only town in America which does not celebrate July 4. The descendants of those pioneers ask "why celebrate the Philadelphia Declaration of Independence when we had one a year before?"

And then tales are told of how the Mecklenburgers dispatched word of their action to the continental congress asking it to do likewise, and of how the courier, after his weary journey, was rebuffed with talk that their act was premature.

But the Caldwells, Davidsons, and Alexanders today claim their Scotch ancestors were not premature, but merely ahead of their Puritan and Dutch fellow countrymen to the north, who waited more than a year to follow the lead.

$30 SAVES WAR VETERAN FROM ALIMONY ROW

Michael Higgins, a shell shocked and gassed world war veteran, escaped being jailed by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday when his brother paid $30 to his divorced wife, Mrs. Mildred Higgins, 6490 Cottage Grove avenue, on a $60 alimony accumulation.

Earlier in the day Higgins testified that he spent his $18 a week government compensation on hospital bills and was unable to pay the $15 weekly alimony and support money to his wife and 8 year old daughter, Vivien. Mrs. Higgins told the judge that her husband had never paid her alimony since she obtained a decree in 1930.

When the payment was made Judge Trude tore up letters he had written to the state's attorney and to the prohibition authorities calling attention to Mrs. Higgins' charges that her brother-in-law owned speakeasies at 9117 Baltimore avenue and at Houston avenue near 92d street. When Attorney Gordon Nash, Higgins' counsel, charged that Mrs. Higgins ran a beer flat the judge told him to "get a warrant."

16 GIRLS APPEAR AGAINST CHEAP FLOUR DEALER

Sixteen young women appeared yesterday in the Wabash avenue court to prosecute charges of confidence game against Ralph C. Bailee, 37 years old. They charged that Bailee had hired them at $15 a week to solicit orders from housewives for the Colby Products company of St. Louis, which they found to be nonexistent.

Bailee offered a 49 pound bag of flour, 6 pounds of cake flour, and a two quart boiler for $1. His solicitors collected 50 cents pending delivery and gave the collections to Bailee. After working a week they learned that there was no Colby company and that Bailee intended leaving with their collections, the complainants said. He was arrested in the Pershing hotel, 6403 Cottage Grove avenue. Judge Edgar A. Jonas continued the case until May 25 to allow Bailee to get the salary money for the women.

RELIEF GROUP GIVES $13,000 AS GARDENING FUND

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday approved the use of $13,000 of the funds allocated to Cook county in financing the subsistence gardening program of the Joint Emergency Relief Fund, Edward L. Ryerson, jr., chairman of the commission, announced. The garden committee of the joint relief fund has already distributed 2,500 packets of seed to needy persons who have obtained land for gardens on their own initiative. Plots in the forest preserve are being allotted to persons who have no gardens. The committee has plowed and cultivated 2,000 such plots, covering about 300 acres, and has arranged for the gardens to be guarded against sheriffs.

BOOKS

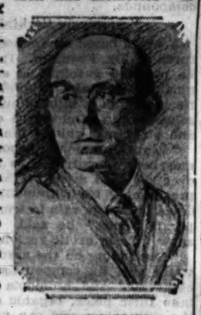
New Memories of Rothenstein Praised Highly

Gives Accurate Pictures of English Notables.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Men and Memories," Vol. II., by Sir William Rothenstein. [Coward-McCann.] Published on Wednesday.

THERE are certain books which certain kinds of people simply can not do without, no matter how much they feel they must deprive themselves of fresh caviar and pheasant. "Men and Memories" is that kind of book. Artists, collectors of art, any one interested in the art of England, must own the two volumes of Sir William Rothenstein's memoirs. The second volume has just been published to bring the recollections of Sir William up to 1922. A third volume is, I understand, in preparation.



SIR WILLIAM ROTHENSTEIN.

But it is not because the Rothenstein memoirs deal so exhaustively with the field in which their author was a leader, nor because they picture English art during the first quarter of the century so distinctly and vividly that I am excited about "Men and Memories."

If it were merely a book on art and artists I would leave it to the pen of Miss Eleanor Jewett, art editor of THE TRIBUNE, for criticism. It is because "Men and Memories" is a skillful and penetrating study not only of the artists of a changing and strange two decades but of the times themselves and of all of the creative artists of the period . . . the writers as well as the painters and sculptors. In it there are sketches (in words) of the great men of the literary circus which prove Sir William to be a portraitist in words of the rarely gifted type. He makes us see W. H. Hudson, for instance, in a paragraph as nothing that I have ever read of description about him has ever made me see him, and I have been so devoted to the work of W. H. Hudson that I have taken care to read whatever I might about him as a person. Sir William describes him:

"Hudson would walk in with his strange, rather crablike walk; very tall he was, a little awkward as he sat himself down and disposed of his long limbs, folding his large, beautifully formed hands across his knees. He had haunting eyes, brown with yellow lights, eyes that scarcely moved in their orbits but remained level, fixed on no particular point, held rather by memories of things past than by what was before them. . . . His fine, slightly narrowing brow was deeply furrowed and his nose was that of a predatory bird. Yes, he put me in mind of those sad, caged eagles at the zoo whose motionless eyes look out beyond the bars of their cages as they sit, desolate pioneers, their wings unused and drooping, through the long, dull days."

That, I claim, is superb description not only of a physical but of an inner spirit. If his pictures of Joseph Conrad are a little less vivid, perhaps it is because Conrad sometimes harassed him, as Conrad must have harassed all of his friends.

"Conrad would often despair, and one needed all one's energy to pump faith and hope into him." Sir William says more than once. He shares with his readers hitherto unpublished letters from Conrad, one of which has an almost unbearable poignancy when one realizes that it was written by the man who, more than any other writer of his day, wrote miraculous prose. When that terrible sieve of time has sifted reputations Conrad's will remain as the greatest romantic novelist of his period. But this is what he wrote on Dec. 17, 1909, in a letter to his friend Will Rothenstein: "Today, in the second week of my fifty-second year, a failure from the worldly point of view, and knowing well that there can be no change."

H. G. Wells the author knew well, John Drinkwater, Walter de La Mare, James Stephens, William Butler Yeats were his intimates. . . . Rabindranath Tagore visited England first as the Rothensteins' guest and cherished permanent brother love for them. . . . Anatole France and Andre Gide from across the channel were his friends. . . . Gerhardt Hauptmann entertained him in Germany and presented him with the startling picture of a literary man of forty (only) being hailed in passionate acclaim by the crowds as he walked down the street. . . . Max Beerbohm was an intimate, and there are charming letters from him. . . . John Masefield lives in the pages and in letters. . . . John Galsworthy is the "Jack" of the early days. . . . Thomas Hardy is an old man about to leave the world in this volume, but vividly sketched. . . . George Moore floats through the pages. . . . Henry James merely flits. . . . Lytton Strachey is "long, slender, with a receding chin . . . with a thin, cracked voice" in his early days before "with reputation came a beard and long hair, and a cloak and sombrero which gave weight and solemnity to an appearance previously not very noticeable." . . .

And Bernard Shaw appears many times, once after his meeting with Tagore saying to Mrs. Rothenstein, "Old bluebeard, how many wives has he got, I wonder!"

People, places—India, France, Germany, England—live in the book.

I shall have to amend my first statement that "Men and Memories" is a vital volume for any one interested in English art to read, that it is a necessary (and charming) source book on the creators and the creative life of the early days of the century in England.

Two Volumes Revive Genius Mystery Again

Mozart and Wagner Are the Subjects.

BY JOHN ERSKINE.

"Mozart," by Marcia Davenport. [Scribner's.]

"The Letters of Richard Wagner to Anton Pusinelli." Translated and edited with critical notes by Elbert Lenrow. [Knopf.]

The commonest thing said of genius is that it is misunderstood. True genius in its simple form is the great mystery of human life.

But this kind of genius, the simple and natural kind, is strangely enough at ease with itself, and on the whole at ease with the world. We doubt whether Shakespeare knew he was a genius, or whether he had a word to express the idea if it occurred to him.

No doubt the ancient prophets and the medicine men in primitive tribes took themselves seriously, and owed their prestige to genuine gifts of insight and intuition. But they and their neighbors explained these gifts as a communication from God. So long as God spoke through him the prophet was inspired, and if God withdrew his favor the prophet was no more than any other man. Here certainly is ground for egotism, if one believes that he is chosen to be God's mouthpiece, but here also is ground for humility, if the power can be withdrawn as readily as it is bestowed.

The modern genius in art, the kind that is misunderstood, rarely admits that his powers come from God; at least he thinks they came once for all at birth, and there's no danger of collapse or withdrawal.

Two recent books remind us of the mystery of true genius in its noblest form, and also of the problem of the mixed genius. The "Life of Mozart," by Marcia Davenport, is one of the most radiant and loving books I have read. It is an extraordinarily fine biography, unusually thorough and sound, vivid without resorting to fanciful trimmings, enthusiastic without sentimentality, and in a deep way reverent. Among modern artists, not musicians alone, but painters and writers also, Mozart is more and more frequently named as the ideal genius, and his work, which at one time was considered pretty rather than profound, is now more and more regarded as one of the two or three great accomplishments in music. He was an infant prodigy, but fortunately not spoiled. His wise father saw to it that the child's miraculous facility in composition as well as in playing should be soundly trained, and he realized also that the gift for composition was rarer and more significant than the skill to play.

The child was in this world for one purpose—to produce marvelously beautiful music, and his industry from childhood until the close of his brief years was prodigious. Whatever disappointments he encountered were essentially impersonal and unegotistic. If he was baffled for a moment in his urge to create and to secure a hearing for his creation, the disappointment was less to his personal vanity than to his wish that the beautiful things in his soul should be expressed. Even in his day he was so old-fashioned as to believe his inspiration derived from a spiritual source greater than himself, and he was the servant rather than the possessor of his genius. To read his story as Marcia Davenport tells it is to marvel at the noble possibilities of human nature.

Elbert Lenrow has translated and edited eighty-four letters of Richard Wagner to his Dresden friend, Dr. Anton Pusinelli. This is one of the first publications of Wagner letters in complete and unexpurgated form. From 1842 to 1878 Wagner had occasion to correspond with Pusinelli, borrowing money from him or otherwise involving him in his financial perplexities, or else asking the doctor to take care of Minna, the wife with whom the composer could not live. Half of these letters have appeared already, and of those which have appeared half have been published without expurgations. In 1929 the collection was bought by an American, and Mr. Lenrow now presents it complete with the approval of the Wagner heirs.

Wagner's character is well known. It is known but not understood. These letters show him once more as an astounding egotist, a ruthlessly selfish man, an irresponsible friend. A less admirable or a less trustworthy personality could hardly be invented.

Yet side by side with his private meanness went the grandeur and nobility of his music. The bifurcation is complete between his life and his works. For once the conceited genius is justified. This kind of genius is harder to understand than the pure kind, as we find it in Mozart, for if heaven chooses some of us as its mouthpiece, heaven in the case of Wagner made a strange choice, not to be foreseen nor afterwards explained.

Collected Pictures Tell Story of Horrors of War

"The Horror of It," arranged by Frederick A. Barber [Brewer, Warren & Putnam], according to Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, "is a hard headed answer to the common charge made against peace makers that they are soft headed. Here is war not seen through the lenses of anybody's prejudice but caught in the act by the camera. This is war's plain, ugly, stark meaning." The book contains authentic photographs.

Among the New Books

FICTION.

The Palace of Intrigue, by A. E. R. Craig [Minton Balch], sets a romantic tale first in India and then in England.

Miner, by F. C. Boden [Dutton], describes the terror and the beauty of life in the mines of Wales.

Elopement Into Exile, by V. S. Pritchett [Little Brown], occurs when the dashing heroine goes after her man.

Those Others, by Simon Dare [Kinsey], are the men and women of the everyday world whose existence lovers temporarily forget.

The City Jungle, by Felix Salten [Simon & Schuster], novelizes the lives of the animals in the city zoo.

NONFICTION.

Democracy at the Crossroads, by John W. Davis, Claude G. Bowers, Newton Baker, etc. [Brewer Warren & Putnam] is a survey of democracy, its past, present and future.

The Soul of America, by Arthur Hobson Quinn [University of Pennsylvania Press], portrays the progress of the American spirit and its future.

Hold Yer Hosses, by Bob Sherwood [Macmillan], are reminiscences of the last of Barnum's clowns and vividly portrays all phases of circus life.

POETRY.

New Poems, by Edwin Markham [Doubleday Doran], are 80 selections by the eighty year old author from poems written since his last book was published in 1920.

Poems, by Padraic Colum [MacMillan], contains several new poems as well as many of the more familiar ones.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

ABOUT PLACES.

Corruption in New York Is Theme of This Book

"Babylon on Hudson" [Harpers] comes to us anonymously. The hero of the book, a lawyer Henry Gibbons, is forced into a round of pleasure enjoyed by the young people of whom he is the guardian. He sees viciousness in a variety of forms and graft in political and financial circles; the whole tragedy of hypocrisy and crookedness allegedly characteristic of modern New York. The novel is written in the argot of the day and penetrates to brutal realities. The author states, "the rackets and the episodes of corruption have been chosen by me not because they are the most bizarre, nor because they are extreme or all inclusive, but merely some at random which would be illustrative of the general corruption prevailing in our city [New York City]. I have selected the period beginning with the summer of 1929 and ending approximately with December 1931, because that period was one which in a most dramatic way indicates the disintegration of our social system. . . ." This is an uncompromising novel, honest and unsugared.

British Volume Proves English Enjoy Humor

Gillie Potter, Radio Star, Is the Author.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—An addition to English nonsense literature is being made by Gillie Potter, who is one of the most popular of all British radio artists. It is called "The Marshmallows of Hogsnorton." American readers who believe that England has no humorists should note this volume, of which it is said that "hollow copies, to hold one pint, in binding akin to that of a devotional work, may be had on application by duly certified members of any Dorcas society." This, however, is only Mr. Potter's fun. There will be no hollow copies; all will be found full—of a running fire of quips and oddities.

AUGUSTUS MUIR.

The book is in the old tradition of English nonsense, and will amuse all but the solemn. Mr. Potter has long delighted the British public; and besides being a radio star is a regular performer upon the English vaudeville stage. He has invented a new comic English village, and a new comic character. That is a difficult feat.

A Scotsman who is steadily establishing his reputation for versatility is Augustus Muir. Mr. Muir used to be editor of a humorous weekly journal, London Opinion, but he was such an active man that he began to write mystery stories in his spare time. They were good mystery stories, and he still writes them [for example, his new thriller is a tale of excitement the scene of which is laid in a desolate part of Scotland; and it is called "Beginning the Adventure"], but he has also turned topographer, and in "Scotland's Road of Romance" he has described a journey made on foot from the west coast of Scotland along the route followed by Prince Charles Edward Stuart, "the Young Pretender" [who is to be the subject of a new monograph by Compton Mackenzie], through much wild country until Stirling and Edinburgh are reached.

Mr. Muir's keen eye and considerable familiarity with the history of Scotland will give his account of this journey a value exceeding that of the ordinary descriptive writer's effort. He has humor and great adroitness, and his experience as a journalist and mystery story writer will always make what he writes lively and effective. He is young and ambitious, and his interests are wide. He has not yet done anything like the best work of which he is capable. But he advances with every book.

There is to be a new study of Jane Austen, and it has peculiar interest. The author is David Rhydderch, and that is a new name to readers. But Mr. Rhydderch is no ordinary author. He is forty, and he began work at the age of twelve as warehouse boy to a firm of grocers in Aberdare.

In his leisure hours he has deeply studied the novels and letters of Jane Austen, and the loving care which he has brought to the task has allowed him to piece together, hint by hint, from novels and letters alike, such a picture of the author of "Pride and Prejudice" as we have never had before. This book will be important.

Meetings and Lectures

The twenty-seventh annual dinner of the Walt Whitman fellowship will be held on Tuesday, May 31, at the Boston Oyster house and a celebration will follow in the New Mirror room of the Morrison hotel. Among the speakers there will be Llewellyn Jones, Ethel M. Colson Brazelton, Paul Hutchinson, and Harriet Monroe.

Explorer Debunks Those Wild Tales of Jungle Beasts

If you like your jungling red hot, with absolute accuracy a nonessential so long as there's a thrill a second, don't read "My Jungle Book," by Dr. Herbert S. Dickey [Little-Brown], for you'll never again read a tropic thriller with the innocent trustfulness you did before; you'll ever after be skeptical of explorers of the ordinary brand.

For Dr. Dickey debunks 'em all. He tears 'em to shreds. He unkinks all the gorgeous snake stories by calling the big serpents cowardly and the little crawlers practically nonexistent. Jaguars will run if you snap your fingers, he says. In fact, he spends several chapters in humorously and cleverly knocking out from under our popular explorers in South America their favorite dangers. He does this so thoroughly that one by one the reader's favorite travel authors turn from honest pilgrims into whopping prevaricators.

And after thirty years in South American tropical backwaters he ought to know what he's talking about, you decide. And then, the cynical and caustic doc slips; he tells what we believe is the prize jungle yarn of the century, a terror tale more horrible than anything we've heard in years of fireside travel. A man has his arm bitten off by a giant crocodile. This so enrages him that with his remaining hand he pulls out a penknife, opens it and blinds the battling saurian. Then with his chest torn to shreds and one arm gone he travels several hours by foot and boat to a hospital and he's alive today. Maybe it's true, but, oh, doctor! if any other explorer had told that yarn! A. C.

"From Siam to Suez" Is a Gay and Witty Volume on Travel

A trio of unusual travel books is "Brown Women and White" by Andrew A. Freeman [Day]; "From Siam to Suez" by James Saxon Childers [Appleton], and "South of Suez" by William J. Makin [King]. They're all worth while volumes and are as different as the localities they tell about, though the paths of Freeman and Childers cross in Siam; in fact, they each relate the same incident, the tragic runaway dash to freedom and death of a royal sacred white elephant.

"From Siam to Suez" is one of the gayest, wittiest, best written and most satisfying travel books of the season. But Prof. Childers is not altogether professorial in his journeying; in fact, one hilarious battle with alcohol in India lands him in the hoosegow, which he tells about with great relish.

"Brown Women and White" is a newspaper yarn by a newspaper man, theoretically, at least, all true, and as stunning a volume on the far east as we've ever reveled in. The author was made editor by the king of Siam of the English edition of his highness' Bangkok daily, and he had a royal time battling official rackets. Woven through the book are poignant, personal tales of men and women who let the tropics beat them.

"South of Suez" is more a glowing group of impressions of the dark continent gathered during years spent wandering about Africa, than it is a regulation travel book. It's full of vividly told true stories of adventure, sinister tales of black magic and comments on Africa in general, from Suez to Cape Town. It's a really gorgeous book of its kind. A. C.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE RETREAT TO THE HILLS.

The Methodist church, in its quadrennial general conference, indicated that national prohibition is to prepare a last line of defense in thirteen states and there, if necessary, resist until the cause can make a recovery in public opinion. Thirteen states can prevent the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and when prohibition is in its last ditches it will try to hold its lines with the minority powers granted by the constitution.

The retreat of a defeated people is always to the hills if they can be found and reached. Within the last few months there has been so much concession to the opposition to prohibition that standpatters of notable stubbornness have switched. They are willing to submit to referendum. There is one honest referendum. It is the submission of the repeal of the amendment to due process. Trimmers would like to avoid that and submit a policy question by processes unknown. If the opposition to Volstead is at all wise it will never be put off in that fashion, and if it gains ground as it has been doing it can't be put off.

Talk of a referendum is a political expediency in a year when the two major parties would like to find their way out of a dilemma. Submission of the repeal or of another amendment is the only satisfactory method of dealing with the eighteenth.

Thirteen states might keep prohibition in the constitution when the rest of the country had voted its repeal, but law when so retained takes to other well known roads. When the time comes that the people in the hills are keeping the letters of a dead prohibition in the constitution there will be no enforcement act. As soon as one house of congress refuses to make appropriations the federal agents of unsavory repute will disappear. This is the ancient parliamentary remedy for abuses when no other escape is available. The hand which controls the purse strings cuts off the sustenance and the undesirable practices of government cease.

FOUR NEW TARIFFS.

The finance committee of the senate has included four tariffs in the proposed tax bill which are now being debated on the floor of the senate. None of them will yield enough revenue to justify a moment's consideration as tax raising measures. The proposed duties on petroleum, lumber, copper and coal are intended solely for the purpose of preventing imports of these items.

It is a striking fact in connection with each of these commodities that the United States is normally an exporting nation. That being so, it can hardly be maintained that American costs of production are markedly higher than those of foreign nations and that, therefore, the American market must be protected from cheap foreign labor. Nor can it be successfully maintained that the American market today, because of extraordinary business conditions, is being flooded with these products from abroad. It would be hard to find four commodities of which we import a smaller percentage in relation to the whole consumption in this country.

These tariffs have been written into the committee's bill as a result of successful log rolling by special interests. They hope—and even the hope is not well founded—that they can increase the price of their goods in this country if the threat of potential foreign competition is removed. They seem not to realize that the depression in the prices of their commodities is the consequence of slack demand and that the imposition of tariffs can hardly serve to increase demand. If anything, it may be expected to decrease it somewhat.

The exports of the United States in 1931, a year of profound depression, were in excess of 2,300 million dollars. These exports were paid for by foreigners in part in gold, in part in services, but chiefly in goods which we imported. As the United States shuts its gates to imports it automatically shuts off a part of its market for exports.

In 1930 the United States imported only 675,000 tons of hard coal and 241,000 tons of soft coal, a wholly negligible proportion of our total consumption of 700 million tons, but enough to create a few million dollars of purchasing power for American commodities abroad. It may be argued that the gain or loss of those few millions of exports can mean little to the American people, and that would be true were it not for the virtual certainty that any new tariffs written into our schedules will result in retaliatory tariffs abroad against our exports.

Certainly none of the Illinois delegation has any interest in these proposed tariffs. Illinois is one of the great exporting states of the Union. Only four other states have a larger stake in foreign trade. In the good year of 1929 the exports from Illinois had a value of 238 million dollars. Even in 1931 Illinois' exports were valued at more than 140 million dollars. The three leading items in the state's export list were tractors, lard and wheat. The farmers and factory workers of Illinois stand to lose upwards of 75 million dollars a year of income if our export trade is cut off. Even if every ton of coal which is now imported were to be mined in Illinois [and next to none of it would be] and every drop of oil which is imported were to be drawn instead from Illinois wells [and that is also an absurd assumption] Illinois might well lose more from these tariffs and the inevitable retaliations than this state can conceivably gain from the new duties.

The position of Illinois in this matter is typical of that of all the states of this region. Indiana, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas, for example, each exported anywhere from 10 to 30 million dollars' worth of their products.

THE WAR MIND ABROAD.

The general staff of the Rumanian army ordered work stopped on the construction of the International Telephone and Telegraph building in Bucharest because as a skyscraper it would be a menace to the state. Its distinguishing height would guide artillery fire and be also a target for air attack. The company refused to submit to the order and a conflict is on.

Mr. Stimson, returning from Geneva, reports to Mr. Hoover "a qualified belief" in the success of the disarmament conference. The Rumanian story is a slight indication of what the qualifications are. Europe and Asia are more war minded now than they have been since the armistice. The condition of Japan is transparent and the response in Russia is revealed in the preparations on the border. Soviet reserves of four classes have been called out for maneuvers. Herriot in France says nothing new when he says that security is the first consideration in French government. Mussolini's glorification of the sword may be largely rhetoric, but for a while the kaiser's saber and mailed fist were rhetoric. Peoples are hurt and sullen. Governments are distracted. The result is ferment and Europe and Asia are war minded.

A CELEBRATION IN BLOOM.

A citizen urged by the Hon. Sol Bloom to get his community going on the Washington bicentennial celebration communicates his thought that everybody is already "plenty George Washington conscious" and that the best remaining tribute to the father of his country would be to return the balance of the commission's funds to the treasury.

It can be imagined that no one would approve more heartily of that suggestion than the founder of Mount Vernon, but it would be idle to imagine further that it will get anywhere with the members of the United States commission in charge of the celebration. They are infected by the enthusiasms of Congressman Bloom, associate director, and are having much too fine a time to give it up or shorten it. The country is being organized to carry on until Thanksgiving, although what is coming out of it does not appear. It is at least uncertain that the reputation of Washington is being enhanced, but probable that the pleasures of the commissioners are. Temporarily they are in the company of the great, and, as Mr. Bloom informs the citizens to whom he writes, "the annals of this commission will become a permanent memorial."

CLOSING THE SCHOOLS.

The issue in the board of education's budget controversy is becoming increasingly clear. There are, on the one hand, those who wish to keep the schools open and functioning to the extent that the board of education's income will permit; and, on the other hand, there are those who would close the schools rather than permit a single dollar of present expense for whatever purpose to be cut off.

Those who want to keep the schools open believe that some instruction is better than none. They may be wrong, but if they are erring they are doing so out of the desire to benefit and not to injure the children. Those who say close the schools rather than dismiss a single janitor or teacher are not thinking of the children as the first consideration.

A school system which is operated in the belief that schooling is relatively unimportant and can be dispensed with if its continuance happens to run counter to the vested interests of school executives and employés is not likely to amount to much educationally.

A closing of the schools to those who really believe in the importance of public education is a last desperate expedient to be employed only after every conceivable effort has been made to keep the school system functioning.

Editorial of the Day

ILLINOIS REPUBLICANS.

[Peoria, Ill., Transcript.]

Avowing its purpose to maintain harmony in the ranks, the Republican state committeemen met yesterday at Springfield and held what amounted to a love feast. Officers were elected unanimously.

Small, former governor and candidate for a third term, was cheered. Frank L. Smith of Dwight, who was the former governor's campaign manager in the primary campaign, declared the Democratic party was responsible for the depression and that the G. O. P. will be victorious in November.

That is what was done. Underneath, however, there was the question as to what the state central committee will permit the state convention to do on May 27, when it meets for its final and important session. No decision was reached as to whether a state platform should be adopted at that time. Chairman Franklin J. Stransky, judge of Savanna, who succeeds C. J. Doyle as chairman of the committee, thinks a platform should be adopted. At the pro forma session of the convention just after the primaries it was tentatively decided not to attempt one.

Thus, party harmony promises seem to be a bit shaky. Republican wets are anxious to adopt a platform before the national convention meets. They argue that James Hamilton Lewis, on a wet platform, swept Ruth Hanna McCormick into the discard on a straddling platform two years ago. They say that since Small was once considered the driest of the drys—despite the politically wet company he kept—that if the national convention should fail to go wet Small's chances would suffer, since Judge Henry Horner, the Democratic nominee, will run on a wet ticket.

The question is an embarrassing one. Republican leaders in Illinois profess to believe that their national convention will adopt a wet plank. But this is extremely doubtful. A referendum plank will be about as far as the Chicago convention will dare go. In Illinois the referendum is treated lightly. Mrs. McCormick advocated it and was beaten. Gov. Emmerson urged it and lost. Illinois is definitely wet, and the Republicans who have no dry convictions want to climb on the wet band wagon.

What happens at the May 27 convention will probably not be important nationally. All delegates who go to the Chicago convention know that Illinois is wet. But some of the Small boosters and most of the Republican wets want the party to take a stand.

If it dodges the liquor issue it will not affect the national convention. But it may have something to do with the fate of the candidate from Kankakee in November.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By S. S. Hill

PATRIOTISM 110%.

And now congress is debating a bill requiring all U. S. government employés to stand a test showing they can either sing or recite the "Star-Spangled Banner." And if they could sing the "Star-Spangled Banner" with its high C notes they wouldn't be U. S. government employés; they'd be stars in grand opera.

And requiring the bureaucrats in Washington to learn the words of our national song would be to enforce great hardship on them. Why, that would be work!

And, besides, are we to be satisfied with the simple proof of loyalty shown by ability to sing or recite the "Star-Spangled Banner"? As hundred and ten per cent American we answer no. Let every government employé not only be able to sing or recite the national anthem but let the flag of the Union be tattooed on their foreheads and every time the "Star-Spangled Banner" is played in their hearing, either by street bands or theater orchestras, compel government employés (including fourth class postmasters) to stand on their heads and keep time with their feet.

And if congress makes this singing of the national anthem the test of loyalty on the part of government employés, what will they do to the rest of us? They'll make us sing the "Star-Spangled Banner" when we pay all those new taxes we've got to come across with. It's going to be tough enough to dig up all that tax money, anyhow, but if they require that we sing the national anthem while we sweat out our coin at the tax collector's table it's going to make it doubly hard.

And what about George Washington? He never sang the "Star-Spangled Banner" nor recited it, either. They'll probably order George's picture turned to the wall when that fact becomes known. Of course, George would have had some trouble singing or reciting the "Star-Spangled Banner," because it wasn't written until some years after he was dead. But a little thing like that wouldn't stop your hundred and ten per cent patriots. What they wouldn't do to George would be a plenty.

Away from the sea . . .
Away from all
That's cruel and free.

THE DRYS CITE a professor at Leland Stanford university and say we would be surprised to know that when we think we are drinking a cool, refreshing cocktail which our engaging hostess has just poured from the shaker we are in reality drinking liquid ammonia. We are like Doctor Johnson, who, when he was kissing the cook, was interrupted by his wife, who shouted: "Sir, I am surprised!" "Nay, madam," said the good doctor, "it is we who are surprised; you are astonished." And so we are not surprised to learn that cocktails are made out of liquid ammonia. We are astonished—we thought they were made out of kerosene, hair oil, and tan polish.

May offers with a will,
The silver dust of orchard,
The slope of a beryl hill.

Divine in its essence,
As One who never fails,
Each happy, new disclosure
With all that it entails

Of promise and fulfillment
Unfolded there anew,
Disclosed in each new breaking bud,
In every blade that grew.

Uncovering the mystery
That holds each starry flower,
That shakes the fresh pink petal
Across the orchard bower.

WITH WHAT PAINED SURPRISE we read the reports that Mrs. Biddle has been snubbed by her society friends in Philadelphia because when she made her arctic trip she left her husband behind. How mid-Victorian Philadelphia is, to be sure. Why, the ladies don't take their husbands along when they go on trips these days. They park the silly things on the front porch, give 'em plenty of cigarets, gin, and some nice gels to play with and go their way. And everybody is so much happier that way.

"MARKING" CHILDREN.

SOME time during the past winter one of the magazines carried a piece of fiction, in which the following dialogue occurred: "Mother," she said, "what was it that marked Sam and me to be so ugly? What was it?"

To which the mother replied to her daughter:

"And when my body was given and taken without love, and I knew I was going to bear a child, I put my will on making the child as ugly as the giving of my body was to me. First Sam and then you; I marked you both."

Of course, people read fiction for reasons other than learning science, but in spite of that it would be somewhat better if the victim did not muddy the waters.

We recall that that very able writer, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, used her writing ability to mix up fiction and fact on this inheritance question in a way that caused unhappiness to many thousands of the readers whom she otherwise tried to make happy. Her particular offending lay in perpetuating the age old myth that birthmarks were the result of mental shock to which some prospective mothers were exposed. Uselessly, she caused some good women to develop anxiety states and fear neuroses that did them much harm, even though their babies escaped birthmarks.

The truth in the statements quoted from this bit of fiction is that children inherit their features from the parents. In some instances, the child resembles one parent; in others, the other. In some cases the child resembles a grandparent or, occasionally, some even remoter ancestor. However, most children have features that are conglomerates—one from one line, another from the other—the Jones nose and the Smith mouth, for instance. This the novelist need not have said, since everybody knows it. The fiction consists in the statement that the prospective mother can wish her features, or any features, on her child; that the features can result from the emotions, and that the laws of inheritance are different in love marriages.

When a child begins to develop, ten lunar months before birth, the plans and specifications of that child's features are already in the builder's hands. The architect has done his job and has gone away on a vacation. The builder has the blueprints before him and he follows the specifications. No amount of wishing or hating on the part of the mother or father will alter the plans, then or thereafter. The mother supplies the food, but she has no telegraph lines running to the baby by which she can send her mental or her emotional reactions to him. The mother might wish day and night for twins, or for a brood without adding in the slightest to the size of the family. And that is sometimes just as well for the Sams and the heroines of fiction.

The next error is that a loveless marriage brings about some new inheritance laws. I presume ducks represent the last word in polygamy. If a drake has any family love, any continuing affection for a duck, or for his and her ducklings, there is no evidence of the fact, and yet, every young drake in the flock will resemble his daddy. On the other hand, certain birds mate for life, and still others for a year. The inheritance laws in the three groups are the same.

PRENATAL CARE.

C. writes:

1. What can an expectant mother, not particularly strong herself, do so that her child may get the best possible prenatal care?

2. Can she, with such care, have a strong baby? There is nothing vitally wrong with her, according to her physician. She is one of those persons who could not enter a health contest, yet she desires to have physically fit children.

3. Please give a diet and prescribe a mode of living suitable for her condition.

REPLY.

1. She should see her physician regularly, or register at a maternity clinic. She will be told to watch her weight and keep a record of it, and of her blood pressure. She will be given a Kahn test and her urine will be examined periodically. She will be advised as to work, exercise, fresh air, outings, and diet.

2. Yes. Many frail women have fine babies, as many have observed. Many women are never so vigorous and healthy as during child bearing.

3. The diet should contain plenty of vitamin B complex. Among the foods rich in this are wheat germ and whole wheat. The doctor or clinic will advise as to rules of living and diet.

Send to the children's bureau, department of labor, Washington, D. C., for their booklets, "Prenatal Care" and "Infant Care."

DANDRUFF.

H. L. writes:

1. What causes dandruff?

2. How can one get rid of it?

REPLY.

1. A snake sheds its skin in one piece. Man commonly sheds in minute pieces. Sometimes he sheds in flakes in the hair region. That is called dandruff. The tendency to shed in flakes may be due to neglect of the skin in that region. Possibly some cases are bacterial in origin. Since the microbes, called fungi, are being found to be the cause of so many skin troubles, we may find that they cause some cases of dandruff.

2. Wash the scalp with soap and water very frequently. A man should do this daily. After drying, it may be advisable to use a little grease. Spend considerable time brushing the hair vigorously. This treatment will cure the cases that are due to neglect. Those of a more severe kind will require the services of a physician.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

DEMOCRATIC—1896.

Chicago, July 11.—William J. Bryan of Nebraska, "The Boy Orator of the Platte," was nominated for President by the Democratic national convention held in the Coliseum on 63d street. The nomination came on a stampede during the taking of the fifth ballot. Bryan's closest rival on the preceding four ballots had been "Silver Dick" Bland of Missouri. The fourth ballot stood Bryan, 276; Bland, 241, with 512 votes required to nominate.

Illinois precipitated the stampede to Bryan on the fifth ballot when it cast its 48 votes solid for him. When Tennessee voted it was evident that Bryan would win easily and Gov. Stone of Missouri arose and withdrew Bland's name. Senator Turpie withdrew the name of Claude Matthews of Indiana and the name of Horace Boies of Iowa also was withdrawn. Then state after state attempted to record itself in the pandemonium for Bryan.

The swing to Mr. Bryan began the day before when he made his famous speech in closing the debate on the silver plank in which he concluded: "Having behind us the commercial interests and the laboring interests and all the tolling masses, we shall answer their demands for a gold standard by saying to them: 'You shall not press down on the brow of labor this crown of thorns. You shall not crucify mankind on a cross of gold.'"

The speech was followed by a demonstration rarely, if ever, equaled in a national political gathering, and from that time Bland's chances had been on the wane. If Bryan should win the election he will be the youngest man ever to have been President. He will be 37 years old next March.

Chicago, July 12.—Arthur Sewall, a wealthy shipbuilder of Bath, Me., was nominated for Vice President by the Democratic national convention yesterday during the progress of the fifth ballot. Bolting Gold Democrats have already begun a move to place a third ticket in the field.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 21, 1916.

NEW YORK.—Evidence of a country-wide plot carried on by Czech agitators in the United States, aimed to bring about a revolution in Austria-Hungary and, incidentally, involving the United States in war on the side of the allies, has been obtained by the federal department of justice. The evidence came out as the result of a searching investigation of charges made three months ago by the Providence Journal against the editor of the Bohemian weekly Vesmir, published in Chicago, accusing him of being subsidized by the Austrian government.

PARIS.—The Germans made desperate attacks on the allied lines at three widely separated points. In two they were checked without any important advantage having been gained, but in the third they made some advance. The army of the crown prince, after hours of terrific bombardment, attacked the French lines to the west of the Meuse and north of Verdun in great force.

BERLIN.—According to German correspondents, the attacks being carried out on the west bank of the Meuse in the Verdun district have resulted in materially straightening the German front, which now runs nearly in a direct line from Avocourt over hill 304 to Le Mort Homme. The German attack along both sides of the road between Haucourt to Esnes is reported to have already carried the Germans from hill 287 to the southern extremity of the triangle shaped Canard wood, where the French have strongly entrenched themselves.

AUSTRIAN PRESS HEADQUARTERS, BY WAY OF BERLIN.—The army of the Austrian Crown Prince Archduke Charles Francis continues to force the Italians back toward the border in the southern extremity of Tyrol and has strengthened and extended its hold on those sections of Italian territory.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What is the importance of Voltaire?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space in Monday's Tribune.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

Was Shakespeare a greater dramatist than Sophocles?

ANSWER:

Such a question is meaningless unless there can be established fixed and definite standards as to just what constitutes greatness as a dramatist. Men have never quite agreed on such standards. In particular some allowance would have to be made for the differences in the life of ancient Athens and that of Elizabethan England, which make direct comparisons difficult. It would be more profitable to start with the admitted greatness of both writers, and to study the way in which each tried to carry out the objects which he set himself.

WOULD REMAIN LIABLE.

Chicago, May 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a property owner converts his coal burning plant into an oil burning one and contracts for an $800 equipment to be paid for monthly over a period of three years, is he still obligated for all payments if the first mortgage holder forecloses shortly after the installation is completed and one or two payments are made, or will the mortgage man have to assume the responsibility? 2. Does the same apply to any other outstanding bills against the owner? 3. That is, does the mortgage man have to assume the debts or is the owner liable for them? E. K.

1. We see no reason why the foreclosure should cut off his liability on his promise to pay for the plant.
2. Yes.

WHY THEY CAME.

Chicago, May 15.—In a news article from Holland, Mich., it was stated that that town was founded in 1847 by "Dutch fathers who wanted religious freedom." In 1568 Holland began to wage war against his Catholic majesty Philip II. of Spain. The country was determined to establish once and for all the principle of religious freedom. In 1648, the fight having been won, peace was restored. Ever since that time Protestants and Catholics have lived harmoniously together, free to worship and to practice their religion without governmental oppression, persecution or interference. The statement that Holland, Mich., two hundred years later was founded by searchers for religious freedom is therefore erroneous.

Of course, we all understand that substantial, patriotic American citizens enjoy saying, "My ancestors came here to escape persecution and tyranny." It is something to be proud of. To say that they left the homeland because the cupboard was nearly always empty and there was never enough food on the dinner table to satisfy the family would, somehow, detract from one's respectability. No sensible American would admit that. Whenever the "religious freedom" reason is brought up we really ought to accept that good naturedly and say politely, "O, certainly, we understand."

But Holland was in the vanguard of nations that fought for freedom of conscience, and the good burghers of Holland, Mich., should make no statements that lessen the honor to which this courageous little country is forever entitled.

C. HOOGSTRAAL.

THE WORLD'S FAIR SCHOOL.

Chicago, May 18.—In response to last Sunday's interesting editorial on "A Model School for the World's Fair," let me point out:

1. Even if there were no World's Fair, a new school building is needed to house the 555 children now attending school in temporary portables on the site owned by the board of education at 41st street and Lake Park avenue. The proposed new building has been called the World's Fair Model Elementary school building because of its proximity to the Century of Progress exposition site.

2. Schools comprise a major portion of the government of Chicago; they affect every family in the city. Construction of this proposed World's Fair model elementary school will give the Chicago public school system an opportunity to show 100 years of progress in school building and school organization creditably and without additional cost to the taxpayers.

3. In an effort to make this the best planned school in America, 29 consultants—leading American architects and school building planners from New York, Alabama, Texas, California and intermediate points, including members of the Strayer survey staff—have assisted in the planning of the building.

4. The plan for the World's Fair building is "advanced" but not bizarre. One of its features will be flexible classrooms, permitting a progressive, modern type of instruction centering about four learning situations—namely: individual learning, committee or small group type of learning, and the large audience type of learning.

5. The World's Fair school building will be economical to construct. It is unusually compact. There is no basement. The auditorium is small—300 pupil capacity and without a balcony. By an ingenious use of the gymnasium the same building space can also be used for a penny lunch room. There are innumerable other economies.

6. The Chicago building code would not permit a school building with the type of architecture and construction used in the Century of Progress exposition buildings. Even if permitted, it would be too expensive. If the World's Fair administration building cost 27 cents per cubic foot and will last only twenty years, it is not comparable to a school building which may cost 35 cents per cubic foot but will serve seventy-five to one hundred years.

7. We are convinced that the building will be extraordinarily well adapted for instruction. DON C. ROGERS,
Director of Research and Building Survey, Chicago Board of Education.

BRIDLE PATH BLUES.

Chicago, May 15.—Today, Sunday, hundreds of people along the lake front, occupying seats or sauntering on the promenade, were unwilling targets to clouds of dust, stirred up by horses' hoofs and carried by the west wind. Of course, it is only human that persons who have money these days will try to usurp the spotlight, even if they don't spend the stuff. Granting also that folks who have nothing else to do outside of ride unfed nags must enjoy themselves—there still remains the question as to whether this should be done at the expense of others' meager enjoyment.

Some of these nitwits, having more external splendor than brains, particularly females, rode back and forth between the Drake hotel and Lincoln park several times—right in the path of the wind—as though they wished to throw their dirt in the faces of those less fortunate. FRANKLYN H. SAYLOR.

MacCARTIE ON THE STUDY OF LAW.

Chicago, May 18.—You are credulous, not to say gullible, in printing a letter from an alleged Chicagoan named Patrovsky, claiming to be a law student at the University of Alabama. No Chicagoan, even a bohunk, would be fool enough to study law at the University of Alabama. MACCARTIE.

HORSE SENSE.

Cicero, Ill., May 5.—Would it not be possible for President Hoover to call in his cabinet and order them to cut the expenses of running their departments or, failing to do so, to resign? In the course of my work I find such items as the women's bureau of the department of labor sending investigators into 25 states to investigate the best type of drinking fountain for factories. (The conclusion reached, by the way, was identical with that of the public health service some years before.) Could not President Hoover, as chief executive, stop such asinine waste if he could not abolish the bureau?

If the various services rendered by the various departments are of any real use to anybody, then why not have the recipients of those benefits pay for what they get and so render the department self-supporting at least in part? The geodetic survey makes a small charge for their maps. Why not the commerce department charge for their information on imports and exports? If the information is not worth anything, then why spend millions of dollars each year gathering these statistics? Would not an executive order make such a charge possible? THOMAS O'NEIL.

DOES THIS LOOK LIKE A CRIMINAL ELEMENT?

JUDGES CLASH OVER WAUKEGAN BANK CLOSING

Dady and Shurtleff in Receivership War.

A judges' war broke out yesterday in Lake county when Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady entered an order voiding the removal by his colleague, Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo, of Fred E. Whitney as receiver for the defunct Waukegan State bank.

He reinstated Receiver Whitney, holding that Judge Shurtleff acted without jurisdiction when he removed him ten days ago. Judge Shurtleff replied immediately that if Whitney interferes with the actions of his appointee, John R. Fulton, a Waukegan real estate man and former banker, he would place himself in danger of a jail sentence for contempt of court.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson, who originally appointed Whitney, subject to Judge Dady's approval, has sided with Judge Shurtleff in the controversy. He filed with L. O. Brockway, Lake county recorder, a certificate removing Whitney as receiver and approving the $100,000 bond of Receiver Fulton.

Shurtleff Removes Whitney.

Judge Shurtleff removed Whitney while he was sitting in Waukegan last week in Judge Dady's absence. His grounds were that Whitney had taken no steps to recover from the Central Republic bank of Chicago $340,000 in collateral which the Waukegan State bank posted on a loan shortly before it closed. He said that Whitney should have demanded the return of the collateral and given the Chicago bank in place of it an unpreferred claim certificate which would have placed the bank on the same plane with depositors.

Judge Dady returned yesterday from a fishing trip, and read from the bench an order declaring that Judge Shurtleff had no jurisdiction in the bank receivership case even though he was sitting in Lake county. He ordered the removal order vacated, and ordered Whitney to continue to act as receiver.

"Judge Dady specifically set the bank case before me," said Judge Shurtleff from his home in Marengo, "when he assigned to me the claim of Decker and Decker, original attorneys for the receiver, on the grounds that he was too closely connected to hear the case."

Probate Judge Martin Decker of Waukegan, senior partner of Decker and Decker, was Judge Dady's fishing partner on the trip from which they returned yesterday.

Threatens Jail for Whitney.

"When Judge Dady did that," Judge Shurtleff continued, "he set the entire bank case before me. I will be back in Waukegan Monday. There is nothing to stop me from sending Whitney to jail if he interferes with the acts of the new receiver."

Frank H. Just, Waukegan editor, and H. A. Smith, who are members of the committee seeking to reorganize the defunct bank as the Citizens Bank and Trust Company of Waukegan, announced yesterday that the full $400,000 capital of the new bank is paid in, and that they will be able to open on June 17, the first anniversary of the failure of the Waukegan State.

Before the new bank can function, the receiver of the old one must petition the court for permission to sell its assets to the new institution. The reorganization plan provides that Waukegan State depositors shall receive 35 per cent of their deposits in full satisfaction of their claims.

Receiver Whitney has stated that he would refuse to ask permission to transfer the assets to the new bank. Receiver Fulton is studying the proposition and has made no statement of his intentions.

Heir to Tobacco Fortune and Actress Married

SMITH REYNOLDS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Smith Reynolds, formerly Libby Holman, comedy singer, whose marriage has just been revealed, although it is said to have taken place several months ago.

At New York Hotel

New York, May 20.—[Special.]—Libby Holman, the "torch singer," whose Moanin' Low in "The Little Show" three years ago made her a stage success, and Smith Reynolds, heir to a tobacco fortune, were married secretly several months ago and are now at the Ambassador hotel here. They came here from a honeymoon in Honolulu.

Miss Holman confirmed the report over the telephone today, but said she was leaving for an unspecified destination on Long Island to avoid interviews.

"I guess I might as well give up," she said. "It's true."

Miss Holman is 26, six years the senior of her husband. This is her first marriage, his second.

Mr. Reynolds' first wife was Anne Cannon, daughter of Joe F. Cannon, southern manufacturer of towels. They were married at 2 o'clock in the morning of Nov. 16, 1929, in the presence of Mr. Cannon and the Cannon chauffeur and separated soon afterward, Mr. Reynolds making a $1,000,000 settlement.

Reynolds is an aviation enthusiast, and when his wife decided to go to Nevada last fall for a divorce he flew her and their infant daughter there. Mrs. Reynolds lived at the dude ranch of Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., and obtained her divorce at Yerington to avoid the publicity.

Meanwhile, in spite of reports she and Miss Holman were engaged and he had threatened to kill himself unless she consented to marry him quickly, the young heir insisted he never would marry again. Mrs. Reynolds was born in Cincinnati, the daughter of a lawyer, and was graduated from the University of Cincinnati, where she studied law.

CONVICTION OF 3 NEW YORK BANK OFFICERS UPHELD

Involved in $8,000,000 Transactions.

New York, May 20.—[Special.]—The appellate division of the Supreme court by a vote of 4 to 1 today affirmed the conviction of Bernard K. Marcus, Saul Singer, and Herbert Singer for misapplication of the funds of the defunct Bank of the United States.

B. K. MARCUS. [Acme Photo.]

Marcus was the president of the bank, Saul Singer the executive vice president, and his son, Herbert Singer, a director and clerk in the office of the counsel for the bank, Isidor J. Kresel.

The three men were found guilty in the Court of General Sessions before Judge George L. Donnellan on June 20, 1931, after a trial that lasted three months. The special prosecuting attorney was Max D. Steuer. The jury disagreed as to the guilt of the fourth defendant, Henry W. Pollock, a vice president and director of the bank.

The trial was a complicated one and many of its phases are now being reviewed at the trial of the state superintendent of banks, Joseph A. Broderick, who is charged with neglect of duty in failing to close the Bank of United States before he did.

The misapplication of funds involved the transfer of large amounts of money from the bank to a group of subsidiary and affiliate corporations.

Much was made of one transaction in particular. This was the transfer of stocks from the bank to a group of affiliate corporations through a number of safe deposit companies which were subsidiaries of the bank and back finally to their original resting place in the bank itself. This was known as the $8,000,000 deal of Jan. 13, 1930. Specifically, the indictment against the three men charged the misapplication of $2,009,518 of the funds of the Municipal Safe Deposit company.

In the course of the trial thousands of documents were introduced into evidence; large scale charts visible to all the spectators in the court room and bearing in diagrammatic form the details of the transaction were employed.

Dismiss Rape Charges in Niles Center Court

August J. Pacini, 42 years old, director of the Pacini laboratories in Niles Center, was dismissed yesterday on a charge of rape brought by Dorothy Webb, 17 years old, a discharged employé of the laboratory. Pacini produced witnesses who told Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter of Evanston that Pacini was attending a meeting at the time of the alleged attack.

'O, SAY, CAN YOU SEE' BECOMES A PROBLEM TO U. S. JOBHOLDERS

Federal officials in Chicago, commenting yesterday on a congressional resolution sponsored by Representative Fuller of Arkansas, which would require every federal employé to learn to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner," were in general reticent about the vocal abilities of their assistants.

The one exception was Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer.

"My men can all sing the national anthem," he asserted, "or at least I think they can. I used to be president of the Federal Business association, composed of all department heads, and we sang it at every meeting."

"Did you sing it or just hum it?" he was asked.

"We sang it," the marshal insisted.

Prohibition Director M. L. Harney asserted that he had more important things to worry about than singing. One of his assistants declared that prohibition agents, from the nature of their calling, were more familiar with "Sweet Adeline" than the anthem.

An assistant district attorney maintained that "The Star-Spangled Banner" can be sung only with great difficulty and by tenors. He admitted it might be practical to have federal employés recite the words, but raised the legal point that an anthem is not an anthem unless there's music with it.

LIBRARY CANCELS 300 PAPERS AS AN ECONOMY MOVE

Readers in the Chicago public library and its 45 branches no longer have access to magazines, newspapers and other periodicals, Carl B. Roden, librarian, revealed yesterday. Subscriptions to nearly 200 foreign publications and 100 American periodicals have been canceled by the library board as an economy measure.

"In the past foreign born persons in Chicago came to the library on the day that their homeland paper or magazine arrived," said Mr. Roden, "but now they are denied this chance of getting news."

Among the popular foreign publications discontinued are the L'Illustration and Figaro of France, Westermann's Monatshefte and Velhagen und Klasing's Monatshefte of Germany, the Giornale d'Italia from Rome, and the Swedish magazine, Hvar 8 Dag.

Mr. Roden said that the library had not purchased a new book or replaced an old one since June 1, 1931.

NOTE FROM NO. 2 GETS DIVORCE FOR WIFE NO. 1

Mrs. Margie Bartel Gottlieb, 7715 Gregory street, Norwood Park, thought she still had a husband until the second wife of Lawrence Gottlieb, a juggler, wrote to her and asked what Lawrence's favorite breakfast food was. The first Mrs. Gottlieb related this story before Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday and he granted her a divorce on grounds of desertion.

Mrs. Gottlieb, an actress, married Gottlieb in December, 1927, and he left her in October, 1929, she charged. She has not seen him since, she testified, but a month ago she got a letter, signed by Sylvia Marks Gottlieb, which stated:

"My Dear Margie: I feel that I'm a relative of yours now, and that we have something in common since I married Lawrence. You know his habits and his likes so well, I thought that you would give me some of his favorite recipes, and especially what he likes for breakfast."

Disarm Body Unanimously Condemns Germ Warfare

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, May 20.—The disarmament conference's commission on gas and germ warfare unanimously adopted the French proposal to ban bacteriological warfare today. This is the first weapon the conference has unanimously condemned. Gas is proving more troublesome, chiefly over whether the ban is to include tear gas, incendiary shells, flame projectors, and other borderline cases.

BRITAIN PUTS ON SOFT PEDAL IN ROW WITH IRISH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 20.—James H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, in a speech tonight at Hove, Sussex, repeated his threat that Great Britain might not deal with the Irish Free State at the imperial conference at Ottawa. At the same time he tried to soften the blow by appealing to Irish sentiment and by complimentary references to the "good work accomplished between the two countries in the last ten years."

J. H. THOMAS. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

The minister declared that he stood by every word of his recent statement regarding the British government's attitude in relation to the Free State.

Based on Sanctity of Treaties.

"But I want to make it absolutely clear that in making them I was not basing our position on any constitutional theory or question of status, but simply on the sanctity of treaties and the maintenance of agreements," he continued. "How could we negotiate fresh agreements with the Irish Free State if the existing ones were not observed?"

Mr. Thomas said that he could not believe that relations between the two countries had been on such a footing.

"The government and people of this country wish well toward the Irish Free State," he said. "We wish to see the people happy and prosperous. We believe the prosperity of the Free State is bound up with the prosperity of this country, and that it is in the best interests of both countries that they should remain linked together within the British commonwealth of nations."

Traces Growing Friendship.

Referring to history of the last ten years, Mr. Thomas declared the period had witnessed marked improvement in the political relations of the two countries and a growing friendship and understanding.

Soft pedalling in his conclusion, the secretary for dominions said, the British government approached the difficult problem fully conscious of all that is involved, "but genuinely anxious to prove to our fellow citizens of the Irish Free State that it is to the future and not to the past that all men of good will must bend their energies."

BRITISH PROPOSE PARLEY TO DECIDE SHANGHAI STATUS

Ask Foreign Officials to Join Move.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 21.—[Saturday.]—The British Residents' association of Shanghai today sent a letter to foreign consular officials and chambers of commerce proposing that an international conference be called to settle questions relating to the future status of the Shanghai foreign settlements.

The letter said that the conclusion of the Sino-Japanese conflict left the foreign settlements in a precarious situation. Unless international action is taken to hold a round table conference, it declared, large foreign investments here are likely to be prejudiced.

Proposal Put Up to Voters.

The letter said steps are being taken to call a meeting of Shanghai voters for the purpose of framing a resolution with similar object.

The Japanese attempted at various times during the course of the recent armistice negotiations to compel the Chinese to agree to a round table conference to adjust the status of the foreign settlements, but the Chinese sidestepped the issue.

Now, since the Japanese troops will soon be evacuated, the Chinese government has announced that it has no intention to participate in an international conference. The government's decision is due to political agitation against any move likely to prolong the life of the foreign settlements.

Seek "Independent City."

During the Sino-Japanese conflict 39 local and foreign business men and real estate owners formulated a project to create an independent free city and state by embracing Shanghai city in a 20 mile zone. The project was sent to Geneva, but United States Minister Nelson T. Johnson and Secretary of State Stimson opposed the scheme.

The chief reason for the Chinese opposition is the early expiration of the Sino-American and Sino-British exterritorial treaties, which the Chinese expect will undermine the legal status of the settlements and result in practical Chinese control.

PARENTS TO ASK FOR RELEASE OF VIRGIL KIRKLAND

The release of Virgil Kirkland will be sought by his mother and stepfather at the meeting of the board of trustees of the Pendleton reformatory during the second week in June. Kirkland, who is serving a one to ten year sentence as a result of the death of his sweetheart, Arlene Draves, will have served his minimum term by that time.

Elmer Kirkland, stepfather of the youth, said yesterday that he and Mrs. Kirkland would request permission to appear before the board. Miss Draves, 18 years old, died after a drinking party in Gary after she had been attacked. Kirkland was convicted of assault with intent to commit rape.

WHEELER DEMANDS SENATE INVESTIGATE SWARM OF LOBBYISTS

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—An investigation into the "locust swarm of lobbyists" which has been buzzing through the halls of congress this year was demanded today in a resolution introduced in the senate by Senator Burton K. Wheeler [rad. Dem., Mont.].

Repeating President Hoover's recent allusions to the lobbyists, Senator Wheeler's resolution asked the senate judiciary committee to investigate the activities of the lobbyists and to ascertain whether the practice of lobbying should be prevented.

The body of the resolution authorizes and directs the judiciary committee or a subcommittee to:

"1. Investigate into the activities of lobbying associations and lobbyists and into the charges made by the President of the United States and by various members of congress that a swarm of lobbyists are haunting the hall of congress, causing delays and seeking selfish privileges for special groups and sections of the country.

"2. Report to the senate as soon as practicable the results of such investigations and, if in its judgment such practice should be prohibited, to submit with such report its recommendations for the necessary remedial legislation."

DIES OF KICK BY HORSE.

Clarence Howard, 38 years old, 245 West 45th street, died at the county hospital yesterday of injuries suffered when he was kicked and trampeled by a horse on Tuesday. The animal attacked him in the stables of James McPhillips, 4175 Emerald avenue, where he was employed.

PASCHEN LOANS ARE RULED OUT IN INCOME CASE

Chris Paschen's lawyers were barred yesterday from presenting evidence of the loans Paschen made at the Foreman National bank in their defense to the charge that the former building commissioner evaded income tax payments about $114,000 during 1927 and 1928, for which he is on trial before Federal Judge Barnes.

During the years in question Paschen borrowed about $1,700,000 at the bank and Cassius Poust, his chief attorney, was prepared to show this yesterday through the testimony of James B. Galligan, who was in charge of the bank's loan discount department. The government objected and legal arguments outside the hearing of the jury consumed a great part of the day. Judge Barnes ruled eventually that only a record of the interest payments Paschen had made could be given to the jury. These amounted to about $8,600. The court instructed the jury to disregard any other evidence on the loans given to them, sustaining the government, which argued that no contention was being made that the loans represented income.

At the close of the day, testimony was being given as to fees Paschen paid the bank. The witness, Miss Alma Alfoth, who handled Paschen's trust account, will continue this morning.

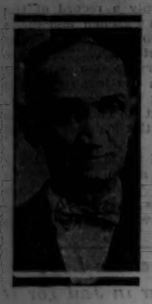
JURY CONVICTS MUNCIE MAYOR WITH 9 OTHERS

Lone Defendant Freed of Rum Plot Charge.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., May 20.—[Special.]—A jury of southern Indiana farmers found Mayor George R. Dale and nine of his ten co-defendants guilty in the so-called Muncie liquor conspiracy case late today. The jury was out four hours.



GEORGE R. DALE.

The single defendant acquitted was Raymond Hoover, Muncie police chauffeur, whom the government indicted for driving a police car in which which a gallon of liquor was allegedly transported from Muncie police headquarters to the 1930 Democratic state convention in Indianapolis.

The others face a maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment and fines of $10,000 each. In addition to Mayor Dale, those convicted are: Frank Massey, police chief; Albert Parkhurst, police captain; Fred Ellis, secretary of the board of safety; Kenneth Horstman, Harry Nelson, Ray Powell and Dan Davis, policemen; Fred Kubeck, bootlegger, and Ernest Flatter, bootlegger. Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell set June 1 as the date for imposing sentence and permitted all the defendants to remain at liberty on their present bonds.

Dale Will Take Appeal.

A smile played across Mayor Dale's face as the clerk read the verdict.

"I've taken it on the chin before," he said, recalling past battles with the Klan in cases which he successfully appealed to the United States Supreme court. "We'll appeal this case, of course. The fight is just beginning."

In his closing address United States Attorney George R. Jeffrey cleverly sought to relieve the jury in advance of any qualms they might feel over voting a guilty verdict.

"If you men find that this conspiracy existed, you need feel no concern over the severity of the penalty which the defendants may incur" he said. "Your duty is merely to determine the facts. The judge stands ready to fix the punishment and grant any or all of the defendants the measure of justice which they deserve.

Harney Not Called.

The defense closed without calling Malachy L. Harney of Chicago, federal prohibition administrator for Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin, on whom Mayor Dale had based his hopes of establishing a "double standard" of enforcement, with particular reference to Muncie, Ind., and Cicero, Ill.

It transpired that Mr. Harney has already vouchsafed an explanation of the government's policies as between Muncie and Cicero to no less personage than the head of the Muncie Anti-Saloon league, George H. Higman.

In correspondence between the two, coming to light today, Mr. Harney states that the government has its eye on Cicero and that no violations of the prohibition law will be tolerated there.

Closing the defense argument to the jury, Attorney Dixson Bynum dwelt on "the sinister aspects of the prosecution of Mayor Dale."

BOGAN UPHOLDS TAX INCREASES FOR EDUCATION

"Most of the increase in taxation for educational purposes can be justified," William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, said yesterday in speaking to the Federation of Women High School Teachers at the Auditorium hotel.

In contrast to the "nineties," when the average American had a sixth grade education, Mr. Bogan said, today more than one-half of the boys and girls of high school age are enrolled in high schools. He predicted that education would increase until the high school graduate would be the average.

Mr. Bogan declared that expenses for many school functions should be borne by other governmental departments. He listed in this category the school doctor, nurse, dental care, penny lunch rooms, visiting teachers, truant officers, and classes for the blind and deaf.

Mr. Bogan said that plans for using the same building materials as the World's Fair has employed had been suggested to him for the schools. Those who favored this type of construction, he added, contended that building costs would be cut in half.

'STOP TAX ORGY' PLEA OF LOESCH AT NOON SPEECH

Destroy bureaucracy before it destroys the city, state, and nation, Frank J. Loesch yesterday told the Defenders of America at a luncheon in the College inn at the Sherman hotel. The veteran prosecutor was introduced by Chairman Nathaniel Leverone as Chicago's "first citizen."

"The way out of our financial jungle," said Mr. Loesch, "is consolidation. Eliminate the preposterous waste incident to multiple bureaucratic duplication of service; substitute a single municipality, the city of Chicago, for the 370-odd tax eating bodies in Cook county; get greater efficiency thereby and save at least 50 million dollars a year.

"Consolidation will not eliminate graft, but it will decrease it because it is easier to watch one body than four hundred. But the battle will be difficult because the officeholders will fight us to the end with our own money."

Five Young Robbers Fight Policeman; One Wounded

DEMANDS POLICE APPEAR IN COURT IN SPEED CASES

Municipal Judge Francis B. Allegretti, who is assigned to the Speeders' court, said yesterday that he was willing to cooperate to the fullest extent with the police of Lincoln park in imposing suitable fines against speeders if Capt. James U. Sammis of the park force would have the arresting officers in court. Capt. Sammis had declared that thousands of visitors to the park will be endangered this summer unless the judges abandoned the policy of leniency to speeders.

"I conferred with Capt. Sammis on the point yesterday," Judge Allegretti said. "The court is willing to cooperate, but it cannot do so on improper evidence. The arresting officer must be in court, otherwise the evidence is only hearsay and is illegal."

Capt. Sammis said that a survey of the last 186 speeding cases of the park force showed that the average speed was approximately 55 miles an hour and that the average fine imposed in the Speeders' court was around 44 cents.

Conference to Vote on Economy Proposal.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 20.—(AP)—The economy program of the Methodist general conference extended to episcopal salaries today as the committee on episcopacy placed before the delegates a scale of reductions for both the expenses and salaries of bishops.

The proposal, printed in the conference's calendar, calls for salary decreases of 16 per cent for both general conference and missionary bishops, and for expense allowance cuts which range up to 20 per cent. The date for legislation on the recomendations has not been designated, but no particular opposition to the plan is anticipated.

Proposed Salary Scale.

If approved, the recommendations of the episcopacy committee will effect the following reductions:

The maximum salary of an effective bishop will be cut from the present $7,200 to $6,000 and a missionary bishop will receive $5,000 instead of $6,000.

For retired bishops, the maximum allowance will be reduced from $3,000 to $2,500 and for a retired missionary bishop from $2,500 to $2,000.

The allowance for episcopal residences, now between $1,500 and $2,000, will be lowered to a scale ranging from $1,250 to $1,800, and the office expense allowance reduced to $1,500.

$1,500 Pension to Widow Stands.

The only item in the Episcopal fund appropriations which the committee recommended remain unchanged was the $1,500 pension allotted annually to the widow of a bishop.

The committee on central conferences submitted its quadrennial report and was ordered to continue its study of the problem presented by the formation of central conferences electing their own bishops. These reports have authority only in their own conference and not in the church at large, as is the case of a general conference bishop.

Regional Conference Plan.

The report suggested that it might be feasible in another quadrennial to change the name of central conferences to regional conferences for the entire church. The regional conference plan was seen as a step toward the formation of a Negro regional conference and a subsequent invitation to the Methodist Church South to rejoin the Methodist Episcopal church as a regional conference.

The adoption of a regional conference plan at the next quadrennial would reduce sharply the size and unwieldiness of the general conference.

The board of foreign missions, in two reports, informed the conference that it had not lost one dollar of income from its investments in bonds and guaranteed mortgages and that it has reduced its debt over three million dollars in the last eight years.

2 YEAR OLD BOY STRUCK BY TRUCK, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Manuel Dingillo, 2 years old, 1848 West Roosevelt road, died at the County hospital yesterday afternoon a few hours after he was crushed by a truck at Lincoln street and Roosevelt road. The driver, Malcolm Stewart, 9147 South Ashland avenue, was not held.

This death and 2 others in Cook county yesterday increased the toll since Jan. 1, to 416. The victims:

ADMIRAL BENSON, WAR TIME CHIEF OF NAVY, IS DEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—Admiral William S. Benson, chief of naval operations during the world war, died suddenly today at his home, 2420 Tracy place. Death was due to cerebral hemorrhage. Admiral Benson was 76 years old. He retired from active service on reaching the age of 64 on Sept. 25, 1919, and in March, 1920, was made chairman of the shipping board. He held this position until June 8, 1921, serving at the same time as president of the Emergency Fleet corporation.

Upon his retirement from both those positions he served as a shipping board commissioner until June 8, 1928.

By an act of congress, June 21, 1930, he held the rank of a full admiral on the navy retired list. He is survived by his widow and three children, Commander Howard H. Benson, now on duty at the naval academy; Lieutenant Commander Francis W. Benson, gunnery officer aboard the U. S. S. Trenton, and Mrs. Mary A. Krafft, wife of a librarian at Annapolis.

2 STUNTING FLYERS KILLED BY CRASH IN LOS ANGELES YARD

Los Angeles, Cal., May 20.—[Special.]—An airplane stunt to "salute" the wife of one of the men cost lives of two flyers today when a wing of their Nicholas Beasley high wing monoplane crumpled as they came up from a power dive and precipitated Roy J. Smith, pilot, and Albert Pehrman, 45, passenger, to death in the residential section of Los Angeles.

The pair made two power dives above Pehrman's home, and Smith never got the chance to shut off the single 80 horsepower Genet motor when his craft fell, narrowly missing the steeple of St. Paul's Presbyterian church and crashing on a garage and into the back yard of a home at 3d avenue and Jefferson street.

Flying wreckage struck the church and barely missed injuring school children who were crossing a street after emerging from grammar school for the afternoon.

Pick Your Own Color in Styles for Summer

Fashionable Blues Yield Some Prestige.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

TWO months ago any shopper could have told you that the world, at least the feminine half of it, was fashionably submerging in all and every shade of blue; those of us who weren't so sold on this indigo color scheme experienced just enough difficulty in finding smart clothes of other colors to listen to the voice of the majority and wear blue too . . . it took a lusty courage and untiring feet to find distinctive dresses or suits or coats and all the proper costume accessories of any other good spring color, other than the numerous tones of this popular shade.

Its another story now, slap your newest hat on your head, gather up the clothes allowance and rush down to shop while all the new summer things are fresh and crisp . . . you can blaze in color this summer . . . you can completely revert to any previous savage ancestry and splash around in wild and strong color combinations. Bold, almost hectic colors are rampant in every shop. You can look as primitively colored as an Indian and still be quite within the approval of famous fashion dictators.

If you are a bit fed up on shopping for dresses or other outer layers, dash into any sports shop and let the new bathing suits dazzle your blue, brown, or dull colored clothes wearied eyeballs. What there is of these seagoing costumes is gawdily satisfactory to swimmer and beach lizard alike. The colors are as bright and brilliant as the colors of a modern poster . . . brilliant blues that are almost beyond descriptive adjectives . . . rusty reds that seem sultrier than Mexican chili . . . sizzling yellows and oranges that will make your eyes blink . . . greens that are disreputable relations to any of the cool gray queens of early spring . . . new greens that are strident upstarts compared with any greens of last year's beaches. Then the riotous color mergers or combines shriek for your attention . . . whoever thought of these new combinations surely had no suppressions as far as color was used.

You may think you have seen about everything that can be done with black and white, but don't say anything about your knowledge until you have seen what really can swim and dive this summer in black and white! Triangles, squares, oblongs, circles, patch work effects, stripes, odds and ends . . . and swim suits that are tricky little feminine copies of a medieval jester's outfit are merely a few of the weird black and white get togethers. And all the rest of the cheerful color combinations are exuberantly combined, likewise.

Using this bathing suit pre-view as an appetizer, you will be more than hungry for the sight of new spectator sports costumes and dresses and even summer suits. All the new things are gayly colored and while most of the summer things are fashioned with a great deal of white there isn't any limit to color for contrast . . . good looking dresses start life simply with white, but only get as far as the waistline before color enters.

One smart ensemble is of white chalk crepe with a nautical silk handkerchief in brilliant red with white anchors printed all over it used as a pointed yoke in front and back . . . with this dress you will wear a matching short red silk jacket, red sports sandals and a white straw hat with a bit of the anchored red silk tied around the crown.

Another white frock distractingly Irish stays green with kelly green dotted silk cross bands and collar and finishes with a same shade of kelly green dotted silk hip length coat . . . it can be yours in any other color contrast that you may desire . . . and priced, along with heaps of other things, so comfortingly low that your budget beams to welcome such a purchase.

Louis E. Laflin Is Engaged to Pittsburgh Girl

Will Marry June Kennedy Next Month.

BY JUDITH CASS.

A PARTICULARLY interesting engagement being announced today in Pittsburgh and here is that of Miss June Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McCartney Kennedy of the eastern city, to Louis Ellsworth Laflin Jr., son of Mrs. Louis E. Laflin of Lake Forest.

The wedding is to take place next month, but it is to be very small and no date has been set.

Miss Kennedy was graduated last June from Wellesley college, for which she prepared at the Baldwin school at Bryn Mawr.

Mr. Laflin, who was graduated from Princeton in 1924, is known locally as a playwright, musician, and writer. His father was the late Louis E. Laflin, whose father was George H. Laflin, prominent Chicagoan of early days.

Mrs. Laflin, who was Miss Josephine Knowland of Plainfield, N. Y., tells me that her family and her son's fiancée's family have been friends for three generations.

Mr. Laflin was an active member of the Triangle club during his undergraduate days at Princeton and several years ago he published a book, "The Anxious Bench," which was written when he was at "prep" school at Lawrenceville.

Garrigue Gallagher to Be Bride Today.

When Miss Garrigue Gallagher, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Gallagher of Highland Park, becomes the bride of Charles Alexieff Butland this afternoon she will be attended by Miss Myra Little of Evanston as maid of honor and by Miss Martha Hackmeister of Evanston and Miss Harriet Stuart of New York City as bridesmaids. Miss Little came from Bryn Mawr and Miss Hackmeister from Wells college to attend Miss Gallagher.

David Gallagher has come from Dartmouth to serve as best man for his future brother-in-law, and ushering will be John Cummings, who came from Yale for the ceremony; Malcolm Jillson and Charles Dunham of Evanston, and John Adams. Gordon Brown and Hugh MacLeish are to stretch the ribbons in Christ Church where the service will be read at 5 o'clock by the rector, the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, assisted by the Rev. Louis Martin of Kankakee, formerly of Chicago.

After the ceremony there will be a very small reception at the Gallaghers' residence on Deere Park drive. Mr. Butland and his bride will sail from Vancouver on June 3, for Shanghai, China, where Mr. Butland is taking his bride to live. He is in business there and was in this country on a vacation when he met Miss Gallagher late this winter at Lake Placid.

A whirlwind courtship followed and before he left to visit relatives in England, the last of March, he had come to Chicago and had met Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher and Miss Gallagher's and his engagement had been announced. Mr. and Mrs. Butland will spend a few days in Colorado Springs and then will visit his father, Capt. George Butland, in Seattle, on their way to Vancouver.

Chicagoans in East for Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin II. and Miss Eleanor McCormick went east on Wednesday for the marriage of Mrs. McLaughlin's brother, T. Truxton Hare Jr. of Radnor, Pa., and Miss Winifred Thorndike, which is to take place this afternoon at the Emanuel church in Boston. Mrs. McLaughlin and Miss McCormick are to serve as bridesmaids. Mr. McLaughlin will usher and so will Philip Holden, who is at Harvard.

Other members of the bridal party include the following easterners: The bride's two sisters, Mrs. Charles B. Delafield and Mrs. C. Douglas Dillon of Boston, matrons of honor; Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. William Laurens Van Alens, Miss Virginia Richardson, Miss Edwina Campbell, all of New York, Miss Anne Howard of Mexico City and New York, and Miss Martha Hare, the bridegroom's sister, as bridesmaids.

A Gay Party for Bachelors.

Eight of the girls the members of the M. W. W. club entertained at a party some weeks ago gave a jolly party last night for the young bachelors who are so proud [or perhaps sorry for themselves] at being wife-less that they have formed a club and call themselves "Men Without Wives."

In addition to the club members, however, last night's hostesses had invited a few other men and girls, making up a party of about 50 which met at the Wrigley dock at 7 o'clock, went by boat to the Chicago Yacht club at Belmont harbor, and there enjoyed a buffet supper and dancing.

The hostesses were all debutantes of the past season, Miss Barbara Graf, Miss Alice Mae Dickinson, Miss Anne Byron Smith, Miss Grace Fitzmorris, Miss Isabel Gordon, Miss Janet Ayer, Miss Jane Fortune, and Miss Eleanor McNally.

Some of the members of the M. W. W. club are John Fortune, Talcott Griswold, Robert Rankin, William Hunt, Cameron MacDonald, George Whitney, Stewart Boal, "Rusty" Beatty, James Miksak Jr., and George Schultz. The party they gave was a dance in an artist's studio which they rented for the occasion, taking the girls to and from the party in an old red band wagon.

Such a gay time as every one who was fortunate enough to be included had at Mrs. Byron S. Harvey's delightful party last night! The festivities started with a dinner at Mrs. Philip Maher's charming residence on Cedar street and then the hostess and her guests went to the Illinois Woman's club for a swim in that gorgeous pool.

Supper at Mrs. Harvey's apartment at 130 East Delaware place completed the program. Among the twenty

Diego Rivera Work Placed on Exhibition

An Interesting Study of Mexican Genius.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Among the painters who have recently received a tremendous amount of appreciation is Diego Rivera, the Mexican muralist. He has made a strong impression upon the art of today. His murals in New York have been a source of enthusiastic controversy and, although his genius cannot be denied, his technique affords many points from which heated argument may branch.

An exhibit of ten original ink and pencil drawings and ten signed lithographs by him has been placed on view at Fred Leighton's Indian Trading post, 619 North Michigan avenue, and introduces Rivera in an interesting light.

The drawings include examples from different periods of Rivera's development. One can place the conventional "Still Life with Knife" as an early effort. His "Study of a Head" is bolder and shows more clearly his coming intimacy with sculpture. His "Self-Portrait" shows a man comfort loving, rather of the Oscar Wilde type; one that fits fluently into generous situations. The nudes which bank the portrait are atrocious as art, but curiously in keeping with the painter's character as he reveals it in his own study of his face.

Leaving Rivera the man, who, for all we know to the contrary, may be of as austere habit as any monk, we find him the artist in his group of stunning lithographs. The drawings leave one cold; obviously they are notes or little reproductions of larger works. The lithographs are satisfying in themselves. One is already versed in the Mexican's manner of portraying figures as planes and shapeless, insensitive masses of putty flesh. One overlooks the abnormality of his figures for the tender atmosphere that pervades them. Clumsy as they are, they still keep a sensitive, haunting and pathetic humanity.

Probably of the entire group the "Open Air School" is the finest. "Fruits of Labor" runs it a close second and the realistic "Boy and Dog" is irresistible.

The exhibit is worth seeing, if only that it shows us the much talked of Rivera from another and unpretentious angle. It will remain on view to June 4.

Mrs. Biddle Snubbed for Arctic Trip, but She Is Going Again

Philadelphia, Pa., May 20.—(AP)—Not that she gives a hang, but Mrs. Edward M. Biddle has been called a "hell cat" and has been snubbed by many of her friends, she says, since she returned last month from Alaska. Just the same, she's going again in a couple of years.

The society woman made a solitary trek up beyond the Arctic circle, became snowbound for weeks, and found a lot of material for a book.

It was for leaving her lawyer husband to take the adventure jaunt, she declared, that some of her friends have turned their backs on her.

"I have been terribly criticized for taking this trip," she said, jiltingly. "My husband was absolutely the only person who stood up for me. I want to go back again.

"My husband won't go with me—he doesn't like that sort of thing—but I know he'll help me again to do it. The rest of my family object terribly and many persons have openly snubbed me on the street since I returned."

Janet Fairbank Scores Success in Berlin Debut

Americans in Germany Attend Concert.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 20.—Janet Fairbank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank of Chicago, scored a great success in her Berlin debut tonight, especially in a group of songs in French by Ravel and in English by the Chicagoan, John Alden Carpenter.

Critics praised the sweetness of her voice and her clever musical interpretation.

Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett and the entire American colony were in the audience. Janet will be heard in America over a radio network on Sunday, June 5, when she will be the singer in a varied program furnished by American women in Germany.

The concert was given in the Vechsteinsaal, the leading small concert hall of Berlin.

Nurses' Association Announces Lower Rates, New Service

The Illinois State Nurses' association announced yesterday a new schedule of rates affecting 5,300 registered nurses in Cook, Lake and Du Page counties. Under the schedule patients in hospitals or their own homes may hire trained nurses for shorter periods than was formerly possible, at lower rates.

The rates for service 12 hours and 20 hours a day remain the same, $7 and $8, respectively, with three meals. The new schedule sets up an eight hour classification, however, for which the rate is $5 and one meal, and a 10 hour classification, for $6 and two meals. Rates for nursing service by the hour were cut from $2 to $1.50 for the first hour, and from $1 to 50 cents for each hour thereafter.

The new schedule promises a better distribution of registered nurse service, benefiting both the public and the profession, Miss M. Helena McMillan, superintendent of nurses of Presbyterian hospital, told 57 nurses graduated from the nursing school there yesterday.

"This applies particularly to the hourly nursing service," Miss McMillan said, "which makes it possible for a family to employ a nurse for a fraction of a day. I believe the new schedule will provide more work for nurses and at the same time lower the cost to the average family."

Chicago Area Has Finest of Lilac Bushes

West Suburbs Enjoy Two Noted Collections.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"The lilac seems to call and coax
The hidden happy moods of folks;
The best we thought, the best we did
The lilac just takes off the lid."

Sigrid Sutton has included these pretty lines in her new and appealing little volume, "Dishpan Lyrics." And how appropriate this merry month of May when every lilac is dripping its dew drenched fragrance in riotous profusion!

Take an afternoon this week or next and wander into the western suburbs or along the shore to the north. Most every private garden has a few purple and white clusters nestling close to a doorway and there are a few grand displays open to visitors. It's a delightful experience, costs nothing, and sets this drab old world to the tune of a lilting spring song.

First there is Lilacia park in Lombard—without doubt the site of one of the finest collections of lilacs to be found in this part of the country. It used to be the estate of the late Col. William A. Plum, who gathered from the far away places of China, Japan, Africa, and Europe the 500 bushes representing more than 300 varieties.

Now the old homestead in the center of the thickly wooded estate is the Lombard public library and the lilac filled grounds a public park. And this week and next the blooms are in all their glory!—the President Lincoln, bluest of all blue lilacs; the Lucie Baltel with its huge spikes of coral pink; Mont Blanc, the giant double flowered white; Congo, most striking of all, perhaps, in its gorgeous purple, and Toussant L'Overture, named after the San Domingo martyr, a deep wine color.

One bush has even gone patriotic, for against a background of white clusters Col. Plum budded blue and red flowers. It compares with the huge bush on which Dr. Frank Johnson of Glen Ellyn has produced seven varieties and colors.

Dr. Johnson was a close friend of Col. Plum and for 40 years has shared his lilac interest. In fact, the Johnson collection given to the village of Glen Ellyn a few years ago for a public park has often been said to surpass the Lombard legacy. But however this may be, each is generally recognized as larger and more comprehensive than Boston's or Rochester's famous lilac collections.

The north shore boasts no single array as fine as these of the western suburbs, but the lilac fan will find plenty to enjoy the next week or two just browsing along the winding paths of Winnetka, Glencoe, or Lake Forest. The garden of the Paul Batteys on Skokie road in Glencoe is known for its big purple blooms, while the bushes on the grounds surrounding the homes of the Langdon Pearses and the John Buckinghams in Winnetka are beginning to waft their fragrance to the passerby.

Incongruous though it may seem, the lilac has an oriental past. It is a species of the olive tree, a native of Asia, and its original name in Sanskrit is "nila" or indigo plant. From Persia and Arabia the trail of the "nila" leads into Turkey and Poland, into Bohemia and Bulgaria, finally escaping into the heart of Europe, where since the 16th century the flower has been a fondling of gardens —as domestic as a house cat. And somewhere in the long journey the "n" of the original name has been changed to "l" and a "c" or a "k" or a "q" added as nations have taken the beautiful shrub into their dooryards and the name into their language.

"Mein Leopold" Quite a Boy in His Own Eyes

Mario .....Kifriede Borodin

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"Mein Leopold" ist ein whale of a fellow in his own eyes, those of his fatuously adoring father and the timorous augen of a mädchen who adores him, but to the rest of the world he is just a spoiled and impossible wastrel.

Herr Weigelt, Leopold's vater, ist ein shoemaker, and his employés are kept working industriously that Leopold may dance. The foreman, Herr Starke, is in love with Leopold's gentle sister, Klara—who might as well be a stepchild for all the interest her papa has in her. Everything is for "Mein Leopold, Mein Leopold" until Mein Gott you could strangle sein vater. . . .!

A mean old cuss, Herr Weigelt, who, through suffering learns the error of his way of rearing children, but for whom, at no time, could I have the slightest sympathy, though Max Adalbert, who plays this David Warfieldian rôle, is one of Germany's most popular character actors.

The story winds on deliberately, revealing in the train of Leopold's activities various romances and contretemps of one kind and another.

The acting is all unaffected and convincing—with the exception noted. Gustav Froelich as the foreman plays adeptly, but this part fails to bring out the personal appeal that has been such a drawing card.

There are several pleasing musical interpolations and some arresting photography. The staging is in the authentic, picturesque manner so typical of German thoroughness and punctiliousness as to detail. English subtitles.

Though "Mein Leopold," adaptation of an old play that has been shown off and on in Germany for some sixty years, is too long, it will prove interesting to the average movie-goer, Deutsch oder English.

See you tomorrow.

Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. Mrs. Sully loves her three children blindly, but is unable to help them spiritually or physically. Cynthia, the oldest, has had a tragic marriage. Lew, a year older than Esmee, has had little from life. Esmee can barely remember the days before her father's death when they had had a cheerful home. Jimmy Consadine forces Lew to introduce him to Esmee. Lew warns Esmee she'll make trouble unless she keeps away from Jimmy. She sees a lot of Jimmy, however, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Lew gets into a jam and asks Esmee to get him $50. Esmee intends to ask Helen Morelli, to whose home she is invited to a cocktail party, for the money. At the party she meets Arthur Twining and tells him her troubles. He asks her to go to his place to get the money. Leaving the party they meet Arthur's roommate, Michael Marriott, and it's a case of love at first sight. He goes with Twining and Esmee. Leaving the apartment Esmee meets Jimmy.

INSTALLMENT VI.

INTO THE WORLD UNARMED.

Esmee knew no answer for that, she thought.

"I haven't been fair to him . . . No wonder he's angry . . . It may look——"

"Only it's not true," said Jimmy. "That's no loan."

"Jimmy!"

"O, for God's sake!" he interrupted. "What do you think I am? I saw that bird saying good-by to you—'dear Esmee'—I waited and waited on that corner for you, like a damned fool . . . then I went to your friend's house, and I saw you come out with those two fellows and get in a taxi. I got a taxi, too, and followed. Then I waited to see what would happen. And I did see, all right."

She was appalled at the idea of trying to explain Marriott to Jimmy. Or Twining, either. He would not be able to believe in either of them.

"You're the first girl that ever double crossed me," Jimmy went on. "At first I thought I'd like to wring your neck. But, I don't know . . . You've got me, all right. Something about you that makes a fool of me . . . Your eyes, maybe, or that smile of yours . . . Anyhow, I've got to love you . . . Here! We'll get a taxi and go down to my place," he said.

"Now I am going to make trouble—and how!"

"No, Jimmy . . . "

"Now, you look here!" he said. "You can't go this far. You come out of that house with your hands full of that other fellow's money, and you won't come with me. What's the idea?"

"You think—I'm horrible!" she said, with a sob.

"Aren't I telling you I think you're sweet, baby? You can have anything I've got, you darling little kid. Hey, taxi!"

"No, Jimmy! Jimmy, I can't!"

"Mean you won't?" he said.

"I—can't . . . Mother'd be worried."

"She'll get over it. Come on, baby!"

"No, Jimmy! No!"

"Here!" he said in a low voice. "Quit that now. You mean you won't come down to my place—just for a drink and a nice little talk?"

"Why don't you come back home with me?" she said.

"Now, look here!" he said, still very low, for the taxi had drawn up to the curb. "I try to be nice about this—and you stall me off. Now I'm not going to be nice, see? Now I'm going to make trouble—and how!"

"What are you going to do?" she faltered.

"You'd be surprised!" he answered, and jumped into the cab.

She stood there for a moment, clutching the envelope in her hand, with cold terror in her heart.

And her terror was not so much of his threats, for they were vague to her. It was his fully revealed opinion of her that so appalled her.

"He said he loved me—and he thinks I'm like that," she said to herself. "There must be something horrible in me, to make him think that . . . "

When she got into the subway, it seemed to her that the man sitting opposite was looking at her in a strange and meaning fashion. She uncrossed her knees, and pulled down her flimsy skirt. She felt her cheeks grow hot. Did he, too, think . . . ?

As she turned aside her head she met the glance of the guard, and she thought that in his face, too, there was that look . . .

If only she knew some intelligent, worldly-wise girl who could tell her how other girls behaved, how men really felt. Perhaps Jimmy's point of view was not exceptional, perhaps all men were like that. She thought of her father, but he was utterly inexplicable to her. She thought of Lew, and she wondered how he regarded girls, what his secret life was . . . She could not know; she could not imagine. She had come out into the world unarmed; she had only her compassion, her loyalty, her terrible innocence.

"Mr. Twining . . . ?" a pang shot through her. For he, too, was a mystery to her. He had been kind—but what had he thought?

"I asked him for money the moment I met him . . . Was he just sorry for me? Did he think I was—what Jimmy thinks—and just sorry for me?"

Then, as if like Pandora, she had let loose all her swarm of miseries, she looked into the chest for the one assuagement.

"Michael?"

And at once she was comforted. She was certain that Marriott had not misjudged her; in his last somber glance she had seen no criticism, no wonder, only an appeal to her heart, to which she had entirely responded.

"I'll have to talk to him," she thought, and was certain he would listen to anything she said.

She was no longer oppressed by the fear that Jimmy had caused her. It was as if Marriott's glance had reëstablished her value, her worth. The man opposite, the guard, were no more than phantoms.

"I said I'd ring him up tomorrow, and I shall . . . I don't care whether Jimmy likes it or not. I don't care what Jimmy thinks about anything."

Then it came to her that she was finished with Jimmy forever. But there was no feeling of freedom in that, only regret and sadness, and a sense of guilt. She had never before in her life given affection to any one, and then taken it away. The very essence of her soul was fidelity. She loved her mother, her brother, her sister, without needing any illusions, and without measure. She remembered old school friends and teachers with fervent loyalty. There still remained to her something of the clarity of a child's vision. She could see beyond faults and weaknesses to the forlorn sublimity of a soul. And it was sheer pain to her that she had, in her own way, loved Jimmy, and now could love him no more.

She was tired, and sick at heart. The four dark flights of stairs to be climbed made her sigh, even the thought that she was bringing the money Lew needed did not make her happy. Because with the Sullys, to tide over any crisis did so little good. One saved up enough for a pair of rubbers, and all the umbrellas in the house leaked. She mounted slowly, and rang the bell, and Mrs. Sully opened the door.

"Well, pet! Have a good time?"

"Grand! Is Lew home?"

"I think he's studying," said Mrs. Sully.

That aroused an almost bitter irritation in Esmee. Two years ago poor Lew, in some boyish love affair, had become cruelly aware of his disadvantages, and had taken a correspondence course in "high school subjects." He had worked for a month or two with fierce concentration, but then he had got a lot of overtime work; he had been too tired, the whole thing was too hopeless, and he had dropped it. The correspondence school had written him threatening letters about the balance due on his course, and he had answered, with one of his outbursts of anger:

"I have paid you for all the lessons I have had. I cannot take any more, and I will not pay you any more. You can sue and be damned."

That had been the end of it, and the end of his attempt to better himself. But he still had some books in his room, and Mrs. Sully still persisted in the fiction that he "studied." She could not see her children as they were, Cynthia, the tragic failure, Lew with his secret, unhappy life, Esmee the unarmed.

"Any dinner left, mother?" Esmee asked.

"Dinner? Why, goosie, it's nearly nine! We thought you'd had dinner at your party."

"Well, there's something in the house, isn't there?"

"I'll find something," said Mrs. Sully, and went off to the kitchen. A doctor's daughter she had been, a talented and beautiful girl with a magnificent contralto voice. But she had given her hand to Vincent Sully, the brilliant young newspaper man, and he had led her along a strange road.

Esmee went down the hall to her brother's room; the door was open, and she saw him in there, sitting on the edge of his cot, staring at the floor.

"As if he were in prison," she thought, with a stab of pain.

He looked up at her.

"Any luck?" he asked.

"I've got it for you, Lew."

Jack Dempsey Very Busy as Movie Escort

Romance Links Name to Two Actresses.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., May 20.—Jack Dempsey either has more "it" or more stamina than the rest of masculine Hollywood. He's got the colony in two camps, one contending that "Jack is that way about Lina Basquette" and the other that "Jack is ga-ga about Billy Dove."

Jack just grins.

He dances at one party with one gal and shows up at another affair that night with another.

And even Bebe Daniels, whose name used to be bracketed with Dempsey's while he was still champion and before he wooed and won the fair Estelle, finds Jack pleasant company at some of the informal Hollywood gatherings where they are members of the same crowd.

The key to the city of Culver City, Cal., where three of the big studios are located, brought 35 cents at Estelle Taylor's auction of effects from the home where she and Dempsey resided prior to their divorce.

Henry B. Warner, Lila Lee, Joyce Compton, Ivan Lebedeff, Jason Robards and Beryl Mercer, all "big names" in the past at the big studios are announced for the cast of M. H. Hoffman's independent studio production of "Indecent" [Madame Bovary].

The name of this one probably will be changed before it reaches the public.

Loretta Young herself sketched the plans for the new home in the Hollywood foothills where she lives with her three sisters, Sally Blane, Polly and and Ann Young and her mother. One of the features of the place is a sun bath room.

The big laugh of the day at Paramount was when a waitress refused to serve a lemon cream pie to Ben Turpin.

After which the same studio got a chuckle out of Grover Jones' answer to the query: "What time is it?"

"Twenty minutes of," Grover replied.

"Of what?"

"I don't know. The depression got so bad I had to lay one of the hands off."

Bob Woolsey, comedian, and Tim Whelen, film writer, are buying tickets for Mexico. They say they want to see a bull fight.

Woolsey also is booked for a personal appearance tour to the orient this summer, which will place him just as far away as he can get from his one-time partner and comedy pal, Bert Wheeler, who beat it for New York last Sunday, after quarreling with Woolsey and breaking up the seven year partnership.

Seven actresses have been cast as mothers in the Warner picture, "Life Begins." Oddly enough, six of the seven never have had children, although several of them have been married. The seven include Loretta Young, Vivienne Osborne, and Glenda Farrell. Miss Farrell is the only "mother" who ever was a mother. In the picture she is mother of twins.

guests were Arthur G. Cable [Mrs. Cable is at their place near Santa Fé for the summer], Rockefeller Prentice, Miss Rue Winterbotham and her fiancé, Alfred P. Shaw, the Walter Paepckes, and Mr. and Mrs. Shreve Badger.

Party for Junior League Delegates.

The Chicago Junior Leaguers will be busy today entertaining delegates to the national convention from the southern, northern, and eastern branches, for all of them are to meet here and leave tonight on a private car for Los Angeles. Most of them do not arrive in time for luncheon, so Mrs. Walter F. McLaren [Ghita Watson], chairman of the committee in charge of today's arrangements, has not planned a special luncheon for the guests, but there will be a dinner party tonight at the Casino.

Stars from the "Breadline Frolics" have been engaged to entertain the party, which will number about 150, until those who are leaving for California have to depart to take their train at 11 o'clock [daylight saving time] from the Polk street station. Miss Margot Atkin, the Chicago president, and Miss Dorothy Schmidt, who has just given up that office, are going to represent the Chicago league at the convention, which convenes Tuesday.

Mrs. Orville Taylor declares there are "grand bargains" to be had at the week's sale which the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins is to open today at 900 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. Henry C. Murphy and Mrs. Dexter Fairbank are to be hostesses today and Miss Gertrude McCarthy and Mrs. McClelland Drake will be in charge on Monday.

The University School for Girls alumnæ will hold the annual meeting at 11 o'clock this morning, preceding a breakfast at the school. Mrs. Henry K. Chapin is president.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Hodges (Sarah Brewster) are giving a small dinner party tonight at their residence in Lake Forest to celebrate their third wedding anniversary.

Sale to Be Held at Cudahy Home.

The public is to have its first chance to see the Joseph M. Cudahys' beautiful house in Lake Forest next Tuesday, when Mrs. William McCormick Blair will hold a sale of articles from the Eli Bates shop there from 10 to 6 o'clock. The house is considered one of the north shore town's most attractive ones and last year was the Cudahys' first summer in it. Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mrs. Elliott Donnelley, Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr., Mrs. Lawrence B. Robbins, Miss Maroussa Russell, Mrs. T. Philip Swift, Mrs. Robert Hixon, Mrs. Gordon Kelley, and Mrs. Stanley Keith, all of Lake Forest, and Mrs. William B. McIlvaine of Hubbard Woods and Mrs. Donald F. McPherson of Winnetka plan to entertain guests for luncheon that day and later take their guests to the sale.

Mrs. Edward L. Spears' (Mary Borden's) visit to Chicago was very short this time, for she arrived Thursday at noon and left yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock to spend the week-end in Cincinnati. From there she will go to Borden, Ind., and then back to New York to sail for England.

Mrs. John Borden and her children, Courtney Borden and Homer and Louise Stillwell, will come north about June 1 from the Borden plantation near Grenada, Miss., where they have spent the winter and spring, but will be in Chicago only long enough to pay a visit to the dentist before they join Mr. Borden in Muskegon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Vaux, who are going to London to see their daughter, Mrs. William de Burgh Whyte, and her family, sailed last night of the S. S. Statendam. Miss Amicie Whyte, who is a debutante this season in London, was presented at court this month. Other Chicagoans sailing on the Statendam were Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, who is on her way to visit her son, Miller F. Callahan, and his wife and baby son, in Haslemere, Surrey, England; Mrs. Alfred H. Granger, who is on her way to Vienna for the summer, and Mr. and Mrs. Elisha E. Chandler, who will spend three months in Europe.

Annual Meeting of Lighthouse.

The annual meeting of the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind will be held next Thursday at 3 o'clock at the Lighthouse, 3323 West 22d street. After the meeting ivy will be planted on the east wall of the building in memory of the late Mrs. Charles F. Pietsch, who served as president of this organization.

After writing about the Lighthouse recently I received a letter which said in part, "In writing of Miss Edith Swift as the founder of the Lighthouse you unwittingly slight such early workers for the blind as Mrs. Thomas Hood and her associates. . . . Later Miss Marjorie Harvey [now Mrs. Lynn Gratiot of St. Louis] and her mother, Mrs. Alfred T. Martin, became interested and started a weaving school there, together with the former Misses Edith Ware [Mrs. Charles Shedd], Margaret Shedd [Mrs. Preston Wells], Camille Henry [Mrs. John George McDonald], and many others who gave hours of time, money and effort to carry the Lighthouse through its early industrial infancy, not forgetting the men's board, on which were Charles G. King, Joseph M. Cudahy, Charles Thorne, and the late Louis Stumer. On the fine groundwork these and others laid Miss Swift has builded excellently."

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

New spectator sports types are engaging our attention, and today's dress is very attractive. The original model was made of crinkle crêpe in a pale shade of green. Cotton mesh, plain or printed linen, and sports silks would also be smart for its development.

The pattern, 3179, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 41 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material.

Doris Advises Gloomy Gal to BraceUpPronto

Too Young to Mope, She Says.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"If I keep on living the way I am I shall probably go stark mad. I am 23, have no special talent for anything, and as it looks now I am heading straight for spinsterhood.

"I simply do not take with boys at dances or parties. I am not one of those girls that attract at first sight, but feel if given the chance I could be as interesting as most girls. I dress as well as my salary permits and keep well groomed, all to no avail. I just feel as if nobody knows whether I have on a black or white dress.

"I want so much to go out and have good times like other girls do, but it is getting so I'm licked before I ever start anything, so I don't even attempt any more. The spirit's just knocked out of me. What would you suggest to fill in the long Saturday evenings and longer Sundays that stretch endlessly ahead?

The first thing to do, "Cam," is to knock the spirits right back in again. Admit defeat and you're sunk. Admit there's a lot of life and good times prospect in the girl yet—and you're on your way to gayer Saturday eves and Sundays.

But let's go back a bit. You say "if given the chance" you could be as interesting as most girls. Whom are you expecting to give you the chance? What about doing that little favor for yourself? It's what the other girls have done and are doing. Popular girls do not become popular sitting around waiting for some one to come and coach them in the game. They keep their eyes peeled for tips all of the time.

You have yours half shut. You are too lazy minded or lazy hearted to put any vim into the adventure of living, and that is why you do not register. You do not need to be possessed of rare talents. A talent for life and fun and enjoying what the day has to offer will see you through This means, of course, that you should be proficient enough in certain young interests, such as dancing bridge, sports, so that you will be welcomed where young people gather. Also you should keep abreast of what's going on in the world so you can contribute something to conversation.

You just can't let yourself sag the way you admit. Twenty-three is no ripe old age, but it is the age at which a young woman should be getting out and around and seeing what this thing called life is all about This is an accomplishment you never acquire, however, sitting down in a corner in the dumps, admitting you are licked before you've even had a good start. Brace up, "Cam," and make yourself interesting! It's your job.

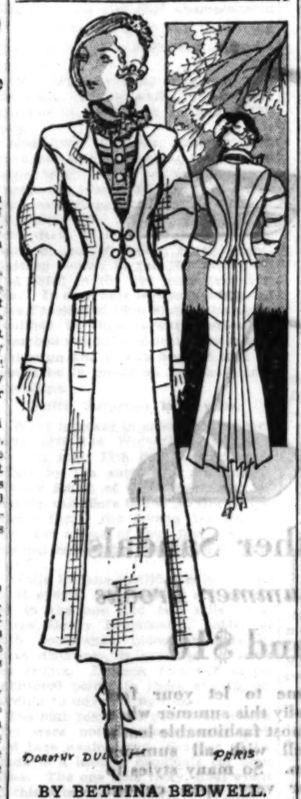
Paris Suits for Spectator Sports Given New Lines



BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Spectator clothes play an important part in the Paris social season, which is now well on its way. Though there are many smart women who wear more formal clothes, the chic young Parisienne selects a smart suit to go to the races.

A suit that has a jacket that is almost any length, from bolero to hip, is right and smart, but the very newest suit seen is one that has a jacket which comes just to the top of the hips, like the one sketched today, which comes from Maggy Rouff.

This suit, which is in a navy blue, smooth woolen has a high topped skirt, which has a box plait at the center front. Starting from the waistline, at the center back, the skirt is stitched down to just above the knees, and is released there into four plaits.

The fitted jacket is collarless, has tiny revers, a dropped shoulder line and leg o'mutton sleeves, which are full to the elbows, the section above being made of bands stitched together.

If you will look at the small sketch you will see the back of this jacket, with its slightly flaring peplum. At the center back of the waistline there are four plaits, which correspond with the plaits in the back of the skirt.

Dolly Madison, so the story goes, startled the colonial "400" one day by serving to an admiring and wonder-struck company a new dish—none other than frozen cream! The ladies were delighted. They demanded instructions and "receipts," and doubtless then and there each lady laid plans for serving this most "modern" of delicacies the very next time the fancywork division should meet at her house.

Today, with our mechanical refrigeration and up to date hand freezers, frozen cream [or ice cream, as we call it now], with all its interesting relatives—ices, sherbets, parfaits, and mousses—has become a favorite with homemakers everywhere. Certainly no other dish can give such a gala air to an occasion and still be so simply made. What's more, frozen desserts have a good many other feathers in their caps.

Fruit juices, so often included, may supply important minerals, acids or vitamins. Fruits themselves furnish valuable bulk. Milk or eggs, or a combination of the two, supply needed protein. Nuts contribute protein and fat, while cream—plain or whipped—affords an excellent source of butter fat.

There is some danger, in eating frozen foods, of retarding digestion, but if such foods are eaten slowly and in moderation the average stomach will be in no way distressed.

Now, do you know just what is what in frozen desserts? Here are a few definitions that should help:

Ice creams are made from thin cream, flavored, sweetened and frozen. As such they require some stirring while freezing to obtain smoothest results. The use of part whipped cream and a gelatin stabilizer, however, will make stirring unnecessary. Frozen custards are rich and smooth and require neither stirring, gelatin, nor whipped cream to make them perfectly delicious.

Water ices are mixtures of fruit juices or other flavoring, water and sugar. If ices are not stirred during freezing it is important that the water be kept at a minimum, especially if the fruits used are particularly juicy. A little smoother texture will be gained by stirring, and in this case the addition of gelatin will help the ice to stand up better after serving.

Sherbets may be made with either cream or milk. We find them often flavored with acid fruits and stabilized with gelatin. Gelatin, plus occasional stirring during freezing, insures a smooth product.

Whipped cream which has been flavored, sweetened, and frozen will give a smooth mousse without the addition of a stabilizer and without stirring.

Parfaits,a more hearty dessert, are made by pouring a rich hot sirup over beaten eggs—either the whites, yolks, or a combination of the two.

As you will discover by comparing most refrigerator ice cream recipes with those planned for the brine freezer, the fat content has to be a little higher for the modern desserts frozen with little or no agitation. The proportion of sugar is important, too. For mechanical refrigeration allow no more than one-fourth cup of sugar for each cup of material. Otherwise the flavor will be too sweet and the freezing time slow. Another caution—avoid whipping the cream for a mousse or parfait mixture too enthusiastically. It should be just able to hold its form—no more and no less.

PEANUT BRITTLE MOUSSE.
1½ cups crushed peanut brittle
3 cups heavy whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Roll the peanut brittle very fine with a rolling pin and combine it with the cream which has been whipped stiff. Add the flavoring and freeze. An interesting variation of this is made by substituting crushed chocolate-covered candy chips for the brittle.

STRAWBERRY FROST.
¾ cup heavy cream, whipped
1½ cups sugar
3 cups mashed strawberries
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¾ teaspoon salt

Mix the strawberries, sugar and salt and fold in the whipped cream and lemon juice. Turn into the freezer or refrigerator tray and freeze.

Additional recipes for frozen desserts made in the mechanical refrigerator will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address your request to Mary Meade.

Child Can Learn About His Land Through Books

Here Are Two Good Ones for Him.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Question: I should like the names of some books that would interest a girl in her early teens. Do you know of any that are about children living in earlier times or in little known sections of America? This is a good way of giving children an idea of how people in other parts of the country live or have lived."

Answer: This correspondent is wise in feeling that children can easily and pleasantly learn a great deal about their country through well written books whose locale or time is different from our own. We rather owe it to our children to enrich their picture of their native land.

I have before me several books that fulfill the requirements of this mother and are the result of much weeding out. They are:

"The Here-to-Yonder Girl," by Esther Greenacre Hall. This story is laid in the little known mountain section of Kentucky in the present day. The picturesque, quaint vernacular of that section gives a colorful quality to the book, and the passionate desire for education of these young mountain children [who sometimes do not even know there is a land beyond their mountains] may make our children prize a little more the advantages that most of them enjoy. The story is simple yet invigorating. Published by Macmillan.

"A Candle in the Mist," by Florence Crannell Means, is about a little girl whose faith—"a candle in the mist"—in her foster brother is the point around which the story revolves. It is principally a story of life on a Wisconsin farm, the trip to the rich, fertile land of Minnesota and the new pioneer life there. The story has action, is humorous, and carries an authentic ring. The customs of that—to many Americans—far off land, the details of living, the resourcefulness and self-reliance of its people, not to mention a blizzard and a forest fire, give sufficient action to make it lively and interesting. Published by Houghton, Mifflin company.

While we are on the subject of books I might mention that our new list of outdoor books is now available. It is called "The Young Naturalists' Booklist" and will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Makeup Used to Enhance the Costume Color

Trying Shades Offset by Rouge, Lipstick.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The popular idea is that few women can make a mistake when they buy blue. Blue is the one color supposed to be universally becoming. Certainly when it gets on the right woman she cannot choose a color that has a better effect on skin, eyes, and hair. But the trouble is that it is not the best shade for every type.

Also, there are many shades of blue that have other tones than blue in them and which may have a dire effect on skin and eyes. For instance, if one has hollow cheeks and shadows under the eyes, a purple blue or grayish blue emphasizes the shadows. Now, the cosmeticians are telling us that we can wear any color, even to a brilliant red though red headed, if we use the right color of rouge, lipstick, and powder.

But my claim is that if they can make a beauty out of naturally disharmonic colorings they should be able to promise gorgeous beauty with the perfected makeup combinations and woman's own choice of her best dress coloring. In other words, it seems better to get the most becoming shade of dress or suit, and go on perfecting from there.

Some colors really need makeup support. Take beige as one. Often it is inclined to make the skin appear sallow. The older one is the sallower it may make the skin. A warm shade of makeup here would turn the trick triumphantly.

There are gray shades, too, that need "warming" with makeup. Even the very light silvery grays, than which there is nothing lovelier when the face is not "aged" from the gray reflection—even these should have their makeup allies.

It is getting to be a complicated study to tone the dress color and the makeup to bring out the most beauty for the wearer. But if there is a good beauty secret within this study, no daughter of Eve is going to mind poring over the charts, is she? Certainly none of us who has ever known a gray day but knows what a dash of rouge and lipstick do for us. Heretofore most of us have been considering makeup value only from the chin up. Now, we have to include the dress tone in a scheme of revamping facial charms, too.

War Picture Receipts Start Fund for Camp

A nest egg to start the Camp Algonquin fund off for the coming season rolled into the box office of McVicker's theater last night. The proceeds from the preview of "The Doomed Battalion," an Italian-Austrian war front picture, go to the fund.

Among those who attended the showing were the three consuls of the countries concerned in the picture: Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul; Dr. Hugo Simon, German consul, and Judge Michael F. Girten, Austrian ocnsul. The preview was presented as Balaban & Katz's contribution to the camp fund.

Because Camp Algonquin faces perhaps its most difficult season, friends are urged to send their annual gifts early. The camp, located 45 miles northwest of Chicago, is maintained by the United Charities, and supported in part by TRIBUNE readers. This summer nearly 2,000 mothers and children are to be given free vacations, and one undernourished group of 100 will spend the entire summer recuperating in a section of the camp set aside for them.

Last year, as has been the custom in years past, individuals sent the fund what they could spare, children gave benefits, clubs and organizations presented entertainments, the proceeds going to the camp. This year Camp Algonquin looks to its friends for the means of its existence. Contributions may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

"Saturday Review" Gets Out a Special

Pre-Holiday Bulletin of Smart Summer Fashions

A Feminine Frock

Is Still a Good Sport When It's of Cotton Lace

$10.85

The one on the left has a jabot front and short puff sleeves. Sizes 12 to 20. The other frock is sleeveless, with rever front and belt. Sizes 14 to 40. Of course they are both washable.

Sports Section, Fourth Floor.

$25

Misses' Suits, Fourth Floor.

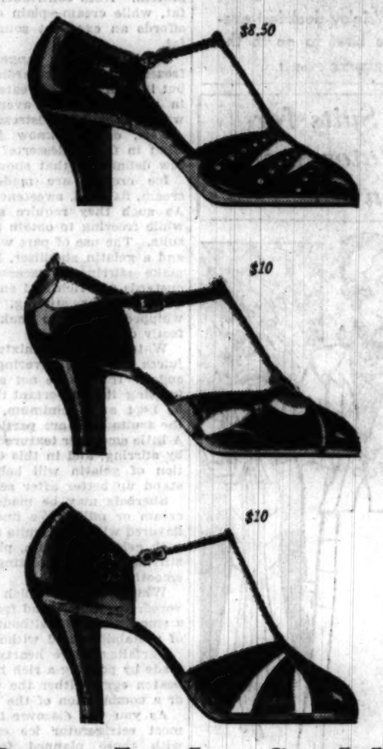
Junia Knows What's New

And Celebrates with a Brimmed Hat of Frizzle Crepe

For it isn't fussy about where you wear it —afternoon bridges, motoring and a dozen things that pop up of a summer afternoon. Soft crown, stitched brim in frizzle crepe (a fine and dull textured silk crepe). White and pastels, also navy, brown and black. All headsizes.

$5.75

Millinery, Fifth Floor.



Patent Leather Sandals

The Pet of Summer Frocks

$8.50 and $10

Summer's the time to let your feet sparkle! And especially this summer when patent is one of the most fashionable leathers. It goes so well with all summer frocks, print or plain. So many styles to choose—modified or very open cut-out effects. Included in our sandal group you will find: blue, beige, brown, white.

Shoes, Third Floor.

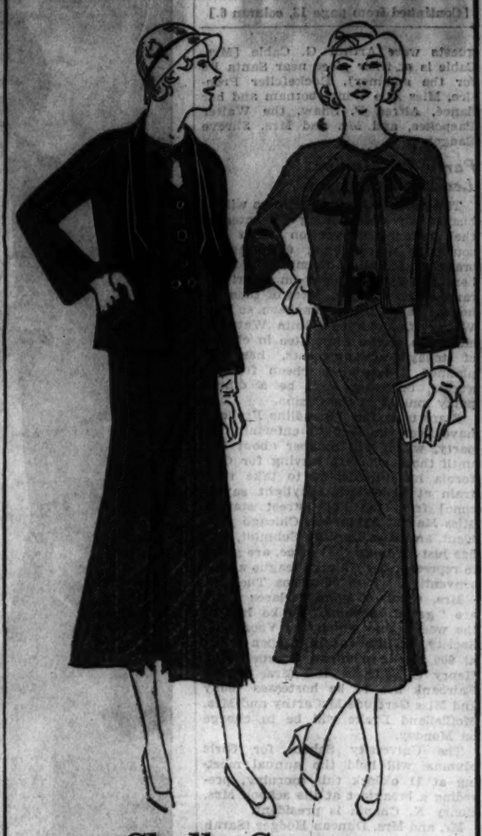
$14.85

See how the square neck is arranged with color coming from the waist and over the shoulders, and four buttons in the center. The sleeves are little capes which make the shoulders look broad and young.

Navy and white, copen and white, beige and brown. Sizes 11 to 17.

"17," Fifth Floor.



Chalk Crepes

Of a Summer Afternoon It's Usually Smart to Be a Little More Formal

$17.50

Chalk makes delicate pastel colors more sophisticated, and this frock uses it stitched five times around all the edges, and so does the jacket that loops at the neck. 14 to 20.

Contrast in the shoulder in pipings is much of the charm of this silk crepe frock. Navy and light blue, beige and red, light blue and navy. Sizes 14 to 20.

Moderate Price Frocks, Fourth Floor, Wabash.

Wear 3, 4, 5 or 6 Water Color Bracelets

$1

And these bright water color bracelets will get along with any summer costume, light or dark. They give it an imperative fillip. Plain or carved in three different widths. They may be had in green, pink, yellow, red, blue.

Jewelry, First Floor.

85c

And this lace top silk hosiery fills the summer bill no matter what your costume or color. It scores on many points—full-fashioned, fine seams, narrow heels, and lace tops. It may be had in the lighter summer colors.

Hosiery, First Floor.

Special Assortments and Prices But the Quality Is the Same in Our Week-End Candy Specials

BY EDWARD BURNS.

There is nothing that the White Sox have done so well this year as blow up in competition with the Detroit Tigers. They blew up in installments yesterday, and finally went down in one big gasp in the eleventh to take an 8 to 5 thrashing.

The windup included a homer by Jonathan Stone, with one on, but this was a matter of pure velvet, for the Tigers had enough to win before Jonathan did his stuff.

It would be a falsehood to say the explosions yesterday were the worst the Sox have suffered from the Tigers this year. This same Mr. Frasier, who pitched yesterday, on April 24 had the Tigers licked, 9 to 2, with two out in the eighth, yet the Detroiters won in the ninth, 10 to 9, and on May 2 Sam Jones had the Bengals whipped, 3 to 0, with one out in the ninth, but the Tigers scored five runs and won, 5 to 3.

Leads Mean Nothing.

Yesterday the Sox led, 1 to 0, at the end of the first, 3 to 2 at the end of the third, 5 to 2 at the end of the fifth, and 5 to 4 at the end of the sixth.

The Sox, however, were lucky to stay in the ball game as long as they did, for they were able to stroke only seven hits off three Detroit pitchers, and one of these, a single by Berry, immediately was nullified by ill-advised base running. On the other hand, the Tigers crashed out 15 hits off Frasier.

The game was a pretty nice thing to watch until the crumpling process set in. Fothergill had a fine day for himself, making two singles and a double, driving in three runs before he was replaced by Rothrock. Round Rob Roy also stole a base and was a right sprightly fellow up to the moment of his withdrawal.

Work for First Run.

The Sox had to put four men on base to get their 1 to 0 lead in the first inning. Funk was the man to get around. He opened with a walk, sped to second on a fielder's choice as Selph tapped to Bridges and the latter's throw to second was late. Elias moved to third while Selph was being sunk along with Seeds in a double play. After Kress walked, Blue drove in Funk with a double down the right foul line, Kress pulling up at third.

Detroit activity in the third also started with one out. After Bridges

BILLY DOWN FOR 9 COUNT, THEN SMOTHERS BAT

It's Give and Take for 10 Rounds.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Now you know why Christopher Battalino is called Battling Battalino. The Battler took a licking last night at the Stadium, but Billy Petrolle, who two months ago stopped him in 12 rounds, needed all 10 rounds to win the unanimous approval of judges and referee.

The Battler was whipped, but he didn't know when he was whipped.

Battalino might have won this return fight in the first round. Had his left hook carried a bit more power Petrolle never would have known what hit him. Midway in that round, as Petrolle backed away from the ropes, Battalino lashed out with a left hook. Down went Petrolle.

Wily veteran that he is, Petrolle rested on one knee for a nine count. And you can judge how clearly he was thinking when on getting up he walked over to Referee Dave Barry to have his gloves dusted, gaining a rest of at least three more precious seconds.

Tide Swings to Billy.

Even with this advantage, the fight belonged to either at the end of five rounds. But in the sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth Petrolle piled up a score which completely overbalanced the knockdown.

Petrolle struck more sharply. His blows seldom failed of a target. The steady tattoo of soggy gloves on Battalino's face, smashing at the lips and crushing the nose, broken time and again, might have stopped any other opponent.

Christopher Battalino deserves to be called Battler. Punished unmercifully, he always pressed forward. And in the last round, with certain defeat waiting at the bell, he rushed Petrolle from corner to corner. That tenth round belonged to Battalino, but his punches no longer carried a knockout threat. He won the last round; he heard the crowd's cheers, but he couldn't stop the Fargo Express.

The crowd praised Battalino's gameness, but it didn't forget Petrolle. He outfought Bat in every round except the first, the third, and that last wild session. At times he retreated from Battalino's forward march, but when he stepped back, he continued to hurl short left and right uppercuts to the face, or to fling his darting left hand to the face.

That left hand, perhaps more than anything else, won the decision for Petrolle. It prevented Battalino from landing a knockout blow and repeatedly it forced Bat to cover his head with both arms. On those occasions, Petrolle shifted his attack to the body, hooking his whirling left with thumping force.

The fight was the best Chicago has seen this year. It measured to the prediction based on the previous encounter between the men. Financially it was disappointing. Stadium officials refused to give out the actual attendance, but they estimated the crowd at 10,800 and the gross receipts at less than $30,000.

Hospital Shares Bat's Pay.

Petrolle and Battalino, if the net receipts were $25,000, will receive $6,750 apiece.

Battalino went to the hospital immediately after the bout to have his nose treated.

While the decision was unanimous, there was a variance of opinion. Referee Barry voted 51 to 49 for Petrolle. Judge Ed Klein turned in a 53 to 47 card, while Judge R. H. Bell gave the fight to Petrolle, 59 to 41.

The card of supporting matches was worthy of the final. Paul Dazzo and Sammy Levine, former members of Golden Gloves amateur teams, fought furiously for six rounds with Dazzo the winner. Paul's flying fists carried more power and except for the first round, in which Levine was superior, piled up a point margin. Levine was staggered by a right to the jaw in the fourth.

Ross Stops Sisk.

Barney Ross was given a technical knockout over Dick Sisk by Referee Norm McGarity in the sixth round of a scheduled eight round fight. Sisk was knocked down for a nine count in the first round, and in the sixth when he scarcely could defend himself, McGarity stopped the bout.

Mickey Patrick, East Chicago, Ind. light heavyweight, knocked out Larry Udell, St. Paul, in the third round. Patrick, after winning the first round, was badly battered in the second. But in the third he landed squarely with a right hand blow and although Udell escaped being counted out, he could not continue.

Tony Cancella, Tampa, Fla. heavyweight, outboxed and outpunched Pete Wistort of South Chicago for a six round decision. Wistort, who substituted for Joe Dokter of Buffalo, was no match for Cancella.

In the opener, Solly Dukelsky stopped Kelly Kulac in the third round. Both are Chicago boys.

Triple Scores 2 Reds in 11th and Beats Warneke, Cubs, 3-2

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., May 20.—Lon Warneke, the young man who became an overnight sensation by capturing five straight without a defeat, just couldn't hold on to victory this afternoon. He went into the ninth with a 1 to 0 lead, but it got away from him. He went into the last half of the eleventh with a 2 to 1 advantage and that, too, went glimmering when a pinch batter exploded a triple which drove home two Reds and sent the Cubs spinning in defeat by 3 to 2.

The famous Babe Herman can be thanked by the Rhineland multitude for stopping Warneke when he was about to reach out and apply the final touches of whitewash in the ninth. The Babe led off impressively by pounding one high and far into the open space between left and center. The ball rolled to the end of the scoreboard and apparently hid itself in a rat hole. Stephenson grabbed and pawed and then grabbed some more. But when he finally came up with the ball, Babe was well around third on his way to an easy homer. Until then Warneke had pitched in such masterful style that only three hits, two of them bunts, had marred his progress.

Warneke Scores in 11th.

It was Warneke himself who was responsible for framing up the run that put the Cubs out in front for a few minutes in the eleventh. He singled through short for the first safety since the seventh, when Grimm tripled off Bennie Frey after two were out. Richbourg's bunt shoved Lonnie to second, and Billy Herman then stepped into the breach. He lined a double to center and Warneke tore home with the run that stood up as a winner until after two Reds had expired and two strikes were on the last batter in the home eleventh.

The size of Warneke's slim lead began to appear insignificant as soon as Grantham opened the last attack with a single to left. When the bothersome Babe Herman did the same thing the lead was as good as gone. But the young Arkansas farmer pulled himself together for the big escape. Hafey struck out trying to bunt. Lombardi, ordinarily a wrecker, completed a bad afternoon by hoisting to Richbourg. Then Andy High was summoned to bat for Gilbert. Warneke promptly put him in the hole by getting across two strikes, but the next pitch didn't get by. High lined it to right center, and Moore, instead of playing it safe for a single, attempted a shoe string catch. The ball shot to the fence, Grantham and Babe Herman ran home and that was the finish.

Cubs' Run Is a Gift.

The Reds put on an exhibition of Brooklyn baseball in the third and that's how the Cubs happened to get the run that kept them in front until the ninth. With one out Jurges shot a fairly healthy bounder toward Gilbert, who booted it in such pleasing style that the ball rolled into short left field. This induced Jurges to tear for second. He arrived there just in time to get a free ride to third on Hafey's wild return throw. Warneke walked and was forced by Richbourg. Jurges sneaked home while this play was being perpetrated.

The Cubs came mighty close to giving Frey a thorough going over in the fourth. Moore singled to center with two out for the first Chicago hit. Stephenson poked a one bagger to right, putting Moore on third. Hartnett then sent a terrific fly toward the deepest corner of the lot, but Douthit sprinted back and grabbed it just in front of the sign which mentions that the plate is 407 feet away.

Warneke Breezes Along.

Warneke didn't get into a tight spot until the third and then had to dispose of part of Cincinnati's murderers' row to get out of it undamaged. Douthit beat out a bunt with two gone and Grantham walked. This brought Babe Herman into the picture. He surrendered easily on a grounder to the pitcher. For the next two innings Warneke restricted the Reds to passes. Hafey drew one to start the fourth and died stealing after two mates had failed to give him assistance. Heath walked to open the fifth. A forceout and a double play fixed that.

All that Warneke had to do to get safely through the sixth was to dispose of Hafey and Lombardi with two on bases. This affair started with English tossing out Douthit. Grantham beat out a bunt which English wasn't expecting. Babe Herman was tendered a pass. Hafey sailed a drive into deep left, but Stephenson scooted back to the fence and wrapped his hands around it. Then Lombardi sent a gentlemanly grounder to Billy Herman. That was the last peep out of the Rhinelanders until Babe hit that homer in the ninth.

Almost, Lon!

OHIO QUALIFIES 16 FOR BIG TEN FINALS TODAY

Indiana and Michigan Are Strong Contenders.

Indiana, Ohio State, or Michigan.

These universities remain the favorites to win the 32d Western conference track and field championship at the conclusion of the qualifying trials in 11 events yesterday at Dyche stadium.

Ohio State qualified 16 men to lead Michigan by one, while Indiana was grouped in third with Iowa and Illinois.

Qualifying numbers, however, will have no practical bearing on the outcome today. The preliminary track events ran true to form with the possible exception of Jack Campbell of Michigan, who placed in the 100 yard dash final. The question here was not one of ability, for Campbell finished fourth in the 100 yard dash and third in the 220 yard dash last year. In each case last year he trailed Jess Fazekas of Ohio State, who again qualified in these events yesterday. Campbell was injured during the indoor campaign and it was doubted that he would be in condition for the championships.

Smith Surprises in Javelin.

What increase in strength Campbell may give the Wolverines, who are seeking their 12th Big Ten title, was offset by the surprising showing of Homer Smith of Ohio State, who led the ten qualifiers in the javelin throw. Smith threw the javelin 183 feet ¼ inch for a lead of four feet over his nearest competitor, Kruchten of Indiana.

While Indiana qualified only 12 men in 11 events, the Hoosiers are strongest in the one and two mile runs, where Henry Brocksmith, holder of both conference indoor records at these distances, is expected to score ten points. Indiana also will count additional points in these events, according to advance figures.

The high jump and pole vault events also were not on yesterday's card, and here again Bryce Beecher of Indiana is a leading candidate for both titles. The one mile relay, final event of this afternoon's schedule, is almost certain to add five points to Michigan's total. For proof, consider the qualifying trials of the quarter-mile sprint yesterday.

Edwin Russell, defending 440 yard champion; Ben Glading, Tom Ellerby, and Charles De Baker, all members of Michigan's mile relay team, each won a qualifying race. The first three were timed in 50 seconds, while De Baker circled the track in 49.8 seconds.

Hellmich's Time Best.

Hellmich of Illinois had the fastest time in the 100 yard trials, beating Don Bennett of Ohio State in the first race in 9.9 seconds. Thompton of Minnesota and Renwick of Michigan won the other heats, each in ten seconds. However, Bennett remains favored with Thompton and Renwick for the shorter sprint championship.

Bennett's points in the 100 yard and 220 yard dashes and the points Jack Keller scores in the hurdle races will, in a large measure, determine the result of Ohio State's bid for the title. Bennett yesterday had the fastest time in the 220 yard trials. He was timed in 21.9 seconds. Hellmich, Thompton, and Fazekas won the other trials.

Keller won his high hurdle trial in 14 7-10 seconds, but George Saling of Iowa raced over the sticks in 14 5-10 seconds, only one-tenth of a second slower than the Big Ten record established by Lee Sentman of Illinois. Saling, who broke the Drake relays record this spring with a mark of

How They Qualified

UNIVERSITIES of the Big Ten yesterday qualified the following number of athletes in eleven track and field events of the annual meet at Dyche stadium:

Ohio State	16	Minnesota	11
Michigan	15	Wisconsin	7
Indiana	12	Purdue	4
Illinois	12	Chicago	2
Iowa	12	Northwestern	2

Big Ten Arranges Most of Football Games for 1933

An all day session of directors of athletics and coaches of the Western conference yesterday virtually completed the 1933 schedule of football games.

Northwestern will play six conference opponents a year from this fall in addition to Notre Dame and Stanford. The Stanford game here begins the series which originally was carded for 1932, but which was postponed a year so Northwestern and Michigan might meet this fall.

The schedule also was drawn up for 1934, but dates were not specified. Under yesterday's agreement Ohio State, Purdue and Wisconsin have the minimum of four conference games. From a financial viewpoint the Purdue and Wisconsin schedules are particularly weak. It is likely that all three of the universities will get another game next year. Minnesota will have six conference games and the University of Pittsburgh. This comprises one of the most ambitious schedules in recent Minnesota history. The schedules:

Oct. 7—Indiana at Minnesota, Iowa at Northwestern, Michigan State at Michigan.
Oct. 14—Notre Dame at Indiana, Wisconsin at Illinois, Stanford at Northwestern, Vanderbilt at Ohio State, Purdue at Minnesota.
Oct. 28—Michigan at Chicago, Iowa at Minnesota, Northwestern at Ohio State, Purdue at Wisconsin.
Nov. 4—Michigan at Illinois, Minnesota at Northwestern, Carnegie Tech at Purdue, Indiana at Ohio State.

Chicago—Michigan, Illinois, Purdue, Minnesota, Indiana.
Purdue—Chicago, Wisconsin, Indiana, Iowa.
Wisconsin — Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Purdue.
Iowa — Wisconsin, Indiana, Northwestern, Illinois, Stanford, Purdue.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: In 1888 torchlight processions were a feature of the presidential campaigns of Harrison and Morton for the Republicans and Cleveland and Thurman for the Democrats. We kids participated in both parades with no political choice so far as marching was concerned.

On one night when we reached a dark alley along the line of march we snuffed our torches and hiked up the alley with the torches and the red or blue, or red, white, and blue capes which we wore in the parade. Next day after school we skipped over to the rendezvous barn to count our loot of torches and capes.

To our surprise not one was there. One chap's dad had detected the strong odor of kerosene from the torches, made a search, and returned all the torches and capes to rally headquarters. We kept on marching for the fun of it, but no more getaway attempts. H. F. Killian.

In 1882 a rumor was started that on the stroke of midnight a white figure could be seen emerging from the Couch tomb located at the foot of Eugenie street in Lincoln park. As a result, crowds of people for several nights milled around in the park between North avenue and Eugenie street, but no ghost walked. The Couch tomb still is there screened by shrubbery and small trees. E. J. B.

About 50 years ago a Sunday excursion from "way off" Plymouth, Ind., to Chicago brought a number of young girls to see the sights of a big city. We were paraded through the La Salle street tunnel which at the time had a pedestrian cement walk which the now younger generation never saw and which their elders no doubt have forgotten. The tunnel was leaking, as usual, so some one gave the alarm that the river was coming through and that broke up our inspection trip post haste.

Big Ten Track Meet.

Spectators at the Big Ten track and field meet at Dyche stadium this afternoon, if without college affiliation, will be pulling for Indiana or Ohio State to land the championship, rather than Michigan or Illinois or Wisconsin. That will be because neither of these schools ever has landed the title which since the inception of the conference has been monopolized by Wolverines and Illini with Chicago and Wisconsin occasionally breaking through. "Pass around the honors" usually is the slogan of neutral sportsmen.

These games promise unusual team competition for points, with the result more uncertain than in recent years. Several events also indicate keen contention, although in others there appear outstanding performers. The field is unusually good. All winners will deserve consideration for the American team to compete in the Olympic games at Los Angeles in early July. The show merits a good turnout.

In Days of Bare Knucks.

Boy, it was different back in '33
To act in the ring as a fight referee.

There wasn't a wop with the name of O'Brien,
Or a dancer from Paris to come over the line.
There wasn't a Spaniard with the name of Maloney
Or a kraut from the Kaiserhaus on baloney.

There wasn't a prune from the hot Philippines
Copping the coin and our boys' pork and beans.
I tell you it's different from the days "way back"—

Do You Remember 'Way Back When:

On the first warm Sundays in spring we girls walked out to the cemetery (we called it graveyard) and, strangely enough, the boys were out reading epitaphs, too, and then all went back home, gathered around the piano, and sang "When the Robins Nest Again" and "Somebody's Coming When the Dewdrops Fall"?—Mrs. Harriet Kitt, Goodland, Ind.

Gopher Pair Lead Big Ten Golf with 151s

Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.—(AP)—Two Minnesota golfers led a field of 33 candidates for the Western conference championship by getting low scores over the first 36 holes of play on the Gopher course today. With 151 scores, Capt. Earl Larson and Edgar Bolstad set the pace and will enter Saturday's final 36 holes with a one stroke advantage over John Fischer of Michigan.

The Gophers and Wolverines held command of the competition. Besides placing two representatives each in the first five, Michigan and Minnesota stepped well ahead in team totals with respective scores of 624 and 625.

Mrs. Vare will be meeting an old rival in Miss Wethered, who has won in every match they have played. Helen Hicks, America's champion, will meet Enid Wilson and Virginia Van Wie will be pitted against Wanda Morgan. Maureen Orcutt will face Diana Fishwick; Mrs. Opal Hill will meet Molly Gourlay, and Mrs. Leona Cheney will meet Mrs. J. B. Watson.

Purdue Overcomes 5 Run Lead to Beat Michigan, 9-7

Lafayette, Ind., May 20.—[Special.]—Michigan's five run lead in the first inning availed little and Purdue knocked the Wolverine nine from its perch at the top of the Big Ten standing by pounding out a 9 to 7 victory. The victory was the fourth straight conference triumph for Lefty Griffin, Purdue's sophomore pitcher, and the fourth win in six starts for the Boilermakers.

MARTIE FLYNN, IN HIGH HAT MOOD, RITZES PLATERS

BY FRENCH LANE.

Martie Flynn, Stuyvesant Peabody's big bay, which was quite a horse once upon a time, got tired fooling around with the selling platers in the fourth race at Aurora yesterday.

He became so put out at the whole situation and with the company he has been keeping lately that he decided to show 'em how a good horse can run when he's in that sort of mood.

And dropping from out of the skies, as the railbirds would say, he staged a drive down the stretch which stunned the crowd and made the 9,600 spectators wonder if this wasn't Martie Flynn of three or four seasons ago.

The Old Martie, Himself.

He was running like old Martie, and it was old Martie himself. There was no mistake about that. He was mowing down the platers who so brazenly had outfooted him in the early part of the struggle so fast that it looked like a cyclone was twisting its way in and around the various horses fighting for the lead.

Martie was back in sixth place in the middle of the field of eleven when he started his drive. But it took him less than a furlong to go on past 'em all, then in a ding dong, bull doggish finish to hold the heavily backed Calgary Kay safe in the drive for the finish line.

Martie won by just a neck, but the old fellow was laughing when it was all over. He seemed to want to say, "Wait till you see what I do to these horses the next time I line up against em."

Almost Equals Dr. Freeland.

Martie galloped the three-quarters of a mile in 1:12 2-5, which was just about as fast as any horse has run the distance here this spring. Dr. Freeland ran it in 1:12, and Martie might have shaded that figure had he decided to start going at his best clip a bit earlier. But old Martie has always been the sort of fellow who likes to win by the narrowest sort of a margin.

Plenty of Martie's old time backers refused to turn a cold shoulder to him. They backed him and collected $12.46 for each $2 ticket. He paid $7.22 to place and $3.78 to show. Calgary Kay was at $5.16 to place and Essential, which ran third, was at $4.38 to show.

Charley King was in the saddle on Martie Flynn and was enjoying a field day. He piloted four winners home, the others being Bay Rose, Rejuvenation, and Donna Dear.

Daily Double Pays $54.66.

There was $8,500 in the daily double pool and and 141 folks who coupled Agnes Sorel and Bay Rose each collected $54.66. Neither had much trouble winning.

The spring season at Aurora ends this afternoon. One of the best programs of the season has been arranged. The racing scene then shifts to Washington park.

GOPHERS POUND SOMMERFIELD TO BEAT BADGERS, 6-2

Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.—[Special.]—Minnesota baseball team defeated Wisconsin today, 6 to 2. The Gophers hammered Jake Sommerfield for 12 hits, while Lefty Shelso was yielding six.

Beauchaine, Minnesota shortstop, hit a homer with Ryan on base in the first. Two more runs in the fifth and one each in the sixth and seventh clinched the contest. Score:

Batteries—Sommerfield, Winger, and Griswold; Shelso and Shannon.

Notre Dame Pounds Out 7-5 Victory Over Iowa

Notre Dame, Ind., May 20.—Notre Dame's revamped baseball team pounded out 16 hits for a 7 to 5 victory over Iowa today. Big Ed Lagger, sophomore southpaw, held the Hawkeyes to seven hits, struck out nine, gave only two walks, and let in only three earned runs. There will be another game tomorrow. Score:

North Central College Defeats Wheaton, 5 to 2

North Central college baseball team defeated Wheaton college at Naperville yesterday, 5 to 2. North Central stole five bases. Orvis, Wheaton pitcher, was weak in the second and sixth innings. Sturgeon and Doenier of North Central led the hitting.

Winner trained by R. C. Cooper. Went to post at 2:26. At post 2¼ minutes. Start good from gate. Won handily; place same.

AGNES SOREL improved her position steadily and, finishing fast on the outside, took command in the last sixteenth and held NOEL'S DRESS. Latter suffered considerable interference, but came gamely when clear in the stretch. PRECEDE was slow to get going and was forced to race on the outside most of the way, but was going gamely at the end. LENNY weakened slightly.

Winner trained by R. M. Garvey. Went to post at 3:56. At post 1¼ minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

MAMTIE FLYNN always within striking distance, came fast in the stretch when urged and, taking a short lead in the final furlong, held CALGARY KAY. Latter could not keep up in the early running and was forced to come to the outside in the stretch, but closed in resolute fashion. ESSENTIAL displayed good early speed and saved enough to finish fast at the end after making the early pace. SISTER MARY could not keep up and prefers the soft going.

GOLD STEP moved up fast after going a quarter and, racing strongly through the stretch, easily wore down VOLTA MAID to score handily. VOLTA MAID had the most early speed, but was tiring fast at finish. PORTCODINE outbroke the others but, badly ridden, was taken to the inside in stretch with no chance to get through and was shut off and forced to go all the way to the outside and was going well at the finish. FORGET NOT displayed good early speed.

REJUVENATION, never far from the pace, went to the front in the stretch when SUDDEN tired and held away to the end. ED LARK could not keep up in the early running and raced wide in stretch, but was going well at the end. SHONNA acted badly at the barrier and, breaking from the outside, was a trailer to the last quarter, when he made up much ground. SUDDEN tired in the run home.

Who's Who in Women's Golf

By Betty Eckersall

[This is the tenth of a series of articles on prominent women golfers of the Chicago district.]

MRS. MELVIN JONES.

One of the outstanding women golfers in the Chicago area who has attracted national attention by her exploits is Mrs. Melvin Jones, a regular competitor in the more important national women's golf events for the last 18 years, and winner of several of the most coveted championships.

MRS. MELVIN JONES.

The first title of more than local renown which Mrs. Jones captured was the women's western golf championship in 1921 at the Westmoreland Country club, where she defeated the runner-up, Mrs. J. W. Douglas of the home club. In 1926 she defeated Virginia Van Wie for the women's western medal play crown in an eighteen hole playoff after a tie at 54 holes.

In the previous year she had won the north-south tournament at Pinehurst, N. C., defeating Miss Marian Bennett of New Britain, Conn., 4 and 2, in the 18 hole final match. She added the third annual Pan-American women's amateur golf tournament at Edgewater Park, Miss., to her list of victories in 1930, triumphing over Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, the defending champion, 5 and 4, in the 36 hole final match. Incidentally Mrs. Lake was the medalist in the qualifying round of that meet, shooting 77, which lowered the women's course record by two strokes and was 11 below women's par as established by the Women's Western Golf association.

Mrs. Jones has been women's champion at Lincolnshire Country club for the last three years. Before joining Lincolnshire she was women's champion of the Olympia Fields Country club from 1921 to 1928.

She was well known to Chicago district tournament contestants long before achieving national fame, having gained permanent possession of the first cup awarded for the district championship by winning the title three times. She has held this district crown six times—in 1916, 1921, 1922, 1924, 1929, and 1930.

Prep Trackmen Set 3 State Marks; Oak Park Qualifies 7

Champaign, Ill., May 20.—[Special.]—Oak Park High school, state interscholastic track champion for the last two years, qualified the greatest number of contestants today for the finals in the 38th annual state interscholastic meet at the University of Illinois. Oak Park qualified seven performers, Randall Herman and Herb Nichols in the 100 yard and 220 yard dashes, Duncan in the 120 yard and 220 yard hurdles and Graham in the 220 yard hurdles.

Three new state records were established and two national marks equaled in today's preliminaries and semi-finals.

Senn's fleet Negro hurdler, Fritz Pollard, established a new interscholastic record and equaled the national mark in the 120 yard high hurdles when he won his heat in :15. Pollard also qualified for the low hurdles, winning his preliminary and semi-final heats without much trouble, his fastest time being :25.1.

Boyer of Paris set a new state interscholastic record of :50.4 in the quarter-mile, clipping one-tenth of a second off the former record made by Terwilliger of Urbana in 1930. The five heats in this event brought out a promising group. Miller of Maine township [Des Plaines] took his heat in :50.6 and Heg of Evanston qualified in :51.

Bob Stephen of Joliet excelled his own record of 51 feet 6 inches in the shot put, made last year, with a toss of 51 feet 11¼ inches.

Herb Nichols of Oak Park was another star performer, equaling the national and state record of :9.8 in the 100 yard dash.

Tigers Rally in 11th; Whip White Sox, 8-5

Sox Come Right Back.

The Sox regained the lead with two runs in their half of the third. Selph doubled down the left field line with one out and the bases were loaded on passes to Seeds and Blue. Fothergill's looping Texas league single over Rogell's outstretched arms brought Selph and Seeds home with a 3 to 2 lead for the Chicagoans.

The Sox kept picking at Bridges with a single and walk but no score in the fourth, and after Alexander had grounded out for Bridges in the fifth Art Herring showed up to pitch. Two errors by Rogell forced him to give the Sox two runs.

Rogell's first bobble was a two base fumble of Seeds' grounder. The pressure was temporarily relieved when Kress forced Seeds at third, Rogell to Richardson. The heat was on again when Kress stole second and the theft was followed by a walk to Blue, after which Fothergill again functioned, this time with a double to right, which scored Kress and put Blue on third. Appling was safe on Rogell's second fumble, Blue scoring and Fothergill taking third. At this point the first of the attempted double steals was thwarted, Fothergill sinking at the plate, Hayworth to Rogell to Hayworth.

It's Tied Up Again.

The Tigers picked up a pair of runs in the sixth. Gehringer walked and went to third on White's single. Johnson fouled to Appling, but Richardson singled to right, scoring Gehringer and putting White on third. Hayworth then singled to left, scoring White, Richardson stopping at second. Alexander, batting for Herring, fanned, and so did Davis.

Detroit tied it up in the seventh. Rogell walked and went to third on Stone's single. Gehringer fouled to Berry and Stone reached second after the catch. White tapped to Appling and Rogell was out at the plate. Then Johnson singled to right center, scoring Stone. White and Johnson failed in an attempted double steal.

Neither side threatened in the tenth, but Hogsett opened the eleventh with a single past third, went to second on Davis' sacrifice and scored on Rogell's single to center. Stone then followed with his homer, which scored Rogell ahead of him.

White Sox May Pick Caraway to Face Tigers Today

Manager Fonseca of the White Sox wants Jones and Lyons to perform in the double header tomorrow. Since Thomas was in the bullpen most of yesterday afternoon and Red Faber isn't feeling so spry, Caraway becomes the nominee for today through the process of elimination. Sorrell was the guess for yesterday and is guessed again.

It was ladies' day at Comiskey park yesterday, a circumstance which, with ideal weather, caused some 15,000 to attend.

The fielding improvement of Luke Appling since becoming a second baseman continues to amaze observers, especially since all of Luke's school and minor league performing was done at shortstop and third.

The White Sox haven't made a home run at Comiskey park this year. The Tigers have played three contests here. Stone has made two homers and Gehringer one. Kress made a homer here, but he did it for St. Louis.

Fothergill is the only Comiskey employé still working at it who has made a homer while endeavoring in behalf of the Sox. Robby has made two, one in Detroit and one in Boston.

The double steal technique won no adherents yesterday. Both sides tried it and each failed by many inches. The shortstop was the key man in each instance.

PREP TEAMS TO MEET TODAY IN 3 SEMI-FINALS

Three games will open the semi-final competition for the Chicago Public High School league baseball championship this afternoon, the feature contest bringing together Lane Tech, defending champion of the north section, and Fenger, winner of second place in the south division, at Mills stadium.

On the same field Schurz, second place victor in the north section, will meet Bowen, south division champion and one of the favorites for the league title. In the other contests Lindblom, central division, will face Harrison west division, at Normal park. Harrison has won six consecutive victories in its west section schedule.

The annual South Suburban league track meet will be held this afternoon at Stagg field. More than 200 are expected to compete.

Eight will compete for the individual fencing championships of the Chicago Public High School league this morning at 9 o'clock at the Roosevelt High school gymnasium. The survivors are A. Kamn, H. Welting, R. Hammond, D. Fishback, L. Winter, H. Gillies, B. Chiprin, and L. Smith.

Mrs. Porter Wins Special Golf Event at Hinsdale

Mrs. A. W. Porter, club champion, won the three longest and three shortest hole event with a score of 30 strokes yesterday at the Ruth Lake Country club in Hinsdale.

Fifty women competed in the opening event of the Flossmoor Country club.

Lake Forest College Takes 4-2 Game from Mt. Morris

OHIO QUALIFIES 16 FOR BIG TEN FINALS TODAY

SET LITTLE 19 MARKS

Monmouth, Ill., May 20.—[Special.]—Two conference track records were broken today in the Little Nineteen championship preliminaries. Redd of Bradley clipped one-half second from the record in the 220 yard low hurdles set by McCreight of Normal in 1928. He ran the distance in 24.4 seconds. Hutton of Normal won his heat in the half mile in 1 minute 57.6 seconds to better the old record of 1:57.8 set by Warner of Bradley in 1923.

If track conditions remain good tomorrow, the ten year old record in the 100 yard dash is expected to fall before Johnson of Normal, who won his heat today in :09.9. The record is :09.8 set by Swanson of Lombard in 1922.

SPEARING A CHAMPIONSHIP

Ohio State expects Homer Smith to score five points in the Big Ten track meet today. Smith led qualifiers in the javelin throw at Dyche stadium yesterday with a toss of 183 feet 1-4 inch.

Cubs, Victim of Red Lucas Twice, Face Him Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., May 20.—The Cubs will have something to think about between now and tomorrow afternoon. Red Lucas is going to pitch against them in the third of the series, and he has a record of six wins against one defeat. Two of the half dozen wins were collected at the expense of the Chicagoans. Pat Malone will do the firing for the Cubs.

Manager Hornsby's straw hat, which yesterday was the only one in the Cub party, now has plenty of company. Almost all of the athletes came up with new, shiny five dollar numbers this morning.

The park was alive with members of the screechy sex. More than 12,000 of them took advantage of the weekly free gate. The cash customers numbered about 3,000.

Babe Herman, who is famous for doing the wrong thing, capped the climax yesterday by leaving the park and forgetting to take along his seven year old son. A park attendant delivered the youngster at the front door of the Herman residence.

Stephenson's lack of speed cost him a hit in the second inning. Durocher threw him out after grabbing a grounder on the grass behind third base.

Warneke's single, which started the Cubs to their run in the eleventh, hopped over Morrissey's hands at short. Durocher would have eaten it up, but he had been removed for a pinch hitter at the start of the tenth. Lucas was the pinch man, and he fled to Stephenson.

INDIANS WHIP BROWNS IN 4TH INNING, 11 TO 7

Cleveland, O., May 20.—(AP)—Wesley Ferrell won his sixth victory of the season today as the Cleveland Indians defeated St. Louis, 11 to 7, in a game marked by 15 bases on balls, seven off Browns' pitchers and eight off Indian hurlers. Cleveland made three passes and five hits count for seven runs in the fourth.

YANKEES DEFEAT SENATORS, 6 TO 3, FOR LEAGUE LEAD

Gomez Climbs Out of Tight Spots to Win.

New York, May 20.—[Special.]—The New York Yankees stayed on top of the American league standing today as Vernon Gomez checked the Washington Senators to win the third game of the series, 6 to 3. The Yanks' victory broke a deadlock and gave them a margin of half a game and of 37 points in the percentages.

INDIANA BEATS NORTHWESTERN IN NINTH, 3 TO 2

Indiana defeated Northwestern at Evanston yesterday, 3 to 2, in the ninth inning. With the score tied in the first of the ninth, Saluski singled and stole second. He remained there while the next batter grounded out, but came home when Haussman pcunded a single to left field.

Rea, Indiana catcher, accounted for his team's other two runs by smacking a home run with Howarth

DEMANDS FARM BOARD COTTON BE KEPT OFF MART

Georgian Says Sale Now 'Would Be Disastrous.'

Washington, D. C., May 20.—(AP)—A movement to keep stabilization cotton off the market began in the house today almost coincidental with the authorization of lower freight rates for cotton in the south and the disclosure that Massachusetts had yielded the leadership in cotton manufacture to North Carolina.

Representative Vinson [Dem., Ga.] introduced a resolution directing the farm board to impound the 1,300,000 bales controlled by it until the season's total supply falls below the average for the preceeding ten years. He believes this would not be for two or three years. The board has authorised the sale of 650,000 bales beginning Aug. 1.

"To do so in view of the already large carry over," the Georgian said, "would be disastrous and it would break the market, perhaps as much as a cent a pound."

The freight rate reduction, approximating 20 per cent for southern railroads, was authorized by the interstate commerce commission.

Ahead of Bay State.

The rate cut affecting cotton in bales, either compressed or uncompressed, in any quantity, is expected to go into effect June 1, and may be retained until Aug. 1.

It applies to cotton to and from points in the Mississippi valley, southeastern and Carolina territories, including gulf and south Atlantic ports, Ohio river crossings, St. Louis, Mo., district and certain points in southern Virginia.

The cotton spinning industry was reported today by the census bureau to have been operated during April at 70.7 per cent capacity, on a single shift basis, compared with 90.1 per cent in March this year and 94.3 per cent in April last year.

Demands Farm Boards Go.

New Orleans, La., May 20.—(AP)—Directors of the New Orleans cotton exchange today demanded abolition of the farm board and protested against "continued waste and extravagant expending by the federal government." The resolution asked that congress eliminate all "unnecessary" boards, particularly the farm board, and seek a revival of world trade by amending the tariff laws.

The directors claimed that half a billion dollars has been spent by the farm board which has not succeeded in helping the cotton farmer. Its activities were blamed in part for the decrease in the price of cotton from 18 to 6 cents a pound.

BANKERS HERE AWAIT DETAILS ON TRADE PLAN

BY O. A. MATHER.

Formation of a committee of twelve leaders of industry and finance in New York to coöperate with the federal reserve banks' credit expansion policy took Chicago bankers by surprise. They frankly admitted yesterday that they had no information on the purposes of the committee other than the general announcement that it hoped to loosen up unused bank credit. Therefore, they could only guess what the committee might seek to do.

The most common theory was that the committee might sponsor a concerted movement by the larger banks throughout the country to start a large scale buying in the bond market. There have been several banking "pools" for trading in the bond market in the last year or so, and these are said to have been more or less successful from the profit standpoint. However, there has been no concerted program, with the result that some banks were selling bonds while others were buying.

Aid of Big Concerns.

Chicago bankers believe that a broad movement for buying bonds could be engineered by the New York committee. Such a program not only would enlist the banks, which now have a vast amount of idle funds, but it also could be participated in by many of the big corporations, which also are strong in cash which is temporarily idle awaiting business recovery.

But all suggestions that either the New York committee, or the federal reserve authorities or the administration at Washington can persuade the banks to abandon an ultra-safe credit policy met with cold response from Chicago financiers. Naturally, they were chary about expressing their views for publication for fear of being branded as reactionaries and opposing the federal government's policies. But, privately, some of the bankers were outspoken.

Insist on Good Credits.

"We don't know what the New York committee has in mind and we doubt if the members themselves have made any program yet," the head of one of the largest loop banks said. "If they have in mind some method of inspiring confidence, such as a bond buying movement, I think Chicago banks and others throughout the country will coöperate. But if it is some project to expand credit and distribute banking funds to persons, groups and enterprises that are not good credit risks, it will not succeed.

"It is true that the large banks have a plethora of idle funds. But it is also true that the businesses, corporations, and individuals to whom we would be very glad to make loans do not need or want credit. They have plenty of money themselves, as their reports show. Banks still are carrying plenty of bad loans inherited from the collapse of the boom period. What is the primary cause of the many bank failures. They are not going to make additional poor loans. As for ourselves, we are going to keep our funds in hand, no matter how large they become and no matter how long they remain idle, until we can put them out in safe loans."

Another Banker Comments.

Another banker commented on the complaint of the federal reserve authorities that the banks were not distributing the vast credit made available by the reserve banks through their buying of government securities.

"The banks held government bonds and the reserve banks bid for them," he said. "It helped those banks that needed to sell bonds or those that desired to increase their liquidity. It also has aided the banks in reducing their indebtedness to the reserve banks. But if anybody thinks the banks parted with their government bonds in order to turn their funds into any and every sort of commercial loans, he is mistaken. Of course, we will coöperate with any sound movement to expand credit, but it must be sane and safe."

Demands Balanced Budget.

Still another banker expressed a common sentiment that any and every kind of credit expansion proposal will not inspire the degree of confidence that congress has in its power to create.

"Let congress stop all its pettifogging and accomplish its real business and then adjourn," he admonished. "If congress trims governmental expenditures to the bone, passes a sane tax measure that will balance the budget, and then adjourn as soon as may be, that will do more to reëstablish confidence and eliminate fear than all the credit plans and depression panaceas that can be thought of. What Americans want to know is where they stand and what they may expect from government; then they will work their own way out."

RAIL INTEREST DUE UP TO JULY 1 TAKEN CARE OF

New York, May 20.—(AP)—Provisions have been made for meeting interest charges on all railroad obligations due up to July 1, E. G. Buckland, president of the Railroad Credit corporation, said following the monthly meeting of the corporation.

He added, however, that the corporation's receipts were falling below and its expenditures were running above the original expectations. He said that when the corporation was formed it was estimated that its receipts would be upward of $100,000,000 and its disbursements to meet interest due by railroads this year would be about $60,000,000. Now it appears that about $100,000,000 would be required by the railroads to meet interest charges, while the corporation's revenues would amount to between $55,000,000 and $60,000,000.

FIGHT UPON OIL MERGER CARRIED INTO COURT HERE

Receiver Is Asked for Consolidated Corp.

Petition for equity receivership for the Consolidated Oil corporation asking the dissolution of that half billion oil combine was filed in the federal district court here late yesterday. The company recenlty was formed through the merger of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation, the Prairie Oil and Gas company, and the Prairie Pipe Line company.

The bill was filed yesterday on behalf of a dissenting stockholder who opposed the consolidation. He is William Roy Carney of Chicago, an owner of 3,825 shares of Prairie Pipe Line company stock. The law firm of Ryan, Condon & Livingston brought the action on Carney's behalf.

The petition recites that the merger was consummated over the objections of dissenting stockholders. It alleges that the merger was effected in a fraudulent manner. The bill sets forth that the Bancamerica Blair corporation, which controled large blocks in both companies, effected the deal and received $700,000 in fees for its part in the negotiations.

Asks Merger Disolution.

The suit asks that receivers be named to restore the properties to the constituent companies. It also asks an accounting to stockholders from the officers of the various companies who are not mentioned individually.

Carney sets forth that the Prairie Pipe Line company, whose stock he holds, had assets at the close of last year of $135,112,031. The company, he states, was doing a profitable business and had a large cash surplus.

Raps Standard Oil Plan.

Washington, D. C., May 20.—(AP)—A resolution calling on the attorney general to report to the senate what steps he has taken or intends to take to prevent consolidation of the Standard Oil Companies of New Jersey and California was introduced in the senate today by Senator Wheeler [Dem., Mont.].

Immediate action was requested by Mr. Wheeler, but Senator Moses [Rep., N. H.] objected. The resolution said: "It is reported that the officers and directors of the Standard Oil Companies of New Jersey and California are reported to be seeking to consolidate the companies "not withstanding the decision of the U. S. Supreme court and the Sherman anti-trust act."

Italy Allows More Alien Wheat for Millers' Use

ROME, May 20.—(AP)—Under a decree published today and made effective as of May 23, the government further eased the restrictions against foreign wheat used in flour mixtures. Millers of northern and central Italy will be allowed to use 75 per cent imported grain; southern Italy 95 per cent, while restrictions in Sicily and Sardinia were lifted entirely. This represents about a 12 per cent increase in the use of foreign wheat. A decree of April 26 raised the import flour quota about 10 to 25 per cent.

Insurance Equities Buys American Founders Unit

New York, May 20.—(AP)—Insurance Equities corporation, recently organized holding company, which has been active in the acquisition of casualty and investment trust companies, has acquired the North and South corporation, affiliate of American Founders corporation, it was announced today. The North and South corporation, under its new sponsors, has in turn acquired the sponsorship of nine semi-fixed trusts formerly associated with the United States corporation.

SEABOARD PUBLIC SERVICE CORP. PUT IN RECEIVERS' HANDS

Receivers were named yesterday by the federal court in Chicago and Wilmington, Del., for the Seaboard Public Service corporation, a utility holding concern with headquarters here.

The receivers named by the Delaware court are Perry O. Crawford of Chicago, president of the company, and Clarence A. Sutherland of Wilmington. The two men were also named ancillary receivers in the federal district court here by Judge Walter C. Lindley.

Petition for receivership was filed May 10 by Luke L. Stager, Kearny, N. J., owner of one $1,000 debenture of the corporation. The amended bill alleged that the company was temporarily unable to meet its obligations.

The corporation has numerous subsidiary properties in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois and elsewhere. Control is held by the American Equities company and H. M. Byllesby & Co.

$10,000,000 ISSUE OF MINNESOTA ROAD BONDS PUT ON SALE

A banking group headed by the Chase Harris Forbes corporation was successful bidder yesterday for an issue of $10,000,000 State of Minnesota highway bonds. The high bid was 100.15 for $3,000,000 of the bonds, maturing 1934, 1935, and 1936 as 4s, and $7,000,000 bonds, maturing from 1937 to 1947, as 4¼s. The bankers started selling the bonds publicly yesterday at prices to yield 3.50 to 4.10 per cent.

Associated with Forbes in this financing are the Continental Illinois company, Harris Trust and Savings bank, Banc Northwest company, Brown Bros., Harriman & Co., R. W. Pressprich & Co., Edward B. Smith & Co., L. F. Rothschild & Co., and others.

The Bankers Trust company of New York and associates offered $3,000,000 ofg the State of California 4½s per cent veterans welfare bonds, due 1937 to 1952, on a 4½ per cent basis for maturities from 1937 to 1941 and on 4.20 basis for maturities from 1942 to 1953.

Speyer & Co., and the J. Henry Schroder Banking corpoartion, fiscal agents for the state of San Paulo 7 per cent coffee realization loan of 1930, stated that while ten months' interest and sinking fund on outstanding bonds require $12,935,000, the total amount receivable, for ten months ended April 30, 1932, of the second year of the coffee realization plan's operation from the sale of pledged coffee and from the special tax was equal to $15,643,928. Of this amount there has been received or is in transit $14,998,928.

Dillon, Read & Co., as sinking fund agent, will redeem $132,500 of the outstanding Siemens & Halske A. G. ten year 7 per cent bonds due 1935 at 102 and accrued interest on July 1, it was announced yesterday. The bonds have been designated by lot for redemption.

BIG FORD ORDERS HELP CLEVELAND MAKERS OF PARTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., May 20.—Orders for parts for 100,000 new Ford cars today put Cleveland makers of automotive parts on a full time operating basis. In some cases day and night shifts have been put to work to supply the demand.

The new orders are for parts for both the four cylinder and the eight cylinder models. Local plants either are recalling old employés or putting their present employés on a full time basis. The order for parts for 100,000 automobiles is only the first of a series which during the next few months is expected to care for upward of 300,000 cars.

Value of the parts ordered is variously estimated at from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 in the Cleveland area.

Cleveland companies reported to have begun production on the Ford orders are: National Acme company, The Weatherhead company; Thompson Products company; Eaton Axle and Spring company; Midland Steel Products company; Geometric Stamping company; Chase Brass and Copper company and the Cleveland Hardware company.

OUTLINE WAY TO REFINANCE DRAKE HOTEL

Avoid Foreclosure and Receiver.

BY AL CHASE.

Notices were mailed last night to the 496 stockholders of the Whitestone company, which owns the Drake hotel, outlining a refinancing plan for that well known property whereby both receivership and foreclosure will be avoided if the owners of the hotel stock ratify the proposal. The Drake hotel then will be taken by a new corporation to be organized and owned by the National Realty and Investment company, which has as its president Vincent Bendix, and as its directors Arthur Cutten, Warren Wright, Silas H. Strawn, Donald R. McLennan, Warren B. Ewer, Charles S. Pearce, Benjamin Marshall, and Edwin L. Brashears.

BENJAMIN H. MARSHALL. [Moffett Photo.]

In his report to the stockholders Mr. Marshall, president of the Whitestone company, states that the Drake hotel had a net loss of approximately $190,000 in 1931 and was unable to make the interest and sinking fund payments due on its $3,440,000 first mortgage, held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, on Nov. 1, 1931, and May 1, 1932. These arrears amount to $270,000. He states that "the company is therefore in default under the mortgage and foreclosure is imminent." In addition the company owes approximately $600,000, principally for back taxes.

Risk Company to Coöperate.

Through assured coöperation of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company with the refinancing plan evolved, however, Mr. Marshall states that if the stockholders O. K. the proposed setup neither foreclosure nor receivership will be necessary and the Drake hotel can be put back on its financial feet.

Briefly the refinancing plan is as follows: The National Realty and Investment company is to organize a new corporation with an authorized capital of 50,000 shares of 5 per cent noncumulative class A common stock of $25 par and 30,000 shares of class B common stock of $5 par. Then all of the assets of the Whitestone company will be conveyed to this new corporation, in consideration for which the new company will issue to the Whitestone company 40,000 shares of the class A stock and 10,000 shares of the B, to be distributed by its pro rate to preferred stockholders. At the same time the National Realty and Investment company will purchase from the new corporation at par the remaining 20,000 shares of the class B.

The new corporation will undertake to procure an extension of the principal prepayments and interest now in default and will assume and agree to pay all of the then outstanding first mortgage obligations with the exception of some dividend scrip issued in 1923.

Cancel Drakes' Contract.

As a consideration for canceling a contract with Tracy C. Drake and John B. Drake, the refinancing plan calls for a cash payment to them of $50,000, 4,000 shares of class A stock, and an additional $50,000 over a three year period out of 25 per cent of the net earnings of the company. In addition they both will be employed by the new company.

The National Realty and Investment company will supply funds to the new corporation, secured by a three year second mortgage at 6 per cent and a chattel mortgage on the furniture and furnishings. The hotel company board of directors unanimously approved the proposal of the National company at a meeting held on Thursday. A special meeting of the hotel stockholders has been set for June 20. If the plan is approved it will then be operative.

The Drake, at Michigan avenue and Lake Shore drive, was built in 1921 from plans by Marshall & Fox, at a cost of approximately $8,000,000 for land, building, and furnishings. It contains 780 rooms. The new interests, it is stated, will do considerable remodeling, cutting down the large lobbies and catering more than ever to permanent rather than transient guests.

Federal Price Fixing Based on Mysteries

BY SCRUTATOR.

The action of the house of representatives in passing the Goldsborough bill has stirred up again the old arguments for and against a managed currency.

This bill instructs the federal reserve banks, the federal reserve board, and the secretary of the treasury to manipulate credit in such a way as to bring back the price levels of the last decade.

Silver enthusiasts desire to arrive at the same end, but they propose adjusting credit and currency in another way—by regulating the amount of silver in the gold dollar.

Bill Widely Criticized.

Business abhors talk of manipulated currency. The Goldsborough bill has been the target of much criticism.

Here, for instance, is an excerpt from a resolution sent to the chairman of the senate committee on banking and currency by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States:

"Believing that the primary duty of a central banking organization is the maintenance of a sound monetary and banking structure, the chamber has expressed itself against limitations upon the federal reserve system which hamper it in the exercise of its proper functions by specifically requiring it to use its resources to inflate or artificially maintain price levels—activities which, if possible of attainment, are full of dangerous possibilities."

Price fixing on a grand scale presupposes adherence to some kind of guide. If you're trying to get back to 1926 levels you've got to know what they were.

Those who yearn for managed currency propose index numbers to steer the managers. The trouble with indexes is that they have a way of possessing clay feet.

There Are Exceptions.

"Money in circulation" is one of the weekly business indicators regularly charted by the department of commerce. Ordinarily, the more money in circulation the better is business. But there's a catch. A few months ago the amount of money in circulation was hitting new highs and business was slower than ever.

Therefore, if you use this indicator in the quest for the levels of yesteryear you've got to allow for hoarding—but how much?

"Freight car loadings" is another indicator. A freight car is considered loaded if it carries a few crates of berries on the floor. It also is considered loaded if it is jammed to the roof with 30,000 pounds of freight.

A hundred freight cars carry coal from the mines in Pennsylvania to the dock at Ashtabula. That's a hundred loadings. A steamer carries this coal to Escanaba and dumps it in a coal yard. Half of it is shipped to nearby communities. That makes fifty more loadings of the same coal. A freight car loading means little unless you know where the car is going, how full it is, and what it hauls.

Another Indicator's Story.

Examination of the figures for freight car loadings during the first eighteen weeks each of the last six years reveals the shortcomings of this particular indicator of business.

In the first eighteen weeks of 1927 more freight cars were loaded than in the corresponding periods of either 1928 or 1929. Thus this indicator failed even to point in the right direction, probably because of increasing highway competition.

The danger in leaning too heavily on indicators lies in the fact that when they go awry you don't discover it immediately.

Creditors Enable Dry Goods House to Stay in Business

Samuel Phillipson, president of Samuel Phillipson & Co., wholesale dry goods house, announced yesterday that a settlement has been reached with creditors of the company which will enable the firm to continue in business. Mr. Phillipson is said to have offered a proposal whereby obligations of the company be met in full over an extended period. However, the creditors stated that they were willing to accept a fifty per cent settlement, part in cash and part in long term notes. Mr. Phillipson has been in business for forty-five years. His company got into financial difficulties some time ago as a result of the depression and a receiver was appointed for it. Michael Gesas, attorney for the company, presented the settlement proposal to the creditors.

REVIVE RUMORS THAT THORNTON WILL QUIT CANADIAN NAT'L RYS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., May 20.—Sir Henry Thornton, Indiana born president and general manager of Canada's publicly owned Canadian National railways and former University of Pennsylvania football star, bears the brunt of criticisms in the parliamentary railway committee's report. Sir Henry, some persons report, will be out within two months. Recent reports that he would retire were denied by Sir Henry.

The report is signed unanimously by Liberal and Conservative members of the inquiry committee. Sir Henry, however, is criticized for acceptance of $5,000 salary from a Canadian National railway subsidiary, although his $75,000 a year contract with the Canadian government called for no extras. His $15,000 a year expense account is frowned on; his Montreal residence now is said to have been provided through an indirect transaction by the railroad directorate.

The cost of Canadian National railways' promotion offices in the United States also is made subject for unfavorable comment. Recommendation is made for closing those operated at a loss. Premier Bennett today vigorously denied American press reports that Canada and Russia were negotiating a new trade agreement.

New York, May 20. — Speculative Wall street tried hard to get itself steamed up today over the latest move to put the depression on the spot through the formation of a coalition committee of bankers and industrialists to put surplus credit to work. But the task was beyond it.

Too many traders have adopted Missouri's pet slogan as a guide to their 1932 market operations. They have seen so many plans, promises and projects go awry that they demand tangible evidence that business already has begun to improve before digging down for what few shekels they may have left for stock speculation or investment.

Flurry at Start.

Their ultimatum was read in today's dealings on the stock exchange with renewed emphasis. There was a flurry of buying at the opening—engineered by professionals from all appearances—and prices went bubbling up from a fraction to about 2 points, but the rally was short lived. Before the first hour was out, prices were turning down all over the board and the ticker had slowed down to the creeping pace it has kept for the last week or more. The public simply wouldn't come in. Closing figures disclosed only minor changes from those of the previous session, with plus and minus signs about equally divided.

While the trading community was impressed with the new "bank board" project, so called, it was recognized that some time will be necessary to get whatever plans the committee may evolve into operation and that no little effort is going to be required to get the idea "over" in a big way.

Many Problems Ahead.

Moreover, congress is still in session, the budget is yet to be balanced and a tax program arrived at. Until this major hurdle is taken the street finds itself unable to get unduly excited over what it views as secondary measures for bringing about the long discussed business revival. The news from Washington today made it look as if the nation's law making body is turning its attention to tariff tinkering as a sideline to the efforts it is popularly supposed to be making to discharge the all important work before it.

As for the back-and-forth swing of prices on the big board there was little worthy of classification as a feature anywhere. In the industrial list such favorites as U. S. Steel, American Can, Allied Chemical, Du Pont and Eastman Kodak held firm and the close found most of them a slight gainer on the day.

Tobaccos Do Well.

Tobacco shares attracted some attention by the good front they put up in face of publication of official figures showing a decrease in cigaret production for April. This group was under considerable pressure earlier in the week, presumably in anticipation of such news.

Chrysler fared poorly in the motor division, going to a new bear market low on a drop of more than a point.

WESTERN PACIFIC RAILROAD ISSUES ANNUAL REPORT

New York, May 20.—(AP)—The Western Pacific Railroad company, which is one of the principal systems in which Arthur Curtiss James is financially interested, today issued its annual pamphlet report showing a net deficit after all charges of $2,127,161 in 1931, against $304,006 in 1930.

Although the road cut down operating expenses by $1,713,000 in 1931, its net railway operating revenue fell off $1,671,000, due to a contraction of $3,384,000 in gross receipts. Freight revenues in 1931 totaled $11,079,000, against $13,796,000 in 1930, while passenger revenues declined to $772,000, against $1,081,000 the year before. The balance sheet showed current assets were $5,295,000, of which $846,000 was cash, against total current liabilities of $2,822,000.

See Little Prospect of Upturn in Silver Prices

Prices for silver are not expected to advance sufficiently during the early future materially to increase profits for metal producers deriving a considerable portion of their revenue from this course, says the Standard Statistics company. It adds, however, that silver's fundamental position suggests that it would show at least a moderate advance in price during the early stages of strength in the general commodity list.

Liquid Carbonic April Gain Better Than Usual

W. K. McIntosh, chairman of the Liquid Carbonic corporation, states that earnings of the company showed a sharp gain in April which was better than the usual seasonal improvement.

1,000 Bankers Urge Economy in Government

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 20.—Wilson G. Wing, president of the Providence Institution for Savings, Providence, R. I., was elected president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks today. The action was taken at the twelfth annual conference of delegates numbering about 1,000. Mr. Wing said a return of prosperity is "eventually inevitable." He added that it was a remarkable fact that during the devastation of money values during the last three years the twenty-eight billion dollars savings of the American people were well maintained and distributed.

"It would seem," he said, "that we are steadily working toward that ideal distribution of wealth of which so much has been said."

Approve Several Plans.

The assemblage indorsed the suggestion relative to adjusting foreign debts recently made to President Hoover by the American Railway Brotherhoods. The resolution set forth that it was essential that the uncertainties of intergovernmental debts be removed if there is to be any permanent revival in employment and business.

A second resolution as adopted approved the stabilizing influence exerted by the formation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

A third unreserved indorsement by the 1,000 bankers from eighteen states related to efforts of President Hoover and other leaders in national affairs to effect economies in governmental operations.

There was no opposition to any of the three resolutions.

When Bostonians Are Scared.

It was declared that a study of runs on the Boston Five Cents Savings bank during a period of over seventy-five years revealed that the bank could expect one every fifteen to eighteen years. Wilmot R. Evans, president of that Boston institution, said today the experience of the last three years indicated that in order to counteract inflexibility of mortgage investments not less than 15 per cent of savings deposits should be invested in government bonds.

DELAYS RULING ON AUCTION OF INSULL STOCKS

Ruling on the motion of the four New York banks for dissolution of the injunction restraining them from disposing of the collateral they hold as pledges against loans to the two Insull investment trusts will be made next week, Judge Walter C. Lindley of the federal district court announced yesterday.

The restraining order was issued May 4 by Judge Lindley and resulted in the postponement of the proposed auction of large blocks of the shares of the stocks of Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois by the New York banks. These securities had been posted with the banks by Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities company, as security for loans aggregating $10,000,000.

Judge Lindley said yesterday the receivers for the two trusts will be allowed to furnish additional memoranda to the court to be submitted by Monday. The injunction was originally issued on the petition of the receivers. The New York banks have set the proposed auction for May 31.

MORE SECURITIES OF TRI-UTILITIES SOLD AT AUCTION

New York, May 20.—(AP)—Further sales at auction of three lots of securities of the Tri-Utilities corporation and subsidiaries were announced today. The securities sold yesterday for $440,000 and the buyer was reported to be the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company.

Included in the sale was an $800,000 note of American Natural Gas, 10,092 shares of Oklahoma Natural Gas second preference stock, 20,000 shares of Natural Gas Producers common, 99,975 shares of Western Gas Service common, a $351,000 note of American Natural Gas, 21,236 shares of Oklahoma Natural Gas second preference stock, 1,000 shares of Quinton Natural Gas common, 1,000 shares of Texocan Oil stock, 200 shares of Oklahoma Natural Building company, 750,000 shares of Trojan Engineering common, 1,800 shares of Tri-Utilities Securities preferred, a $780,774 note of American Natural Gas, a $70,000 note of Oklahoma Natural Gas, and a $529,166 note of the Ozark Holding company.

EUROPEAN NATIONS TAKE $37,829,000 U. S. GOLD IN SINGLE DAY

New York, May 20.—(AP)—Today's exports of gold constituted one of the largest outward movements for a single day this year, amounting to $37,829,000. Holland headed the list with a withdrawal of $21,075,300; France drew $12,631,100; Belgium, $4,084,600, and Switzerland, $38,000.

The net loss to the country's gold stock was reduced to $16,274,200. Due to imports and a decrease in earmark account, the latter was down $17,019,900. There were imports of $996,000 from Canada and $19,900 from Mexico. At San Francisco $2,437,000 gold was received from Japan and $1,082,000 from China.

Pressure on the dollar lifted today and the foreign exchange market presented a calmer surface than it has shown in trading for several weeks back. While European gold currencies continued to sell above the "gold export" point, the dollar rallied slightly. This reflected in French francs, which yielded 1-16 point to 3.94¾c and Holland guilders, which were off ⅛ point to 40.58, both cable quotations. The pound sterling lost ⅝c, going to $3.67⅞ for cables.

The Swedish krone and Swiss francs were exceptions to the general trend, the krone moving up 15 points to 18.89c and the Swiss franc up ¾ point to 19.59c.

KREUGER FRAUD 8 YEARS OLD, REPORT SHOWS

Suicide's Debts Put at 168 Millions.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 20.—(AP)—A Swedish investigating committee today revealed Ivar Kreuger had $168,300,000 in personal debts and indirect liability against his name when he fired a bullet into his brain in Paris March 12.

Pointing also to "deliberate falsification" of the books of Kreuger & Toll, the match king's main company, over a period of at least eight years, the committee recommended bankruptcy.

"There will be little, if anything, left over for distribution to unsecured creditors," the report concluded.

From Genius to Swindler.

The committee laid gigantic fraud to the manipulations of this man, who until the first of this year was regarded as one of the most powerful financial geniuses of modern times.

Fictitious assets for large sums were created on the Kreuger & Toll books since 1924, the report said. It added:

"The state of the books makes it extraordinarily difficult to produce a definite balance sheet for the Kreuger & Toll company.

"As regards many of the assets, it is impossible to say with certainty whether they should belong to Kreuger & Toll or to one or the other of the various companies under Kreuger's management, or possibly to his own estate.

"Our examination has, however, reached a point where we can state definitely that there will be little, if anything, left over for distribution to unsecured creditors.

Urges Bankruptcy Action.

"This being the case, the committee considers that there is no longer any need for maintaining the existing moratorium, and it is therefore recommending to the board that it should request the [Swedish] government to recall the moratorium and thereupon take the necessary steps to have the company declared bankrupt.

"In this connection, the committee would point out that special bankruptcy legislation is in preparation intending to safeguard the interests of the entire body of creditors."

Asserting that its investigation had shown that the Kreuger & Toll company has a claim of not less than 200,000,000 kroner (currently about $37,400,000) on Kreuger's estate, the report added that the committee had made a summary investigation of the estate itself.

Offers Match Co. Plan.

Turning to the Swedish Match company, another of Kreuger's big concerns, the committee said it was to be hoped that an arrangement can be made for a standstill agreement covering the next three months.

"For the purpose of giving the company time to produce a plan of reconstruction whereby Swedish and foreign match interests can as far as possible be kept together," was the way the committee put the reason for such an agreement.

"A special administration," the committee suggested, "will control the company during the three months' period, and will probably invite foreign and Swedish shareholders to sit as a special committee to formulate a plan of reconstruction.

Ericsson Phone Report.

"As regards the Ericsson Telephone company [another of Kreuger's holdings] the position seems to be that a considerable part of the share capital can be considered as intact, provided that difficulties connected with the company's cash position can be overcome.

"Negotiations are being continued, but have not yet led to an agreement."

The report was signed by the four men named by the Swedish government and various officials to look into Kreuger's tangled affairs. A moratorium was declared by the government to cover the period of this investigation to prevent dissipation of assets. The signers of the report were Martin Fehr, E. Browald, Hugo Stenbeck, B. G. Prytz, and J. Wallenberg.

Untermyer Wants Lists.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 20.—Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the independent protective committee for Kreuger & Toll debenture holders, of which Bainbridge Colby is chairman, has made a request of the New York Stock exchange. He asked that body to enforce the furnishing of the Colby committee with the list of debenture holders to whom the Grayson M. P. Murphy committee mailed its requests for the deposit of debentures. In default of so doing Mr. Untermyer urged that certificates of deposit of the Murphy committee be stricken from the official list and future dealings therein prohibited.

The $50,000,000 Kreuger & Toll company 5 per cent debentures are "bearer" debentures of which no formal list was kept by the company or the trustee, so that there is no official record from which the Colby committee can get such a list, Mr. Untermyer explained.

The Murphy committee is, he said, in possession of such a list, according to a reply to a letter written by Mr. Untermyer to the chairman of the Murphy committee requesting a copy of its list.

BOND MART FAILS TO HOLD EFFECT OF CREDIT TONIC

Prices of U. S. Securities Move Downward.

New York, May 20.—(AP)—The bond market turned temperamental today and, after a rally and subsequent decline, ended up in about the same position as yesterday. Trading was the largest in a number of weeks.

Announcement of the formation of a committee of industrialists and bankers to speed up the federal reserve system's credit expansion program acted as a tonic in the early part of the session. Most advances, however, failed to hold and, when the casualties were counted, a number of new 1932 lows were discovered.

While domestic loans were glimpsing a ray of light on the horizon the United States government department started to slip and hard won gains began to disappear. The treasuries were especially weak, four of them losing more than 1 point each. Liberties declined fractionally. The declining action of the federals was attributed partly to budget balancing delays, continuing uncertainties' regarding new taxation and the fear that proposed unemployment relief measures may eventually mean the issuance of long term bonds.

Breaks in Rails.

Second grade rails were the rallying leaders at the start, but sharp breaks in special issues later dragged down this department. Losses of 6¾, 6⅞, 9, and 10½ points were recorded by New York Central 3½s, New York Central convertible debenture 6s, Northern Pacific 4½s, and Texas and Pacific 5s of 1979, respectively.

On the other hand, some modest gains were retained by liens of Allegheny corporation, Santa Fe, Baltimore and Ohio, Chicago and North Western, Chesapeake corporation, Denver and Rio Grande, Erie, Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate, and Pennsylvania.

The utilities and industrials were somewhat mixed. German government 7s made a new 1932 low, losing 3¼ points, while other reich bonds were easy or barely steady. Both French and British loans were moderately firm. Norwegian and Japanese bonds firmed as did the Argentines and Colombians.

Curb Is Apathetic.

The New York Curb market reflected tempered enthusiasm in early trading today over the plans of private industry and government to unite in utilizing the nation's growing credit reserves, but later turned dull and prices closed irregularly lower.

Aside from a modest spurt of buying in early dealings, the market was characterized by apathetic trading. In leading stocks, small net losses outnumbered gains, but there were many inactive issues which showed fairly large gains.

Speculative interest centered largely in the oil stocks as a result of recent indications of improvement in that industry. The Standard Oil issues advanced fractionally in fairly active buying, and held part of these earlier gains in late afternoon trading, with the exception of Standard of Kentucky which reacted ⅝ points to 11¼. Gulf Oil reacted 1 point to 31 after an early bulge which carried up to 32⅝. Stocks of some of the pipe line companies closed fractionally higher, while Buckeye Pipe moved up 2 points to 27.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Raw sugar was a little easier today, with spots declining 2 points to 2.58c. There was only one sale at this level, however, and, although buyers showed further interest, holders in general were not inclined to sell below 2.60c. The business reported included 9,000 bags of Philippines for May arrival to a local refiner at 2.58c and 28,700 bags of Porto Rican to an outport refiner at 2.60c. There was also a sale of 5,000 tons of old crop Cuban from store here to the United Kingdom at equal to about 65c f o b and 7,000 tons of Cuban were sold by the export corporation in Cuba to Russia for late May or early June shipment at 65 cents f o b Cuba. COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil today closed firm at 5 to 12 points net advance influenced by the steadiness of cotton and lard and reports of too much rain in some sections of the cotton belt. Sales were 6 contracts or 900 barrels. Crude oil was 2½c bid in the southeast and the valley and 2⅝c in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 3.30c; May, 3.35c; July, 3.57c; Sept., 3.70c; Dec., 3.85c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract, with closing prices as follows: Spot and May, 3.00c; July, 3.25c; Sept., 3.40c; Oct., 3.50c.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Cotton goods were a little steadier today, but continued quiet in gray and finished lines. Voiles are in better demand, printed, and in the gray. Ragona were quiet for the day. Silk crepes are being sold at very low prices. Moderate filling in orders were reported in the wool goods division. Burlaps steady.

JULY WHEAT'S PRICES ADVANCE IN CHICAGO PIT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat made the best response to bullish news yesterday in some time. The July advanced 1¾c over Thursday's finish to 59c, the highest price since April 28. Buying was induced by crop deterioration news from the states east of the Missouri river, and reports that business leaders and bankers in the east were to make determined efforts to bring about a general trade revival.

There was no material pressure on the wheat market throughout the day. A slightly broader outside interest was in evidence, and several commission houses that have been inactive of late were reported as buying early. Stop loss orders and short covering helped along the advance.

The best figures were not maintained due to profit taking and selling against offers, but the close was at net gains of 1¼@1¾c, with May leading. The latter finished at 57⅛c; old July, 58⅝@58¾c; old September, 60¼@60⅝c, and December, 63⅛@63⅜c.

Claim Hessian Fly Damage.

Reports that winter wheat was being seriously damaged by Hessian fly and other causes were received from Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio during the day and came in for more attention than of late, as heretofore the unfavorable crop comments have come largely from the states west of the Missouri river.

The Kansas grain dealers' convention at Topeka, Kas., was attended by 300 delegates, and the crop of the state was variously estimated at 70,000,000 to 85,000,000 bu, compared with 240,000,000 bu harvested last year. The forecast for fairly general showers served to temper bullish enthusiasm to some extent.

Pit observers, while saying there was a slight increase in outside interest in the wheat market, maintained that the bulk of the buying was of a professional character, and sentiment was by no means unanimously bullish. Intimations that eastern speculators were ready to jump into the market as buyers owing to the unsatisfactory action of stocks were received, but there was no indication of any aggressive action on their part during the day. According to a leading local operator the east would probably take the buying side were damage to be reported to spring wheat.

Liverpool Wheat Firm.

Lack of pressure of Argentine grain had some effect on Liverpool, which closed ⅝@¾c higher, with July at 60¾c. However, the English market has lost ground as compared with Chicago during the last week and at the time the former closed the July was 2¾c over Chicago, against 3¼c over a wee kago. Winnipeg failed to reflect the strength in the local market and closed ⅝@¾c higher, with July at 63⅞c. Canadian exchange was quoted around 12 per cent discount at the last.

Only a moderate export demand for North American cash wheat was in evidence during the day, with scattered sales of Manitobas and hard winters, but the day's business was said to have been somewhat under 500,000 bu.

Corn Dull but Firm.

Action of wheat was the main factor in corn. The latter closed ⅝@⅝ higher, with May at 30⅜c; July, 33c; September, 35¼c, and December, 35¼c. The country sold 75,000 bu cash corn to arrive, which had some effect on the market, offsetting to a considerable extent the shipping sales of 130,000 bu. Weather conditions over the belt were regarded as decidedly favorable for planting.

Associated with wheat and closed ⅝@⅞c higher, with May 23⅛c at the last, while July was 22⅞c, September 22⅝c, and December 24½@24¾c. Shipping sales aggregated 49,000 bu. Crop reports were favorable.

Reports of export demand for rye were apparently not taken seriously by the trade, as the market was dominated entirely by the action of wheat. Close in trades were ⅝@1¼c higher, with May 38c, July 40⅝c, September 41⅜c, and December 43⅛c.

Pit observers, while saying there was a slight increase in outside interest in the wheat market, maintained that the bulk of the buying was of a professional character, and sentiment was by no means unanimously bullish. Intimations that eastern speculators were ready to jump into the market as buyers owing to the unsatisfactory action of stocks were received, but there was no indication of any aggressive action on their part during the day. According to a leading local operator the east would probably take the buying side were damage to be reported to spring wheat.

Liverpool Wheat Firm.

Lack of pressure of Argentine grain had some effect on Liverpool, which closed ⅝@¾c higher, with July at 60¾c. However, the English market has lost ground as compared with Chicago during the last week and at the time the former closed the July was 2¾c over Chicago, against 3¼c over a wee kago. Winnipeg failed to reflect the strength in the local market and closed ⅝@¾c higher, with July at 63⅞c. Canadian exchange was quoted around 12 per cent discount at the last.

Only a moderate export demand for North American cash wheat was in evidence during the day, with scattered sales of Manitobas and hard winters, but the day's business was said to have been somewhat under 500,000 bu.

Corn Dull but Firm.

Action of wheat was the main factor in corn. The latter closed ⅝@⅝ higher, with May at 30⅜c; July, 33c; September, 35¼c, and December, 35¼c. The country sold 75,000 bu cash corn to arrive, which had some effect on the market, offsetting to a considerable extent the shipping sales of 130,000 bu. Weather conditions over the belt were regarded as decidedly favorable for planting.

Associated with wheat and closed ⅝@¾c higher, with May 23⅛c at the last, while July was 22⅞c, September 22⅝c, and December 24½@24¾c. Shipping sales aggregated 49,000 bu. Crop reports were favorable.

Reports of export demand for rye were apparently not taken seriously by the trade, as the market was dominated entirely by the action of wheat. Close in trades were ⅝@1¼c higher, with May 38c, July 40⅝c, September 41⅜c, and December 43⅛c.

COTTON A SHADE HIGHER

Trade in cotton was not large and the range of prices was narrow, although higher gains on Chicago futures being 1626 points, with other markets up 3@7 points. Spots were 5 points higher. New Orleans being 5.85c; New York, 5.90c; Houston, 5.85c; and Galveston, 5.90c. Liverpool was closed yesterday and will be closed today. Heavy rains were reported in the Mobile district and lighter precipitation in other sections. Crop reports were in the main favorable. The revised estimate of last year's crop in the United States departmentof agriculture showed 41,180,000 acres in cultivation on July 1, 1931, with yield per acre 201.2 pounds and production in 500 pound bales 17,096,000. The census bureau reports total cotton ginned from the 1931 crop at 16,628,674 bales or 33,004 bales in excess of the March 21 report. The report on spindle activity shows a material enlargement. Exports for the season to date are said to total 7,769,208 bales, compared with 6,361,774 bales to the same time last year. Prices follow:
